Cotton Growers Are First to Benefit.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt announced today the creation of a new agency to manipulate upward and maintain higher prices of commodities which slants in the direction of a general policy of government price fixing.

Following a protracted meeting of the cabinet devoted to discussion of the economic situation and the progress of the recovery program, the President said that a Commodity Credit corporation with an initial capital of three million dollars subscribed by the government is to be organized at once to loan funds of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to producers.

Cotton Gets First Chance.

The first undertaking of the new agency will be to establish and maintain a price of between 10 and 15 cents a pound on cotton through loans of government funds to cotton farmers to enable them to hold this year's crop on the farms for higher prices.

Cotton will not be the only commodity upon which the corporation will make loans, the President said, but what other commodities are in line for such price manipulation he would not divulge.

There have been rumors for a fortnight or more that the administration was considering a price fixing policy, applying not only to cotton but to wheat and possibly some other agricultural products. The Commodity Credit corporation offers a medium for establishing and maintaining a higher price of wheat and other farm products through loans to farmers similar to those to be made to cotton planters.

Concentrate on Farm Prices.

The cardinal aim of the administration has been to restore the purchasing power of the farmers, the argument being that when the farmers have money to spend the country is always prosperous. The agricultural adjustment legislation has failed up to date to restore the farmers' purchasing power. The prices of what the farmer produces have gone up, but the prices of what he consumes, as a result of the operations of the NRA, have gone up as much or more. So the farmer is no better off than before.

As a result of the failure of the agricultural adjustment administration to produce the expected results there has been increased demand for the fixing of a minimum price of wheat and other farm products.

The Commodity Credit corporation is to lend government funds to producers on the security of the commodities. If the commodities are eventually sold at prices below the minimum fixed, the government will stand the loss.

Demanded Inflation, Too.

The cotton planters came to Washington a fortnight ago demanding inflation of the currency and a government guarantee of 15 cents a pound for their crop. Mr. Roosevelt persuaded them to drop the inflation demand and promised to loan them 10 cents a pound. Then it was found that there was no lawful way for the R. F. C. to loan directly to the planters. The Commodity Credit corporation was invented to borrow from the R. F. C. and to lend to the producers.

The President said that the loan will be made on the basis of 10 cents a pound on all cotton of this year's crop still on the farms.

Only those farmers who agree to rent to the government 40 per cent of their next year's cotton acreage will be eligible to the loans. No loans will be made, Mr. Roosevelt said, after June 30, 1934.

The farmers are to be guaranteed against loss if the price of cotton falls below ten cents a pound. It is further provided that if the price goes above 15 cents a pound the government can require the farmers to sell.

Theory Plans Maintained Price.

The theory is that if a sufficiently large portion of the crop passes under control of the Commodity Credit corporation prices can be maintained between 10 and 15 cents a pound.

How much money will be required for the cotton loans the President was unable to say. At the agricultural adjustment administration it was estimated that from 350 to 400 million dollars would be required. The R. F. C. has between 1½ and 2 billion dollars available for such loans.

Despite the failure of the recovery program to produce the expected results up to date, the cabinet was dis-

BRITAIN REJECTS HITLER'S CLAIM FOR MORE ARMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The air was thick with disarmament in Great Britain tonight when Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council and lord privy seal, addressed a meeting of the Conservative party at Birmingham in accents more ominous and more forcible than any member of the British government has used in a long time. It was considered one of the most important utterances on the subject delivered either at Geneva or elsewhere in months.

As nearly as it can be interpreted, it means that the British government does not accept any of Germany's claims to rearmament. Furthermore it very likely means that Britain will honor the Locarno pacts as it did the treaty protecting Belgian neutrality at the beginning of the war. Mr. Baldwin actually coupled the treaties in his address.

Britain's Attitude Revealed.

The speech was regarded as a telling pronouncement of the British government's attitude towards disarmament and foreign policy. Nazi Germany was told in plain language what Britishers are thinking in regard to the reich's demands for "sample" armaments of aggression. Incidentally, Baldwin worked into his speech a lurid defense of Britain's "voluntary" disarmament to date and a prophecy of the panic which would scourge western Europe if a real disarmament convention is not reached within a short time.

The cabinet member asserted that lack of an agreement would mean an immediate increase of armaments, higher taxation and eventually destruction of civilization through an ensuing war.

Baldwin spoke several hours after Prince Otto von Bismarck, chancellor of the German embassy in London, had called at the foreign office and held a long conference with Sir John Simon, foreign secretary. In the talk Von Bismarck presented the German refusal of the disarmament scheme offered by the British, French and American governments.

Insists World Disarm.

The former allies refused the German request for sample armaments, but offered to double the man power in the German army under the militia scheme. This the Germans turned down.

Baldwin's speech was literally packed with meaning. He insisted upon world disarmament.

"When I speak of a disarmament convention," he said, "I do not mean disarmament on the part of this country and not on the part of any other. I mean a limitation of armaments that is a real limitation.

"If we find ourselves on some lower rating and that some other country has higher figures, that country must come down and we must go up until we meet. No other form of convention will be negotiated by his majesty's government; no other form of convention is in contemplation.

"But even that may be difficult and, if it can be attained, in my view it will be of vital importance to us that every signatory to that convention carries out what is in that convention in letter and spirit.

"If a convention is signed, the nation which breaks it will have no friend in this civilized world.

Speaks to Germany.

"And I would add this, the same is true of any nation which deliberately prevents such an agreement being reached by putting forward demands which might be acceptable after a time, but which would not be acceptable today to the other co-signatories."

This was looked on as plain speaking to Germany.

"There is fear in the world that our country has less regard than it had for the sanctity of agreements entered into since the war which may contribute to the peace of Europe," Baldwin continued.

"I say this, and I take the treaty of Locarno as the most difficult one. What Great Britain has signed, it shall adhere to. She adhered to her signature with regard to Belgium; her signature to those agreements is sacred."

Boys on Truck Upset to Avoid Train; 2 Killed

A gay group of farm boys from Woodbine, Ia., homeward bound after four days at A Century of Progress Exposition, were plunged into tragedy late last night when a truck in which they were all riding overturned on the Roosevelt road crossing of the Indiana Harbor Belt Line railroad in Broadview.

The truck was not struck by a freight train that approached the crossing at approximately the same time, but the driver in swerving to avoid a collision tipped it and two of the youths fell in front of the train and were killed.

Three Severely Injured.

They were Dale Smith, 16 years old, and Wesley Smith, 18 years old. They are not relatives. Three others, who fell from the truck to the ground, were severely injured. They are Leo Greer, who suffered a broken arm; Orville Smith, cousin of Wesley, whose legs were injured, and Hudson Ehlert, whose skull was fractured. All are between 17 and 19 years old. Several members of the party were slightly hurt.

Cal Hammack, who was at the wheel, blamed the accident on his inability to see the small warning lights at the crossing, which is not guarded by gates. A car in front, he said, blocked off the view of these signals and he was almost on the track before he realized the train was coming.

"I did my best to stop," he asserted, "but there was no chance to do it without swerving."

Injured Taken to Hospital.

The bodies of the two Smith boys were taken to an undertaking establishment in Brookfield. The injured were removed to the Westlake hospital in Melrose Park.

Arrangements for the visit of the Iowa farmers, all of them under 21 years of age, were made by E. I. Rosenberg, a farm leader of the Woodbine vicinity. They had spent part of their time while in the Chicago region at the Swiney Brothers stock farm at Glen Ellyn, from which they rode daily in the truck to visit the Fair.

CANADIANS SIGHT A SEA SERPENT 80 FT. IN LENGTH

W. B. Grant said he saw a creature resembling a serpent some time ago off Victoria golf links.

LETS DISTILLERS MAKE 7 MILLION GALS. OF WHISKY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Authorization for the manufacture of an additional 7,000,000 gallons of medicinal spirits between Oct. 15 and the end of the year was granted to American distilleries today by Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the bureau of industrial alcohol. This increases the year's allocation of production to 18,000,000 gallons, the highest since the prohibition amendment was adopted.

Mr. Doran explained that the probable repeal of the 18th amendment had nothing to do with his action, but that the demand for medicinal spirits and the rapidly diminishing stocks justified the increase.

No decision has yet been reached as to whether importations of large quantities of whisky will be permitted before the repeal of the amendment. Applications have been made to the treasury for permission to import on the ground that the domestic supply is inadequate to meet the demand.

Ishii Proposes U. S.-Japanese Anti-War Pact

TOKIO, Oct. 6.—Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, who returned to Japan today from the world economic conference at London, put the question of improving relations with the United States above all others in importance for Japan.

The former ambassador to the United States said he was shocked to find people talking of war with the United States. He said that to think of such a thing was not only ridiculous but tragic. His remarks, which were played up in all the newspapers here, gave the jingoists who have been making a hullabaloo about the war danger a severe blow.

(Viscount Ishii was in Chicago for a short visit last May, on his way to the London economic conference. He also visited Washington, D. C., where he discussed Japanese-American relations with President Roosevelt.)

Advocates Arbitration Pact.

Viscount Ishii advocated an arbitration pact between the United States and Japan. He said he is convinced there is ample grounds at present for such an agreement. He said such a pact would guarantee peace at a time when militarists and jingoists are making the best of the war fear to advance their own ends.

Viscount Ishii declared that he will consult with Foreign Minister Koki Hirota and Premier Makoto Saito and urge such a pact. Hirota is understood to be not only favorably inclined, but anxious for a pact, and it is generally felt that Japan will sound Washington on this matter shortly.

Says Some Favor War.

Declaring that a war between the United States and Japan will plunge the victor as well as the vanquished into a position from which they will not recover for generations, Viscount Ishii pointed out that some countries would welcome a Japanese-American war. He called attention to the fact that such papers as the London Express were striving to create even greater strain on the relations between the two countries.

"I am convinced war cannot occur," he declared, "but even if it is declared I do not think the American fleet will come to Japan or the Japanese fleet go to America. War thus will be reduced to disastrous submarine and destroyer attacks on merchant fleets, causing permanent ruination of the trade of both countries and enabling others to win."

Cut Passenger Fares on Rail Lines in West

Passenger fares will be radically reduced and the Pullman surcharge will be eliminated for an experimental period of six months as a result of action taken yesterday by the Western Association of Railway Executives. The reductions are to be effective Dec. 1.

Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the association, following a meeting of the executives at the Union League club, said:

"The Pullman surcharge now received by the railways will be eliminated.

"The present basic passenger rate of 3.6 cents per mile will be reduced to 3 cents per mile for one way tickets, and to 2½ cents per mile for round trip tickets with a time limit in excess of 10 days. Furthermore, a rate of 2 cents a mile may be made by individual roads at their discretion for round trip tickets with a 10 day limit. All of these tickets will be honored in all classes of equipment for one way travel.

It Is an Experiment.

"These reduced fares will be instituted as a group experiment to increase railway passenger travel throughout the entire western district. Individual roads in the west and in other parts of the country as well have experimented with various levels of passenger fares, and nation-wide reductions in fares have been made to and from Chicago ever since the opening of A Century of Progress. In general, these experiments have shown favorable results."

The Pullman surcharge, which is one-half the regular Pullman fare, and the 3.6 cents a mile rate were put into effect shortly after the war to compensate the roads for wage increases. Before the war rates charged by the roads varied in the various parts of the country.

Meet Motor Competition.

The development of the automobile and the bus has made serious inroads on the railroads' passenger business. Officials of the roads in the past were uncertain as to how to offset their losses. Some executives felt that if rates were reduced to a point where railway travel would be as cheap, or nearly as cheap, as that in automobiles and buses, the railroads would be able to regain their business. Others believed that the business had been lost irretrievably and that reducing fares would merely reduce revenues.

However, in recent months sentiment in the west has swung to the lower rates and one executive stated recently that about 98 per cent of the western mileage favored the cuts.

Chicago business leaders have stated that the city's position would be greatly strengthened by lower passenger fares, since they would make it easier for buyers and merchants to come here.

The presidents of the eastern railroads are scheduled to meet next week to act on rates in their territory.

'Sleep Sickness' Epidemic Broken; Death Toll 194

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Dr. Joseph Bredeck, St. Louis health commissioner, said tonight the sleeping sickness epidemic which began in mid-July had ended. Dr. Bredeck said sporadic cases would continue to be reported, "but the disease is definitely out of the epidemic stage." Since the outbreak of the epidemic 522 cases have been reported in St. Louis and 520 in St. Louis county, with 194 fatalities.

LEBENSBERGER MURDERED, U. S. ATTORNEY HINTS

BULLETIN.

Denver, Oct. 7 (Saturday)—(A P)—U. S. District Attorney Thomas Morrissey announced today the $500,000 mail robbery in Chicago last December was virtually solved with the arrest here of three men and a woman and the death by shooting in Chicago of Edgar B. Lebensberger. Those held are: Raymond Holwell, 44, Denver stock promoter; Theodore Norell, 27, Denver; Mrs. Bernice Sullivan, 32, of Chicago, who, officers said, resided at Norell's home with his mother; Francis Sullivan, 43, of Chicago, husband of Mrs. Sullivan. Morrissey said Robert E. Bartlett, former private detective, is sought here for questioning in connection with the case.

Edgar B. Lebensberger, 40 years old, wealthy owner of the 225 club, a night club at 225 East Superior street, was indicted by the federal government late yesterday with two other men, one of them John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, former state representative, on charges of complicity in the $500,000 loop mail robbery of last Dec. 6.

The action, however, was meaningless in the case of Lebensberger. He was already dead.

Slain in Home.

Six hours before the indictment was filed with Federal Judge John P. Barnes, Lebensberger was found shot to death in his home at 1258 Lake Shore drive, a gold coast residence, the facade of which is a replica of the reputed Venetian abode of the tragic Desdemona, ill fated figure in Shakespeare's "Othello."

Lebensberger's death, a sensation, was made more extraordinary by his posthumous indictment. Even as the indictment was being returned a coroner's jury perfunctorily returned a verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane." Late last night it was suggested that the night club owner did not die by his own hand—that he was murdered.

Green Hints Murder.

The hint of murder was made by United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green, who for several months had been investigating Lebensberger's alleged connections with "Boss" McLaughlin and the mail holdup.

"I can think of several reasons why Lebensberger may have been murdered, according to the code of the underworld," said Mr. Green. "However, whether he was slain by some one else or killed himself I cannot say because I do not know all the facts in the case."

Witness for United States.

The "reasons" why the night club owner could have been the target of an assassin's gun were woven into the $500,000 mail robbery, the district attorney admitted. He refused to divulge them.

It was learned from a reliable source, however, that the federal authorities might possibly have planned to use Lebensberger as a government witness in the case. This, it was pointed out by the same informant, would easily have been a substantial reason.

There are other elements to provide a basis for investigation of a murder theory, government agents and police admitted, although the latter are satisfied Lebensberger killed himself. Lebensberger was shot in the left side of the head. Police have been told he was right handed, although members of the dead man's family asserted he was left handed. It was pointed out that if he were right handed he probably would have shot himself in the right side of the head.

Another circumstance, revealed in a report of Dr. T. J. Coogan of the Drake hotel to State's Attorney Courtney, is the absence or virtual absence of powder burns around the wound.

It is known that the federal authorities are interested in learning the exact whereabouts of the members of Lebensberger's household at the time of his death. The widow, Louella, has told police she was at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Daniels, 2440 Lake View avenue, at the time, seeking her aid in dissuading Lebensberger from committing suicide as he had been threatening to do in recent weeks.

Sees Motive for Suicide.

Such knowledge of the whereabouts of the family as is known was revealed at the inquest. Mrs. Lebensberger, the widow, appeared as the chief witness. Her husband was far from affluent, she testified, indicating that this was a motive for suicide.

"Mr. Lebensberger was quite depressed," she testified. "He had been struggling to make both ends meet and had been subjected to frequent spells of despondency. This has been going on for years."

Lebensberger had such a spell in the morning, she continued, and she went to Mrs. Daniel's apartment for help. While there a telephone call was made to the Lebensberger home, only to learn from Nils Lindberg, the butler, that Lebensberger was already dead.

Known to Gambling Fraternity.

The federal indictment of Lebensberger and McLaughlin linked two names well known to the gambling fraternity in Chicago, and in the case of one name—that of McLaughlin—long familiar in old west side politics. It threatened also to bring in the name of Gus Winkler, who in recent years has been involved in various government investigations dealing with bond thefts.

The third man named in the indictment with the night club owner and McLaughlin is Joe Sans, credit manager in Lebensberger's clubs. He and McLaughlin were picked up by federal agents immediately after being indicted and taken for safe keeping to the Du Page county jail at Wheaton when they failed to furnish $50,000 bonds.

U. S. Investigates "Leak."

The two were caught unawares. Lebensberger obviously had had word of the impending action. District Attorney Green admitted as much. Lebensberger knew on Thursday night that he was to be indicted yesterday, according to Mr. Green. Where and how he received the information is now being investigated. Incidentally, this apparent knowledge on his part is considered the immediate motive in the suicide theory.

The robbery in connection with which Lebensberger, McLaughlin, and Sans were indicted was committed about 6:56 a. m. Dec. 6, 1932, at Adams and Clark streets, a band of gunmen holding up two postal employés, Fred Voelsch, a carrier, and Frank Stasny, a guard, and snatching from Voelsch a satchel containing $500,000 in bonds.

Recover $150,000 in Loot.

Of this amount $200,000 was negotiable, $115,000 being in obligations of the government. Thus far $150,000 of the loot has been recovered, and these recovered securities figured largely in developing evidence against the three men indicted, it is said.

The exact status of each of them in the plot was not defined by Mr. Green except that they allegedly figured in schemes to dispose of much more than $50,000 of the loot. McLaughlin was described as a prime mover in the case. None of the three is involved in the actual robbery, according to federal authorities.

"I cannot give out any details on Lebensberger, McLaughlin, or Sans," explained District Attorney Green. "Our investigation is still continuing and the surface has just been scratched. There will be further action."

The further action, it is believed, refers to a secret indictment, already on file, and to possible additional indictments. The secret document, reports say, names 30 men, some of them involved allegedly in the robbery or the disposal and attempted disposal of loot.

Names Bond Salesman.

One of those named in the secret indictment is Solomon Sterns, a bond salesman. This was revealed with his arrest and release on bonds of $10,000. Such bail indicates that the charge against him is possession of stolen securities. Incidentally, records show that Clarke B. Richie, an attorney at 38 South Dearborn street, was arrested some time ago and released on $5,000 bond for possessing stolen securities, and it is presumed that he, like Sterns, was named in the secret indictment.

McLaughlin's and Lebensberger's careers varied except that they had a common background in gambling activities. Lebensberger was for years allied with Ted Newberry, north side gangster, slain last spring. Questioned in connection with Newberry's murder, Lebensberger frankly admitted that he and Newberry had been partners in the 225 club.

Lebensberger was the son of Lafayette Lebensberger, a wealthy distiller. He is reputed to have inherited a large fortune and to have kept it. His widow is the former wife of George Faecher, also a distiller.

Lebensberger had grandiose dreams despite his associations. He lived in a smart house on the drive and ran what was considered a swanky club. Even recently his ambitions broadened and only last Tuesday formal announcement was made that he had taken over the lease of the Opera club property at 18 Walton place from Hiram Elisha Foster. Reports were that he planned to convert the place into a fashionable night club, and the same reports mentioned the name of Gus Winkler as a possible associate. Papers filed in the leasing showed that Lebensberger was to pay $18,000 rental for one year.

Career of McLaughlin.

"Boss" McLaughlin's career is unstudded with such aristocratic ambitions. He started on the west side, and it was his boast that he was west side born and reared. In recent years, it was reported, he had branched out into the north side, but in gambling enterprises.

The "boss'" start was in politics. He was first west town supervisor, then committeeman of the 13th ward. In 1906 he was elected as Democratic representative to the state legislature from the 19th senatorial district. He held that office for nearly a decade.

At the height of his power he operated a materials contracting company, but about the time the war broke out he was beset by labor troubles, and also difficulties—in the public contract line—with the then state's attorney, Maclay Hoyne.

His descent from political power began then, and since McLaughlin has had little influence in politics, except, perhaps, through old friendships with a scattering of old timers. His political decline marked his gambling rise. In 1923 he was indicted for violation of the federal dry law, and on a plea of guilty paid a $1,000 fine.

WALSH INDIGNANT OVER QUICK WORK OF GRAND JURORS

Coroner Frank J. Walsh was indignant yesterday when he opened an inquest into the death of Clara Rowe, 17 years old, whose body was found in a south side swamp, and discovered that the grand jury had already acted in the case without waiting for recommendations from his jury.

The police did not produce the witnesses and Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan told Walsh that true bills had already been voted. The bills, it is reported, name Dr. Morris Reich, 13401 Brandon avenue, and Belinda Cleeves, operator of a "recuperation home" at 13309 Buffalo avenue, on charges of murder by abortion.

Coroner Walsh continued the inquest to Monday morning, ordering police to have witnesses there at that time. He said: "We're going to have an inquest anyway. I took an oath of office and I'm going to uphold my office."

COURT SLAYER'S EXECUTION IS DELAYED BY WRIT

Scheck to Trial Monday for Another Killing.

John Scheck, who is under sentence to die in the electric chair for the courtroom murder of Policeman John G. Sevick, was granted a writ of supersedeas yesterday by the state Supreme court. The execution, which was scheduled for next Friday, will be delayed for at least a month until final disposition of the case.

"That's great," was the only comment of Scheck when he was given the news in the county jail.

The murder of Policeman Sevick started the war on crime by the state's attorney and the judges of the Criminal court. Some one smuggled a gun as he awaited trial on a robbery charge in the prisoners' inclosure off the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Molthrop. As Scheck made a break for freedom, Policeman Sevick, present in the courtroom, drew his revolver and was shot to death by Scheck.

As the news of the granting of the writ to Scheck reached the Criminal court building the state's attorney was preparing to press another murder charge against Scheck and two companions next Monday. Scheck, Carl Grundhoefer, and Frank Kegolvitz are to be tried in the court of Judge William V. Brothers on charges of killing Harry J. Mueller, cashier of a Niles Center bank, in a robbery.

Defense Moves for Delay.

A defense move yesterday indicated that the defendants' attorneys would place every obstacle in the path of early trial of the case. Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane filed a petition in behalf of Keglovitz for a change of venue from Cook county. The petition asserted that the defendant would be unable to get a fair and impartial trial in Cook county because of the recent action of Judge Benjamin Epstein and Judge Thomas A. Green in reprimanding juries. Judge Epstein criticized a jury for fixing light sentences in a murder case and another jury was assailed by Judge Green for the acquitttal of Gus Winkler, north side gangster, on a vagrancy charge.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan announced that he would resist the motion on Monday.

A similar motion was led by the same attorneys in behalf of Mrs. Margaret Marvin, who was arraigned before Judge Thomas J. Lynch on a charge of larceny. This motion, while it did not ask that the case be taken out of Cook county, demanded long continuance on the ground that Mrs. Marvin could not get a fair trial. The petition said that "jurors would not act fearlessly, because of the belief that they would be subject to the same treatment" as that given the reprimanded jurors. Judge Lynch announced he would rule on the motion on Oct. 18.

Robber Is Sentenced.

Walter Bellows, 21 years old, was sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Harry B. Miller for the robbery on April 23 of Leonard Swigert, north side district circulation manager for THE TRIBUNE. Bellows and Clifford Hilbert, 22 years old, forced Swigert into the back of his automobile at Malden street and Wilson avenue and took $20 from him.

The hoodlums then started to drive away with Swigert in the back seat. The automobile passed a squad car and Swigert swung his fist to Bellows' jaw, knocked the hoodlum's pistol to the floor, pulled the ignition keys from their place, and shouted for help. Bellows escaped, but was arrested on information given by Hilbert, who was seized by Swigert and the police. Hilbert has started serving a sentence of one to twenty years in the penitentiary.

Five Other Sentences.

This sentence and five others yesterday raised to 386 the number of criminals sentenced since the beginning of the war on crime. The others sentenced are

HENRY WILDER, 29 years old; ROBERT CAMERON, 27 years old; and ROBERT NOSTISCH, 30 years old, sentenced to 1 to 5 years each by Judge Francis B. Allegretti for the attempted burglary, on Sept. 8, of a Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea store at 11058 Vincennes avenue.

BENNY LEONARD, 17 years old, sentenced to 1 year to life by Judge Thomas J. Lynch for the burglary, on Aug. 6, of the Ward Clothing store at 210 South Halsted street. Leonard and several others took 110 suits of clothing after breaking a window of the store. In escaping they fired a shot at Joseph Hoyes, a peddler, who was passing. Leonard was captured later when he tried to sell one of the suits to Hoyes in a West Madison street saloon.

LEVI SHINNALL, 63 years old, a Negro, sentenced to 1 to 14 years by Judge Donald S. McKinlay for manslaughter. Shinall stabbed Gordan Perkins, 64 years old, colored, to death in a quarrel at the home of the latter at 2931 South Dearborn street.

A LEGIONNAIRE KEEPS UP CELEBRATION, EVEN WITHOUT HIS PANTS!

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—A rest which Andrew Wester, 51, of Le Center, Minn., and three companion veterans from the same town sought in a Milwaukee hotel after an eventful week at the national convention of the American Legion at Chicago, proved far from restful.

At 5:30 p. m., a half hour after they had registered and had been assigned rooms at the Belmont hotel, Wester created a furore when he strode through the hotel lobby without trousers and with shirt tail flapping and continued his promenade out into North 4th street and along West Wisconsin avenue.

For two succeeding hours his companions were trying to explain the incident at central police station and to provide the bail necessary to release their companion.

According to the story told police, Wester had not yet fully recuperated from his merry making when he left Chicago. He wanted to keep the convention going wherever and whenever he had the opportunity, even up to and into Le Center. The stop at a hotel was decided upon at a council of war of Andrew's three companions.

And after they had registered—with two men assigned to each room—it was decided to make the rest compulsory on Andrew's part by hiding his pants.

Detectives Michael Curley and John McCarthy, attracted by a general exodus of women from one side of West Wisconsin avenue, took charge of Wester a few minutes after the start of his excursion.

COURT TO RULE ON VALIDITY OF VAGABOND LAW

High Tribunal Cuts Bond of Jailed Hoodlum.

Possibility of an early Supreme court ruling on the constitutionality of the new criminal reputation vagrancy law was seen yesterday in the action of the court in granting a writ of supersedeas to Walter Guida, northwest side gunman.

The Supreme court reduced the bond of $10,000, required by Judge Thomas A. Green, to $2,000 pending a ruling in the case. Guida, who has been in the house of correction since his conviction and sentence to serve six months as a vagrant on Aug. 31, was released yesterday after his attorneys, James M. Burke and George Crane, put up the new bond.

Attorney Burke told Judge Green that the defense attack on the constitutionality of the law was squarely before the Supreme court and a ruling is expected either this month or during the December term. Attorneys have held unconstitutional the part of the new state law that reads: "All persons who . . . are reputed to be habitual violators of the criminal laws of the state or the United States . . . are declared to be vagabonds."

This places the burden of proof on the defendants, defense attorneys have said, in violation of fundamental principles of criminal law.

Gus Winkler, north side gang leader, who was found not guilty under the new vagrancy law a week ago, surrendered yesterday before Judge Green on second vagrancy warrant issued for his arrest. Judge Green held, in issuing the new warrant, that the first warrant covered the hoodlum's activities prior to Aug. 25. The Judge said that the new charge applies to Winkler's activities since that time, during which period government agents seized several guns in a raid on his apartment.

Winkler posted bond of $10,000 and the case was continued until Dec. 13. The delay was asked by Defense Attorney W. W. Smith to await expected ruling by the Supreme court on Winkler's appeal from a sentence of one year for carrying concealed weapons.

Bubs Quinlan Surrenders.

Michael [Bubs] Quinlan, south side hoodlum, surrendered yesterday in the Criminal court building on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the death two years ago of James Borkovec. Quinlan posted bond of $7,500 and was released. Quinlan, who had escaped prosecution for 18 months, was recommended held to the grand jury Thursday by a coroner's jury.

Joe Saltis, once power in south side beer circles, was seized for investigation yesterday by Sergts. Roy Van Herrik and James Bresnahan at Randolph and Clark streets. Trial of Saltis under the new vagrancy law is pending in the Felony court.

"You guys give me a pain," Saltis told the policemen. "Im going to sue you for always annoying me."

SURPRISE MOVE BY STATE UPSETS RACKET DEFENSE

Raber Moves to Force Early Trial.

A surprise move by Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber yesterday upset defense plans to delay the trial of 20 defendants charged with conspiracy to terrorize Chicago business men. The prosecutor asked Judge Walter P. Steffen to grant a severance in the case of Marshall Rose, field secretary of the Cook County Hand Laundry association.

Rose and 18 other defendants had asked changes of venue and each defendant had filed a petition naming two judges said to be prejudiced against him. Rose was the only defendant to name Judge Steffen as prejudiced. If the severance is granted the other 19 defendants may be forced to immediate trial before Judge Steffen.

Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th], Benjamin M. Squires, former czar of the cleaning and dyeing industry in Chicago, and Aaron Sapiro, New York attorney, who are among the 24 defendants in the case, did not join the others in the demand for a change of venue.

Each Names Different Judge.

"It is peculiar that each of the defendants named a different judge," Prosecutor Raber told the court. "It looks as though the defendants are jockeying to get the cases assigned to a judge of their own selection."

Prosecutor Raber's motion drew a storm of protest from the defense attorneys, who argued that the petitions were filed in good faith. Attorney Joseph Harrington held that the only course open to Judge Steffen under the law is to send the case back to the chief justice for reassignment.

Attorney Harrington termed the move of the state "deliberate entrapment." State's Attorney Courtney, who has accompanied the state trial lawyers into the court, demanded that the defense "bring it out if there is any connivance or entrapment."

Judge Steffen said that the move of Prosecutor Raber was as "much of a surprise to him as to the defense." He indicated that he would retain jurisdiction if one of the defendants would make a public statement concerning the fairness of the court.

Frequent Dealings with Defendant.

"I have personally known this defendant for more than 20 years and have had frequent business and political dealings with him," Judge Steffen said. "I am unwilling to preside at the trial until I receive a frank expression from this defendant as to whether or not he believes the court prejudiced."

It was believed that Judge Steffen referred to Ald. Nelson. The judge continued the hearing until Tuesday and announced that he would rule on Prosecutor Raber's motion at that time. All the defendants were in court with the exception of Al Capone, who is in Atlanta penitentiary; Murray Humphries, public enemy No. 1, who has never been apprehended, and two other minor figures who are being sought.

Face Life Sentences in Urschel Case.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 6.—(AP)—District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde announced tonight that Kathryn Kelly will plead guilty along with her husband, George [Machine Gun] Kelly, tomorrow, thus disposing of the last of the principals indicted for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, last July 22.

An announcement followed a series of conferences with Mrs. Kelly in the county jail late today and came after James H. Mathers, attorney for Kelly, had said the machine gunner would plead guilty in an effort to save his wife from punishment.

Overrules New Trial Plea.

Seven others convicted in the kidnaping also will come before Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught tomorrow for sentencing. Among them is Mrs. Kelly's mother, Mrs. R. G. Shannon.

Motions for new trials and arrest of judgment filed in behalf of the seven were overruled by Judge Vaught today.

John V. Roberts, attorney for Mrs. Kelly, said he could not substantiate the announcement that she would plead guilty.

"I talked to her at 2 o'clock this afternoon and at that time she said she would stand trial," he said.

The Kellys, pleading guilty, would stand before the bar tomorrow to receive their sentences with Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon and Shannon's son, Armon, on whose Paradise, Tex., farm Urschel was held captive nine days last July; Harvey Bailey alleged "brains" of the gang; Albert Bates, Edward "Barney" Berman, and Clifford Skelly.

In the first trial Bates was pointed out by several witnesses, including Urschel, as one of the actual kidnapers. Kelly also was named throughout the trial as one of the kidnapers.

Life imprisonment is the maximum penalty under the new "Lindbergh" abduction statute, which was attacked by defense attorneys today as unconstitutional.

Sam Sayers and M. W. Burch, representing the Shannons, argued that the law was unconstitutional because it covered two subjects instead of one—transportation of a person illegally in interstate commerce and an agreement by two or more persons to commit an overt act.

SIX LUER KIDNAPERS DENIED NEW TRIALS AND ARE SENTENCED

Edwardsville, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Six convicted kidnapers of August Luer, Alton banker and meat packer, were denied new trials by Judge D. H. Mudge, in the Madison county Circuit court today after he had heard argument of lawyers who filed motions for the defendants.

Attorneys said that appeals to the Illinois Supreme court may be taken in behalf of some of the defendants.

Sheriff Peter Fitzgerald said the prisoners will be taken to prison next week. Mrs. Lillian Chessen, East Alton, will be taken to Dwight to serve her life term. The other five will be taken to Chester penitentiary until they are assigned. They are Randol Eugene Norvell, Nameoki and Percy M. Fitzgerald, St. Louis, given life terms; Mike Musila, Granite City, twenty years; Charles Chessen, East Alton, and Christ Nicola Gitcho, Madison, five years.

3,000,000 IDLE RECOVER JOBS, A. F. OF L. REPORTS

Pay Rolls Gain; Roosevelt Acts to End Strike.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—An upward trend in employment and other business indices was reported today as President Roosevelt moved to remove the Pennsylvania coal-steel strike as a major obstacle to the recovery program.

After conferences with Hugh S. Johnson, the NRA chief, and Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Mr. Roosevelt summoned to the White House tomorrow outstanding spokesmen of the powerful steel industry.

Officials, while declining to be quoted publicly, made no secret of their anxiety over the strikes milling about the steel owned bituminous coal mines and the chief executive once more was represented as ready to throw the entire influence of his office behind the demand for peace.

Shorter Working Hours.

From three sources, meanwhile, came reports of a shift toward better times. They were:

The American Federation of Labor, in its monthly survey, said while "the business mood at present is one of uncertainty," employment was still increasing, work hours being shortened and pay rolls expanded.

"Employment," the report states, "is still increasing, work hours have been shortened from an average of 42.8 a week in July to 39.6 in August, creating many new jobs, so that by the end of September the number of unemployed back at work was well over 3,000,000.

The American Railway association announced loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Sept. 30 were 661,827, an increase of 9,158 over the preceding week and 40,169 over the corresponding week of last year.

Pay Rolls Mount.

Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the NRA's industrial advisory board, made public a report by the cotton textile industry showing an increase in employment of 145,000 from March to September and that pay rolls had mounted from $12,800,000 monthly to $27,000,000.

Despite these favorable indications the White House announced the appointment by President Roosevelt of four additional members of the national labor board to cope with the increasing number of strikes coming up for settlement.

E. N. Hurley Named.

Acting at the request of Senator Wagner of New York, the chairman, Mr. Roosevelt raised the board's personnel from seven to eleven, with the appointment of Austin Finch of Thomasville, N. C., and Edward N. Hurley of Chicago to represent employers, and George L. Berry, head of the pressmen's union, and Francis J. Haas, Catholic University of Washington economics professor, to speak for labor. All are members of the NRA advisory boards.

Asserting the board was proving a great force in settling industrial disputes, Wagner said its work had increased until aid was needed. With the creation over the country, however, of boards of primary jurisdiction, Wagner hopes many difficulties will be settled at their source and not have to be referred to Washington.

Pickets Extend Activities.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Comparative calm after yesterday's sudden violence at a steel mill reigned in the great coal fields of western Pennsylvania tonight.

Some mines were reported to have resumed operations, but the great majority of the idle diggers not only remained out, but extended their picketing to several additional plants and to the important rail artery into West Virginia.

A flurry of excitement occurred when pickets appeared at the Brownsville shops of the Monongahela railway, over which 650 cars of coal a day have been moving into the Pittsburgh area. The pickets prevented 40 of the 150 shop workers from going to their jobs, but after state troopers escorted train crews to the yards the picket lines dwindled considerably.

NEGRO KILLED IN SALOON.

HORNER CLOSES MINES PENDING PEACE PARLEYS

Troops Enforce Truce and Holiday.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Orders from Gov. Horner that Peabody mine No. 43 remain closed pending Chicago conferences between warring miners' unions brought a lessening of tension in this excited area today. Yesterday the truculent Progressive Miners' union, besieged United Mine Workers at the Peabody pit and 16 men were wounded before militiamen arrived and sent the Progressive pickets scurrying into the Ozark foothills.

The governor's orders stopping Williamson county miners from entering Saline county to work at No. 43 undoubtedly prevented further bloodshed yesterday. Today Mr. Horner issued the same order, through Adjt. Gen. Black to Lieut. Col. Robert W. Davis of Carbondale, who commands 350 guardsmen now on duty in Saline county.

Troops Will Remain.

The mine will thus be closed at least until Monday and the troops will remain. Observers believe that there will be no serious trouble as long as they are quartered in the county. Such a situation prevails at Taylorville, where four Peabody mines have been guarded by militiamen for almost a year. Unless the Chicago conferences bring peace between the unions Harrisburg also seems destined for a spell of troop occupancy.

Until yesterday there were seven mines working in Saline and six of them were manned by Progressives. The seventh, No. 43, located one mile west of Harrisburg, has preserved the Peabody contract with the United Mine Workers by employing only men affiliated with that union. It did not give work to Progressives.

Sympathies with Progressives.

Unlike Christian county, of which Taylorville is the seat, the public sympathies here in Saline seem all with the Progressives. It was not difficult, then, to build up a sentiment against the Williamson miners who came across the county line to work.

This crystallized Wednesday night, when more than 1,500 Progressives picketed the roadside leading into the mine and began a form of pot-shot guerrilla warfare which was answered with spirit from the fifty men waiting to go to work as a night shift.

Lieut. Col. Davis arrived from Carbondale in a hurry and, acting upon orders from Springfield, told the Williamson miners to remain in their own county.

REPORT SULLIVAN STILL HEADS LIST FOR U. S. BENCH

Washington dispatches yesterday said it had been learned on good authority that the name of Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan still heads the list of those proposed for appointment to the federal bench in Cook county.

Recently rumors from various sources placed other Chicago lawyers in the lead for this honor and went on to say that Judge Sullivan had asked that his name be withdrawn from consideration. He has made no such request and it is possible that his appointment will be announced soon.

There are two vacancies to be filled. The latest report is that for reasons of economies which will be made possible by the certain reduction of court work by the approaching repeal of prohibition the second place may not be filled this year.

ASKS FOR DATA ON RECOGNITION OF SOVIET RUSSIA

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Despite the opposition of the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor, renewed this week, President Roosevelt has called for a complete memorandum on the question of Russian recognition.

In high administration circles it was said that the question "is moving into advanced stages and the chances are fifty-fifty" that it will be taken up shortly for disposition.

It was indicated, however, that, while the decision lay with the President, it was not likely that the quick and unconditional recognition which has been strongly urged would be granted. Upon the other hand it appeared probable that final action would be reached through negotiations covering a number of points of difference requiring time to adjust.

Situation Summed Up.

The situation at the moment is this:

Russia desires diplomatic recognition and credits which would enable her to make purchases of goods she needs, amounting, according to a figure given by M. Litvinoff, commissar of foreign affairs, at the London conference, to a billion dollars.

America, upon her part, desires to recognize Russia because hers is a de facto government and because diplomatic relations with her open up the way for full and profitable commercial relations.

Russia's present policy is to give little trade without recognition; America's policy up to the present has been to give no recognition unless Russia was willing to make certain guarantees and revoke certain repudiations.

Demands on Russia.

Every secretary of state since the soviet union came into being has enunciated America's unwillingness to recognize Russia unless the soviet authorities:

Restore confiscated property of American citizens or make compensation amounting in principal to about 300 million dollars.

Repeal the decree repudiating Russia's obligation to this country, a principal sum of 187 million dollars lent to the Kerensky government.

Repeal the decree repudiating the government bonds held by individuals in this country, totaling about 88 million dollars.

Some government officials closest to the question feel that assurance on the point of communistic propaganda would be sufficient, because, they suggest, Russia is so occupied with her own success now that she has neither the time, the method, nor the means to agitate for the "world revolution" which was part of her doctrine when America's Russian policy was formulated.

Senator J. T. Robinson Warns Against Inflation

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—On returning from Europe, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, said he was convinced that currency inflation "as commonly proposed" is likely to do more harm than good to the cause of recovery.

The Arkansas senator declared that in the past the printing of more money "avowedly for inflationary purposes" had invariably led to disaster.

TWO CANS OF POISON AFLOAT IN HARBOR AS MENACE TO LIFE

San Pedro, Cal., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Floating somewhere in the San Pedro harbor tonight were two metal cylinders which health authorities said will bring instant death to any one who opens them without proper precautions.

Each is filled with poison. They were being taken aboard the Italian ship Fella by George Arnold, ship fumigator employed by the federal department of health, when the gangway collapsed.

The cans went overboard and were swept away by the current. Arnold suffered slight injuries in a fall to the wharf.

Health department officials said the contents of each can are sufficient to kill every living thing in a ship's hold. Both cans bore paper labels, but these probably were soaked off in a brief time. A search of the harbor was started.

PRIEST UPHOLDS UNIONIZATION OF EVERY INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Never was the need for complete unionization in the United States more urgent than at this time, according to Father Francis J. Haas, who was appointed by President Roosevelt today to the national labor board.

Father Haas, a member of the labor advisory board of the NRA, told the forty-third annual convention of the American Federation of Labor that complete unionization was imperative in order that the labor gains under the recovery act might parallel concessions to industry, which is permitted to organize for maintenance of price and restriction of output.

In the past, declared the speaker, the national economy was open shop, backed by government sanction.

By this Father Haas, who is director of the National Catholic School of Social Service, meant that employers were sustained in their efforts to prevent workers' organization by "the blacklist, the 'yellow dog' contract, the injunction or the threat of it, the spy, the company union and the welfare plan."

STATE FUND LOW; ASK $2,130,000 AS U. S. RELIEF LOAN

Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, announced yesterday that funds of the organization are so low he will ask Gov. Horner to petition the federal relief officials for a loan of $2,130,000 to be expended during the last half of October.

Mr. Dunham said that he was given authority for the request by the commission at a meeting yesterday afternoon. He explained that the commission will receive $2,250,000 in state sales tax funds on Oct. 15. He added that the tax has not yet been declared constitutional and the relief commission therefore hesitates to use the money until this has been decided by the courts. The relief bond issue which is under consideration by the general assembly in special session at Springfield would not bring in funds to the relief commission until Nov. 15, Mr. Dunham said, even though favorable action is taken by the legislature within the next few days.

Leave Mill to Eat Melons; Then Plant Boiler Explodes

Medford, Ore., Oct. 6.—(AP)—E. P. Dutton, owner of a sawmill, said a boy came to the plant with a load of watermelons and the men were given a few minutes off the job to eat them. No sooner had they left than the boiler blew up.

NEGROES TO BE TAUGHT RIGHTS UNDER NEW DEAL

Urban League Organizes National Campaign.

A nation-wide educational program to acquaint Negroes with the laws respecting the NRA codes, relief, reemployment, and mortgage loans, and the methods to be followed to obtain the benefits of the various acts, was begun yesterday at the opening session of the western conference of the National Urban league, meeting at 510 East 51st street. Fifty delegates participated in the discussions.

The educational program will be conducted by the recently organized state emergency advisory councils for Negroes, which are affiliated with a national organization. The state councils are to organize local boards. The purpose of the councils is twofold: To enlist the support of Negroes in complying with the provisions and regulations of the NRA and to receive complaints of violations concerning Negoes and to submit them to the local NRA compliance board.

Illinois Chairman Named.

Dr. M. O. Bousfield, a member of the board of directors of the Chicago Urban league, has been selected to head the Illinois council.

T. Arnold Hill of Washington, D. C., director of the department of industrial relations of the National Urban league and the national organizer of the emergency advisory councils, in a speech at a dinner meeting last night at the Vincennes hotel, 601 East 38th street, attacked the national recovery administration as failing to recognize the needs of Negroes.

No Negroes on National Board.

"The Negro point of view is not represented by a member of his race on the labor advisory board, the consumer's advisory board, or the industrial advisory board," said Hill. "I know of but one local compliance board with a Negro member. The Negro is 11 per cent of the working population of the country. The protection of five and one-half million Negro workers is rightly expected from the government through its department of labor."

Resolutions on differential wages, organized labor, reemployment, and scholarships for Negroes will be acted upon at today's sessions.

A Few Get Full Salaries, County Board Told.

Judges Denis E. Sullivan and James J. Kelly of the Superior court went before members of the county board yesterday and charged that the 15 per cent pay cut imposed on the judges was "not on the square." The judges charged that some members of their court were receiving full pay, while others were accepting the reduction.

The two jurists, acting as spokesmen for 27 judges in the Superior court, demanded that all the judges be paid in full as their "constitutional right." Emmett Whealan, president of the board, to whom the protests were directed, was unmoved and asserted that County Treasurer McDonough, who pays the judges, would have to supply out of his own pocket any salaries which he has paid in full.

Refuse to Mention Names.

The judges in making their assertions that some of their colleagues were receiving full salaries, refused to mention names. The charges were made at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and it was impossible to find any one in the county treasurer's office who could supply a list of judges receiving full salaries. Neither the treasurer nor his personal secretary, Edward McCabe was there.

The salaries of the judges are fixed by statute. All the judges of the Superior court, except two who were chosen at the last election, receive $15,000 annually. Of this amount $8,000 is paid by the state and $7,000 by the county. The county reduction applies only to the $7,000, and reduces the monthly county pay checks from $584.44 to $495. The legislature at its last session reduced the salaries of all judges 10 per cent, but the reduction applies only to those chosen at the last election or subsequently.

Protest at Informal Meeting.

The judges' protests were made at an informal gathering in the office of President Whealan. Beside the two judges, Commissioners Peter H. Kelly and Grace Fleming were present. They recalled that last February when the 1933 budget was prepared, the judges agreed to accept the cut.

"Sure, but that was when we thought the reduction was on the square," Judge Kelly replied. "That was before we knew some of the judges would get full pay. Now we feel that all of us should have full pay. Besides, the agreement was only oral; we signed no letter.

"In reply to the board I sent a letter stating that I'd give 15 per cent of my pay to charity, but that I would not waive it."

"Well," replied President Whealan, "we voted only so much money and the judges will have to stay within it. The treasurer will have to pay out of his own pocket any full salaries he has given out. The board will investigate this matter."

Cites Work for County.

Judge Sullivan said that the judges had brought about the payment of some $8,000,000 to the county by forcing receivers of income bearing properties to pay taxes before satisfying other liens or bills. President Whealan then pointed out that one property, the Aquitania Apartments at 832 Argyle street, owes the county $193,000 and has paid no taxes since 1924.

A checkup disclosed that the county holds a "tax" deed to this property having purchased it at a tax sale. The trustee of the property, a $3,000,000 sixteen story building, is in charge and is receiving all the present income. President Whealan announced that he would direct county tax attorneys to ask County Judge Jarecki to place the property in receivership under the Skarda law.

Seven Tax Payers Chiefs Cited on Money Shortage

Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court yesterday ordered seven directors of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for violating an injunction restraining them from taking funds from the association treasury. The citations against the directors were made returnable Oct. 18.

The taxpayers' association was a "tax strike" organization which fought a losing court battle to invalidate realty assessments. The directors are Thomas D. Collins, George F. Koester, Earle A. Shilton, Charles L. Schwerin, Jacob L. Kesner, Edward M. Bertha, and Lee J. Lesser. This group last February broke the rule of James E. Bistor, former president of the association, and John M. Pratt, former executive director, when they voted to suspend Bistor and Pratt from office

A Two Edged Injunction.

The seven directors obtained an injunction before Superior Judge William J. Lindsay restraining Bistor and Pratt and the four other directors of the association from holding a mass-meeting of the association members in the Coliseum. At the same time Judge Lindsay enjoined both groups of directors from using $200,000 in funds in the association's treasury.

Yesterday Attorneys C. W. Mulfinger and Walter Murphy, counsel for the Pratt-Bistor group, and Attorney Charles O. Rundall, representing the law firm of Watkins & Ten Hoor, who have a judgment of $38,000 against the association for services rendered, told Judge McGoorty that the seven directors had violated the injunction by withdrawing $70,000 from the funds which are kept at the Northern Trust company.

"These directors took $70,000 from the vault," Attorney Rundall said, "and have turned some of the money over to the receivers for the association, but $48,300 remains unaccounted for."

"Why, these directors ought to be cited for contempt of court," Judge McGoorty declared.

Petitions Are Signed.

"The petitions are already prepared," the attorney said. He handed up the petitions for contempt citations and Judge McGoorty signed them. None of the defendants was in court.

Two weeks ago Judge McGoorty took another step to remove Pratt and Bistor as the leaders of the association when he appointed Logan L. Mullins and George Crawley as receivers. The receivers were acceptable to both factions of the association.

Lydy & Co. Gets Injunction Against Mayor and Police

Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel yesterday granted an injunction against the city, Commissioner of Police Allman, and Mayor Kelly, restraining them and their agents from placing obstructions at the entrances and exits to four parking lots operated by R. G. Lydy and company. The company alleged that the city had refused to grant them licenses to operate the lots and that Ald. Dorsey Crowe of the 42d ward was attempting to ruin their business.

SUIT ATTACKS INDIANA TAX ON GROSS INCOME

The constitutionality of the Indiana gross income law was attacked in a petition filed in the Superior court at Hammond yesterday on behalf of ten Hammond business men and corporations.

It was contended by the plaintiffs that the law, passed at the last session of the state legislature, taxes different classes of citizens unequally and sets up arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable penalties. Also, it was asserted, these penalties are not proportioned to the offense.

Those named defendants in the suit are Gov. Paul V. McNutt, Attorney General Philip Lutz Jr., Prosecutor Robert Estill of Lake county, William Storen, and Auditor Floyd Williamson, who compose the state's treasury department.

55.6 PCT. OF 1931 TAX LEVY PAID, McDONOUGH SAYS

Announces Collections of $146,688,727.

County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday that 55.6 per cent of the total tax levy of $263,756,610 for 1931 has been collected. The collections on the 1931 levy, at the close of business on Thursday night, totaled $146,688,727. Of this amount $103,526,153 is in real estate taxes; $33,122,908 in personal property taxes, and $10,039,664 in railroad taxes. More than 57 per cent of the realty taxes has been collected.

Uncollected taxes total $117,067,882, divided as follows: Real estate taxes, $76,389,251; personal property taxes, $37,668,783, and railroad taxes, $3,009,848. The treasurer anticipated that the real estate tax collections will rise sharply this month after the Supreme court rules on the legality of the order of the board of appeals reducing by 15 per cent the assessments on the base values of homes and small flat buildings. The order involves the second installment of 1931 real estate taxes on 430,000 items of property.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs warned taxpayers yesterday that today is the deadline for the filing of 1932 personal property schedules. If the taxpayer fails to file his schedule today, the assessor, according to the statute, will have the property appraised by his office, and will add a 50 per cent penalty to the assessment. Mr. Jacobs said that 953,347 personal property schedules were mailed out this year. The assessor's records showed yesterday that only 220,874, or 23 per cent of the schedules, have been returned.

Judge Jarecki heard 600 tax receivership petitions yesterday and appointed the treasurer as receiver for 131 more properties, owing a total of $480,000 in taxes. Attorneys for other properties paid $90,000 to forestall the treasurer's appointment as receiver.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $561,137, making a total of $76,794,774 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

Oct. 6	$ 18,483	$ 49,914
Uncollected	17,199,352	45,621,283
	1930.	1931.
Oct. 6	$ 94,237	$ 398,503
Uncollected	78,437,956	75,960,748

ASSAILS JAILING WOMAN TEACHER FOR $800 DEBT

Municipal Judge N. J. Bonelli yesterday upbraided Attorney Thomas Rosenberg for his part in having Mrs. Grace Coffey, a teacher in Irving elementary school, held overnight in a police station because she could not pay a debt of $800. Technically she was held because she failed to answer a court summons on a petition to discover assets.

Mrs. Coffey is the widow of Police Sergeant Thomas Coffey, who died 18 month ago. They lost, through foreclosure, a garage at 6728 South Wabash avenue in which they had invested $16,000, and before that had given a note for $800 for interest on the mortgage. The note was purchased by Attorney William J. Robinson, who practices with Rosenberg at 33 North La Salle street.

Rosenberg took the files of the case from Judge Bonelli's court Thursday and attempted to have it set for hearing by Judge Gibson E. Gorman, who is now sitting in the Domestic Relations court, but who formerly heard a part of Mrs. Coffey' scase. Judge Gorman had continued the hearing until today.

"We might as well jail the school board as this woman," said Judge Bonelli. "You know I frown on persecuting law-abiding people who can't pay their debts in these times, and you know also that I frown on the practice of forcing debtors to turn over their insurance policies to creditors.

"That is what you wanted Mrs. Coffey to do, and you're lucky that some one isn't going to jail for contempt of court for tampering with court files."

Mrs. Coffey testified that she has $1,000 in back salary due her, but that her son, Thomas, 19 years old, is confined to his bed with infantile paralysis and she needs the money for his care.

WITNESSES LINK 'MYSTERY MAN' EFTAX TO INSULL

BY DAVID DARRAH.

Copyright: 1933, By The Chicago Tribune.

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 6.—Local Greeks today declared the statements of Constantine S. Eftax that he is not acquainted with Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities man, to be inexact. They asserted that Eftax has been seen in the company of Insull during the latter's stay here during the past year.

Eftax, in whose name a huge fund of money is on deposit at the Harris Trust and Savings bank in Chicago, was located here yesterday by THE TRIBUNE correspondent. Last Monday Samuel Ettelson, Chicago attorney, filed suit to impound the Eftax account, charging that it really was the property of Insull and that Insull was drawing upon it. Yesterday Eftax insisted that the account was his own and denied any connections with Insull.

Eftax Doing Drug Research.

Eftax, since his return to Greece from Chicago, where he formerly ran a drug store, has been doing research work in drug manufacture. It is said there is a special plant here which he is studying for the purpose of exploiting its pharmaceutical use and production. It is alleged here, but could not be verified, that Eftax's visits to Insull were for the purpose of interesting him in putting capital in the proposed new drug business.

Eftax had a further conference today with the American legation and consular authorities about getting his account in the Harris bank released. According to American consular authorities, Eftax's status as an American citizen is all right.

Inquiry at Athens banks today failed to reveal which one was handling Eftax's business here. "Don't know him," and "Never heard of him"—referring to Eftax—said American Express officials who handle Insull's mail.

Insull Is Confident.

Insull is all agog in his comfortable hospital quarters here about developments of the Eftax affair. He asserted again today that he never knew Eftax and said he had never done any business with the Harris bank.

Insull said he was feeling fine and was sure he would defeat the efforts of the American government to extradite him on charges of violating the federal bankruptcy laws.

It now appears that Thursday of next week is the likely day for Insull's hearing.

Forrest Harness, assistant United States attorney general, had a lengthy conference last evening with Prosecutor Anthony Reganakos of the Court of Appeals.

WIFE A DOCTOR HERE

Inquiries yesterday for Mrs. Constantine S. Eftax, whose husband's bank account was impounded in the belief it contained secret funds of Samuel Insull, brought replies yesterday that she is probably in Greece with her husband. She was known here as Dr. Anna S. Buehler and practiced medicine at 606 Blue Island avenue, where her husband's drug store was located. They lived at 1411 Arthur avenue. At that address it was said she had not lived there for some time. Eftax went to Greece in April, 1932, and she was supposed to have joined him there soon afterward.

Attorney Samuel Ettelson, former corporation counsel, who asked the federal court for an order restraining the removal of money from the Eftax account, said yesterday that he was awaiting a further examination of the Eftax account in the Harris Trust and Savings bank before he will make any more statements concerning the possibility of locating any funds that Insull might have cached in Chicago. Dr. Constantine G. Charal, 528 South Halsted street, friend of Eftax, said Attorney Elper F. Bippus had been retained to represent Eftax in the hearing on Ettelson's petition.

TAMMANY BOLT TO M'KEE SAID TO BE GROWING

Candidate Names It Recovery Party.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The old Tammany machine showed signs of cracking from top to bottom today as rebellion spread through the ranks and lifelong members of the organization, big and little, spoke out to declare for the election of Joseph V. McKee for mayor. The defections have taken on such proportions as to thoroughly alarm Tammany and Mayor John P. O'Brien.

Gaining momentum every hour as new support falls in line, Mr. McKee today announced that the name adopted for this campaign is to be the Recovery party and that his organization is going into the regular forces in every assembly district.

Saxe for McKee.

John Saxe, former state senator and for years chairman of the Tammany law committee, joined the McKee forces today. He was counsel for Tammany Hall in the litigation over a mayor after Walker quit. The Oneida club of the Second district in Brooklyn voted 1,000 strong to go over to McKee. This is one of the first regular organizations to bolt.

"The desertions of regulars from Tammany are growing every hour," McKee said. "The new executive committee will be made up largely from the district regulars. Names will be made public in short order. I am more than delighted with the progress we are making."

Curry Strikes Back.

While waiting for Mayor O'Brien to decide today whether he would call for resignations of all city officeholders from the Bronx who yesterday voted to stand with Edward J. Flynn in support of McKee, John F. Curry, the Tammany leader, prepared to strike back at the Bronx leaders.

William J. Flynn, commissioner of public works for sixteen years, announced he would run for borough president and began formation of a new executive committee to take the place of the Flynn organization.

New leaders will be recognized by Tammany and Flynn in each of the Bronx assembly districts. All the Ed Flynn leaders are labeled as deserters and thrown out of Tammany.

Mrs. Clara Duryea Given a Divorce in Nevada

Minden, Nev., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Clara Duryea was granted a divorce here from J. Frank Duryea, whom she married in 1893, it was learned today. Mrs. Duryea charged cruelty. She established a Nevada residence at Lake Tahoe.

William H. Malone Named in Praecipe of $2,000 Suit

William H. Malone, whose income while he was chairman of the Illinois tax commission is under investigation by the federal government, was named defendant yesterday in the praecipe of a $2,000 suit filed in the Circuit court. The suit was filed by Mrs. Emily D. Carroll, 3709 Clifton avenue. According to her attorney, Adolph Kohlhammer, Mrs. Carroll purchased a $1,000 bond in 1928 on a Park Ridge property owned by Malone, and the bond is now in default.

SURGEONS OF U. S. OPEN CONVENTION HERE TOMORROW

"Inform the Public" to Be Keynote of Sessions.

The American College of Surgeons will celebrate its twenty-first year by "taking the public into partnership," in the words of Dr. Franklin H. Martin, founder and director general of the organization. Dr. Martin yesterday announced plans for the annual convention of the college, which opens tomorrow evening in the Hall of Science of A Century of Progress.

Five thousand surgeons are expected to attend the sessions of the convention in the Stevens hotel, and the clinics in fifty Chicago hospitals. Due to the attraction of the Fair and the fact that Chicago has become the greatest clinical center of the country, the surgical gathering will probably be the largest in the history of the profession. Many eminent foreign practitioners are to attend the convention.

Believes Public Eager to Learn.

"We believe that the public is anxious to get first hand information from authoritative sources on the more common ills of man," said Dr. Martin. "We believe, for example, that every one is interested to know the truth about cancer—how to recognize it, what to do if it is suspected, and what the prospects are for cure.

"So we have arranged a public meeting in the Chicago Stadium for next Wednesday evening. Talks will be given by the country's foremost surgeons, not only on cancer but all other problems of personal health. The public is also invited to the program beginning Sunday evening at the Hall of Science. Also to our symposium 'Cancer is Curable' in the Stevens hotel Wednesday afternoon.

"Cancer is curable. I wish those three words could be written indelibly in the mind of every man and woman. It is not curable in 100 per cent of the cases, but, with an enlightened public, it could be cured in a much greater percentage of cases than now obtains."

Nashville Man to Become President.

The American College of Surgeons was founded in Chicago in 1913. Dr. J. Bentley Squier of New York is its president. He is to be succeeded by Dr. William D. Haggard of Nashville, Tenn.

The QUADRANGLE has 2 pairs of trousers at $29.50

University men give their clothes a lot of wear. In answering several questions for us they stressed the fact that they considered the extra pair of trousers a pretty important factor when buying a suit of clothes. So in order to produce the best value we knew of in suits for men in college we planned The Quadrangle with 2 pairs of trousers. And, in addition, the tailoring, and the styles are exactly what university men asked for.

AUSTRIA LINKS ASSASSIN WITH HITLER PARTY

Police Find Application to Join Nazis.

VIENNA, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Rudolf Dertil, the fastidious ex-bugler whose bullets narrowly missed killing Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, was Austrian applicant No. 782,690 for membership in the Nazi party, according to an application card in the hands of police today.

Authorities were unable to say whether Dertil was still listed as a member in party records, but they view that point as a minor detail. Dertil says he quit the Nazi party six months ago.

More important to police is the point of whether he had been connected recently with any subordinate Nazi leaders.

Doubt Link with Higher Ups.

Privately, a police executive expressed doubt that any direction from higher ups in the party will be established. He pointed out that had Dertil been directed by an organization determined to kill the chancellor he would have been properly equipped with a real weapon, instead of "a pearl handled plaything with only two bullets."

One of the first candidates for the newly created concentration camps turned out tonight to be a butler's assistant in the American consul general's household.

The concentration camps were authorized in a government decree last week. They are aimed at persons suspected to plotting against the government or the public peace.

The servant, under suspicion of having yelled "Heil Hitler!" in a street crowd, has been ordered interned for six weeks. So as not to inconvenience the American household, he will be permitted to serve the sentence at some time when his employer is out of town.

Bomb Dollfuss Headquarters.

KREMS, Austria, Oct. 6.—(AP)—A mysterious explosion early today damaged the headquarters of Chancellor Dollfuss' patriotic front organization here. There were no injuries and only moderate property damage resulted.

CITY EMPLOYES TO GET $1,900,000 PAY NEXT WEEK

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that city employes will be paid a total of approximately $1,900,000 for the first half of July next Wednesday and Friday. The city hall will be closed Thursday for Columbus day. The pay roll money came principally from delinquent tax collections, which the city now has available for current use after retiring tax warrants for those years held by the public.

A New 'Mussolini' Appears to Fight Norwegian Reds

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 6.—Norway, the most radical of all the northern countries of Europe, excepting Russia, has developed a Fascist movement with its own Mussolini. The new party is going to make its first appearance at the polls on Oct. 16 in the triennial election for the storting [parliament].

The Fascists modestly hope to elect perhaps half a dozen members out of a total of 150. They are putting up candidates in 17 out of the total of 29 districts and are supporting men of other parties who accept Fascist principles in the rest of the districts.

Leader Tells Aims.

The leader of the new party is Maj. Vidkun A. L. Quisling, 46, a soldier and business man. Maj. Quisling was an officer of the general staff from 1911 to 1923. He served as attaché and secretary of the Norwegian legation at Washington from 1919 to 1921. He served on two league of nations commissions, in the Balkans and in Armenia, and was charged with the care of British interests in Russia during the interruption of diplomatic relationships from 1927 to 1929. He was Norwegian minister of defense from 1931 to 1933 and is the author of "Russia and Ourselves."

Nothing more unlike Mussolini or Hitler can be imagined than this big fair Norseman, who received me today and talked in a quiet, unemotional voice about the plans and hopes of his new party. He disclaimed any connection with Italian Fascism or German Nazism. Like all other Fascist movements, however, he admitted that his party springs from the danger of communism.

Aims to End Party Rule.

Maj. Quisling proposes to substitute authoritative government for excessive democracy, but to do so by constitutional means. He said his party has no intention of using force. It aims eventually at the abolition of all party government and the establishment of government by one party, which it names as "national concentration."

"We are living in a revolutionary age," Maj. Quisling said, "but in most countries we have allowed subversive elements, such as communists and Marxian socialists, to get a start on us in agitation for a change. Men who believe in order, liberty, and property must organize, too, and must find some new order of society which will satisfy the just demands of the people and at the same time preserve the principles and order of society which we hold dear.

"In Norway," he continued, "one-third of our people voted communist at the last election and it is feared in the coming election the communists will increase their power. We hope to prevent this.

Radicals Hope for Big Success.

On the other side the so-called communists, who call themselves the Norwegian Labor party, are full of hope of a sweeping success at the election. They are already the largest party in the storting, having forty-seven members. The next party is the Conservative and Moderate Liberals, 44; the Liberals, 34, and the Agrarians, 25.

The Labor party, while disclaiming any connection with Moscow, proclaims a communist program. It is helped by the bad economic situation in Norway, which is worst in the northern districts. Unemployment is estimated at 120,000 and it is feared this will increase by 50 per cent this winter.

To deal with this the Laborites are putting forth an attractive program, including the spending of 50,000,000 crowns (about $1,000,000) yearly in public works for poor relief.

BRITAIN REJECTS HITLER'S DEMAND FOR MORE ARMS

has only intensified the pacifist movement in France and increased the pressure on the government to disarm.

This was illustrated in two fashions today. During a discussion of national defense at the annual congress of the Radical party at Vichy, the reporter of the party's national defense committee, Gen. Brissaud Desmaillet, revealed that Premier Edouard Daladier, who is also minister of defense, is planning to suppress the third battalion of each regiment of infantry of the French army this month.

Secondly, Joseph Paul-Boncour, foreign minister, took a train for Geneva tonight after a conference with Daladier during which it is believed he was instructed to place only such new obstacles as are consistent with the country's safety in the path of the disarmament convention. It also is suspected that he was told to condition the exact amount of disarming France will do upon the amount of security she gets.

The alleged plans for suppressing one of three battalions in each regiment of French infantry excited considerable speculation in the capital, but very little is known of the real significance of the plan. It will obviously bring about a reduction of the number of effectives.

The best information available is that this important feature was motivated by three considerations: economy, the natural decrease of the number of conscripts owing to the falling off of births during the world war, and the necessity of regrouping effectives.

Official circles here are in a hubbub over the German answer to the disarmament proposals of the big four at Geneva. According to unofficial reports available here, the Germans take the stand that while they agree to a trial period of disarmament with supervision, they think four years is too long for the trial period. They resent the idea that this shall be a "good behavior" period for Germany.

PRUSSIA URGES INCURABLES BE PUT TO DEATH

Proposal Is Called an Act of Humanity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—The killing of persons afflicted with incurable diseases is officially advocated by the Prussian ministry of justice in a memorandum today. The document contains proposals for a new penal code.

Three conditions are attached to the proposed eradication of incurables. They are as follows: First, the patient must demand that his misery be ended; second, two official doctors must certify that he has an incurable ailment; third, the fatal drug must be administered by a qualified physician.

Seek to Help Patient.

The putting to death of persons without fulfillment of these conditions will be regarded as murder. The memorandum emphasizes that "this is not destruction of life valuable to the community, but only freeing the patient from hopeless sufferings. This is an expression of humanity and pity for the patient and his relatives. To prevent abuse, the above mentioned securities are essential."

Meanwhile the university town of Marburg triumphantly announced that it is the first community in Germany to be completely freed of Jewish lawyers.

A sentence of 10 months' imprisonment was passed on Julius Meyer, Berlin workman, today. He was convicted on the charge of spreading false rumors concerning the reichstag fire.

Claims Jew Adopted Goering.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Oct. 6.—The Allgemeine Zeitung tonight states that Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Prussia is the adopted son of an Austrian Jew.

In the book, "Men Around Hitler," which recently was published in Germany to glorify Nazi leaders, the author states that Gen. Goering spent part of his youth in the Austrian Alps. The Allgemeine Zeitung alleges that this phrase covers the fact that Goering was adopted and educated by the owner of Mauterndorf castle, near Salzburg. The newspaper adds that the owner of the castle is a Jew named Epstein. The article says that Epstein is a democrat in politics and recently entertained Goering at the castle.

LAYMEN BLOCK RADICAL MOVES OF M. E. PASTORS

Alter Official Report on Economics and Navy.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Laymen, admitted for the first time on an equal footing with pastors as members of the Rock River annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, in session in Joliet, toned down the official utterances of the conference yesterday on economic, international, and disarmament questions. Most of yesterday's sessions were devoted to debate on the report of the committee on public policy, social service, and state legislation.

The conference's official attitude on naval expansion was one expression changed by the laymen. As originally drafted the conference criticized the government's navy expansion program. As modified by lay influence the conference asked governmental study of the naval program as it may relate to the peace of the world. On prohibition the conference adopted the original policy report, by which the Methodists continue to declare prohibition "to be our goal," even though it appears that "federal prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcohol is not to be hoped for in the immediate future."

Explain Temperance Report.

The report of the temperance commission, adopted on Thursday, which recommended the withholding of gifts to the various dry agencies, including the Anti-Saloon league, which was interpreted by some to be a departure from Methodism's traditional stand, was explained yesterday as a move preliminary to a change in technic, with no bearing on the official position of the conference on the matter.

Socialistic tendencies of pastors, which appeared prominently at last year's sessions at Dixon, were quickly squelched at the present session by overwhelming lay majorities. The public policy report as presented commended the NRA as "the beginning of a planned economy," and asserted that the conference is convinced of the sincerity and high purpose of those who initiated it. This section was attacked by the Rev. J. Pierce Newell of Rockford, who proposed a substitute declaring capitalism to be un-Christian. The substitute was defeated with roars of "No!"

Plea for Preparedness.

A plea for military and naval preparedness, an innovation in recent Methodist conferences, was made by Attorney George Blatt of Joliet. He spoke for the substitute for the section of the report which criticized the navy's big building program, the substitute was presented by Charles O. Loucks of the Irving Park Methodist church.

Mr. Blatt asked the pastors if they had locked their homes before they left for the conference sessions, and if they were willing to dismiss the Chicago police.

"We must be prepared," Mr. Blatt shouted. "If America had been adequately prepared in 1914 there would not have been a war."

The navy section as adopted reads as follows: "We urge the federal administration to consider the effect upon the peace of the world of building up our navy to the limits allowed us under the international agreements."

Discusses Hitler's Ideas.

Dr. Paul Hutchinson, managing editor of the Christian Century, told the conference late yesterday that Chancellor Hitler of Germany has developed ideas new in the social, religious, and political fields.

"The Hitler movement is one which primarily concerns the middle class as against the capitalists on the one hand and the proletariat on the other," Dr. Hutchinson said. "Hitler conceives of the church as a socially evolved organization."

Dr. Hutchinson spent last summer in Germany.

Rabbi Louis L. Mann, spiritual leader of Sinai temple, spoke last night on "The Church and International Relations."

GIRL SAVED FROM GAS DEATH.

FRire rescue squad No. 10 yesterday revived Miss Pauline Miller, 26 years old, after he had attempted to commit suicide by inhaling gas in her apartment at 465 Deming place.

Wins Acquittal in Murder Trial

MRS. CECILIA McCORMICK.

Cleared by Jury

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Cecilia McCormick was found not guilty tonight of first degree murder in providing the revolver with which her convict husband, Harold [Red] McCormick, killed a keeper in an attempt to break jail. She was temporarily insane at the time, a jury in the County court, Brooklyn, decided after eight hours' deliberation.

Mrs. McCormick was pale and on the verge of collapse when the jury filed into the courtroom. When the foreman announced the verdict, she seemed stunned, and slumped forward. A matron caught her.

There was a mild demonstration in the courtroom and attorneys and spectators crowded around the acquitted young woman to congratulate her. But she sat through the demonstration unmoved, unable to comprehend what the knot of well wishers about her were saying.

3 SLAYINGS AND 2 BOMBINGS MARK DAY IN HAVANA

Gunmen Kill Two Reds in Cafe Shooting.

HAVANA, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Minor disturbances, including bombings and shootings, resulted today in the death of three persons and the wounding of six in Havana. Reports from the interior indicated that conditions were generally quiet there.

The dead included two communists, Felix Viti, 23, and Luis Melian, 19, who were killed when three unidentified persons fired into a café in which they were sitting with friends. Two of the companions were wounded.

The other death was of an unidentified man who was struck down by a shot fired from an automobile as he walked near the water front.

Two Laundries Bombed.

The four other injured were the victims of the bombing of two laundries. These incidents were blamed on labor troubles by the authorities.

Political leaders meantime continued a series of secret conferences and two groups of Americans, Spanish war veterans and the American Legion, consulted over the matter of treatment of the 400 officers who surrendered in the National hotel and are now being held in prison.

It was learned that the Spanish war veterans were considering asking President Grau to permit the officers to leave for a foreign country. The Legionnaires took no action after discussing the officers' plight for half an hour.

U. S. Envoy Under Fire.

Sumner Welles, American ambassador, came in for a further attack from Alma Mater, student newspaper, which proposed that he return to the United States.

Humberto De Cardenas, author of the article, described Welles as "the only conspirator left in Cuba" and suggested that a public fund be raised "to embark Welles—who ought not and cannot remain in Cuba."

Officials at the American embassy admitted that Welles visited the home of Dr. Cosme De La Torriente last night at the same time Carlos Mendieta was there. Both De La Torriente and Mendieta are leaders in the attempt to overthrow the government of President Grau San Martin.

The embassy informants said the visit with De La Torriente was merely a personal one and that Mendieta just happened to be there.

MICHIGAN HOTELS SEEK SOLE RIGHT TO SELL LIQUOR

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—A plea that hotels be given the exclusive right to dispense "hard liquors" after repeal of prohibition was voiced today before the legislative council's subcommittee on liquor legislation. The subcommittee, which has been conducting hearings prior to framing tentative legislation for submission at a probable special session this fall, adjourned until Oct. 16 after representatives of various groups had voiced their ideas.

Walter Hodges, Kalamazoo, for the hotel men, declared that the business he represents is best equipped of any to handle distribution of spirits and its personnel is above reproach. He urged that druggists, whose spokesman Thursday advocated their facilities be used, be confined to filling liquor prescriptions.

Hodges said hotel sales of liquor would eliminate many evils of prohibition. "For many years we have lost most of our dining room trade to speakeasies," he asserted, "because we have been unable to sell liquor ourselves, although it is notorious that our guests bring it to their rooms."

Papal Delegate Visits Mission House at Techny

The Most Rev. Amleto Cicognani, the papal delegate in Washington, D. C., visited St. Mary's Mission house at Techny yesterday while on his way to St. Paul, where he is to attend a meeting of the American Catholic women. The apostolic delegate inspected the buildings and grounds and asked numerous questions about the work and training of priests and brothers there.

DANGER SEEN IN DRY STATE LAWS AFTER REPEAL

Rockefeller Report Gives Reasons.

New York, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The Rockefeller liquor control study sounded a warning today that "unless past experience is reversed," the surviving dry states after adoption of the 21st [repeal] amendment will become a paradise for bootleggers.

"Operating from there as a base," the study said, "the illicit liquor traffic should not be allowed to run cheap, inferior liquor into the neighboring wet states in competition with the legal, but perhaps higher priced, article."

Dealing with state regulations after repeal, the report—sponsored by John D. Rockefeller Jr., and made by Raymond B. Fosdick and Albert L. Scott—said any one who regarded the bootlegging warning "an an illusory danger will do well to examine the efforts of the Canadian provincial governments to prevent invasion by American bootleggers selling tax-free liquor."

"In view of the widespread evils which followed the 18th amendment," the report said, "we frankly are not impressed with the possibilities of prohibition as a method of control, even in individual states. We believe in stringent regulation of beverages of high alcoholic content. We do not believe such regulation is possible under a strict form of prohibition."

Saying repeal of the 18th amendment leaves untouched the laws and constitutional provisions existing in various states, the report declared:

"The possible future success of statewide prohibition will depend entirely upon whether there is within the state an overwhelming majority in favor of this type of control. On no other basis can it hope to be even moderately successful . . . its popular backing must be strong.

"If an uncompromising, bone dry prohibition is attempted, failure to marshal a preponderant sentiment behind it will, we believe, admit all the abuses which have recently been experienced under the national régime. . . . Nothing is to be gained by passing a law which serves merely to satisfy the consciences of those responsible for it."

Britain Denies Decision on War Debt Payment

LONDON, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Reports published abroad that the British cabinet had reached a final decision on war debt payment and that the treasury was buying gold in preparation for a lump sum payment were described in authoritative circles today as incorrect and pure guesswork. It was pointed out that the debt negotiations have not yet begun in Washington.

BY EARL MULLIN.

National groups of Chicago today will be given recognition for the part they have had in the building of the city. It is one of the events of Chicago week at the Fair. Seventeen national groups, most of which have given individual programs at the Fair, today will combine to present every known type of musical, dancing and drill ceremony in the civilized world. All groups will be in costume.

The schedules are for programs at the following places and times: Floating theater, 5 to 7:30 p. m.; Hall of Science, 7 to 9:30 p. m.; Court of States, 6 to 6:45 p. m. and 8 to 9 p. m. Groups that will participate are Bulgarian, Czechoslovak, Danish, French-

Only 25 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair.

Canadian, German, Greek, Hungarian, Italian, Lithuanian, Polish, Rumania, Welsh, Netherlands, Jugo-Slav, Polish Falcons, Czechslovak Sokol, and Chinese.

The nationals' program, to be given under the direction of Maj. Felix Streyckmans, chief of foreign participation in the Fair, is the result of a month's work, and the realization of a dream of two years in the foreign participation department.

In general, each group will present what it considers the best of its native art and pageantry. No direction was given by the Fair, and many of the performances to be given are rare in the United States.

The musical program at the Fair this afternoon will be augmented by the arrival of the Tipica police band of Mexico City, already widely known in the United States. The police band will alternate with the United States Marine corps band, now appearing at the Fair.

Three Concerts by Famous Bands.

The musical program opens at 5 p. m. with the Marine band in the Court of States. The Mexican band will appear at 6 p. m. in the court of the Hall of Science, and both bands will converge at 9:30 o'clock on the west boardwalk of the north lagoon, where they will alternate in a two hour program.

The highlight of yesterday's program, Homecoming day and the opening of Chicago week at the Fair, was the mammoth radio show in the evening in the Court of States. Every radio station in Chicago and both national chains contributed talent for the two hour revue. A vaudeville show in the afternoon was called off on account of threatening weather. At 11:30 p. m. the attendance totaled 116,778.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Cecilia O'Neill, "Lady Anthracite," of Minersville, Pa., and Ruth Ferrier, her alternate, yesterday presented to President Rufus C. Dawes of the Exposition a pair of book ends made off anthracite coal.

The "Queen of Fall Flowers" will be selected today in the Horticultural building at the Fair by Phil Harris, orchestra leader. More than 25 girls have entered the contest, which takes place at 4:30 p. m. The queen will rule over the forthcoming autumn flower festival at the Garden and Flower show.

Miss Caroline McIlvaine, for 25 years connected with the Chicago Historical society, will speak at 2:30 p. m. today in the Illinois Host house on "One Hundred Years of Beauty in Chicago." Her lecture will be illustrated. A lecture on "Color Schemes and Combinations in Interior Decoration" will be given by Miss Mathilde Klemm at 3:30 p. m.

A window was dedicated yesterday in the Illinois Host house in honor of George Rogers Clark. Included among those participating in the ceremony were Judge Denis Sullivan of the Superior court, Thomas O'Shaughnessy, Chicago artist who designed the window, and J. O. Lackey, department commander of the Kentucky American Legion.

Pictures and designs of all kinds are shown in the jars of preserved foods at the international canning contest now being held in the Hall of States. One jar entered by Mrs. Charles McCoy of Lincoln, Neb., presents a perfect design of the NRA Blue Eagle, with the words "We Do Our Part" at the bottom. It is composed of six fruits of various colors.

A cast recruited from seven towns in the southwest corner of Michigan will present the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore," at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Illinois Host building at A Century of Progress. The towns represented in the cast of 70 voices are Three Oaks, New Buffalo, Stevensville, Baroda, Bridgman, Sawyer, and Lakeside. The chorus is financed by the Warren foundation, a philanthropic organization founded by the late E. K. Warren of Three Oaks. William Lester, organist at the New First Congregational church of Chicago, took over direction of the chorus a year ago.

The national old time fiddlers' contest will be held at the Fair Oct. 22 and 23 as part of an American folk music and song program to be given in the court of the Hall of Science. Talks on the lives of great American composers and others not so well known will be included in the program.

Five hundred employés of the Richman Brothers Clothing company of Cleveland will arrive in Chicago at 7 o'clock this morning over the Nickel Plate railroad to spend the week-end visiting the World's Fair. This is said to be one of the largest groups from one company coming to the Fair during the season. The group will be quartered at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club.

Parties totaling 2,300 residents of Elkhart, Ind., will arrive in Chicago today at the La Salle street station to visit the Fair. It is the fourth tour of residents of this city, the others averaging about 1,400 persons each. The tours are sponsored by the Elkhart chamber of commerce, the Merchants' Retail association, and the Elkhart Truth, a newspaper.

Special trains of the Great Northern railroad will bring approximately 3,100 visitors from Canada to the Fair over the week-end, officials of the road announced yesterday.

NORWEGIANS TO OPEN ERICSON DRIVE TOMORROW

Approximately 2,000 members of various Norwegian societies in Chicago will formally open the extension of Leif Ericson drive between Jackson boulevard and the river tomorrow after a parade from Navy pier, beginning at 3 p. m. Mayor Kelly will dedicate a site for a monument to Leif Ericson at the foot of Monroe street. The money for the monument, which will be 98 feet high, has already been raised.

A program of Viking songs will be presented by the Norwegian Singers' league before the Naval armory at the foot of Randolph street. Christian Olsen, president of the Norwegian National league and of the Leif Ericson Memorial league, will be in charge.

Graf Zeppelin Stamps Will Go on Sale Today

Postmaster Ernest Kruetgen announced yesterday that the Graf Zeppelin will start about Oct. 14 on its trip from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to the World's Fair via Brazil and that special stamps will be placed on sale today at the main United States postoffice. The stamps will be in 50 cent denomination only. Mail will be carried by the Graf at the rate of 50 cents for each half ounce to any of three places where the airship will stop after it leaves Chicago—Akron, O.; Seville, Spain, and Friedrichshafen. Under the proposed schedule the Zeppelin will leave the German city at 10 p. m. on Oct. 14 and reach Pernambuco, Brazil, on the evening of Oct. 17. After stops at Miami, Fla., and Akron, the huge ship is expected to arrive in Chicago Oct. 26 or 27.

PUBLIC CAN STOP HUGE FIRE WASTE, CHICAGO IS TOLD

George E. Graves, chief of the city fire prevention bureau, yesterday urged all Chicagoans to observe international fire prevention week, which begins tomorrow. Chicago's fire losses he said, could be reduced fifty per cent if the public would practice fire prevention methods.

"The public's responsibility is shown in the fact that the commonest of all fire hazards is the careless disposal of lighted matches, cigars, and cigarettes," said Chief Graves. "In a typical year this one hazard is responsible for huge loss of life and about $30,000,000 in property damage.

"During the year people are so involved in the daily routine that they forget to be careful about fire. It was to call each citizens' attention to this important matter that fire prevention week was started. Prompt alarms are all important. In industrial and commercial buildings these can be best supplied by automatic sprinkler systems. The experience of Chicago's department indicates that automatic fire alarms are superior to methods depending upon human agencies."

In the evening there was another entertainment by the community organizations in the court of the Hall of Science. There was also an exhibit of fireworks on the lagoon last night.

Art institute officials expect a record attendance on Oct. 16.

LEGION ON WAY HOME, BUT 8 ARE WITHOUT TICKETS

Except for its members who remained for some extra sightseeing at the World's Fair, the American Legion was on the way home from its convention yesterday. But the staff of the service committee headquarters at 163 North Franklin street, where too enthusiastic celebrators were taken by the Legion's own "M. P.'s" and plied with black coffee, were wondering how at least eight of their buddies managed the homeward journey. Their return tickets home are in the lost and found department at the headquarters.

There was also some speculation as to the plight of a convention guest who had apparently served with a Scottish regiment. He lost his kilts during the celebration.

The service committee of several hundred members was reduced to a "mop-up" squad of nine yesterday, who burned the police arrest book on which the names of some 300 Legionnaires were entered.

Convention visitors consumed 133,400 doughnuts, 1,148 pounds of coffee, 251 gallons of cream, and 750 pounds of sugar at the Salvation Army hut, it was announced yesterday. The Salvation Army, coöperating with manufacturers and merchants, furnished the coffee, cream, doughnuts, and sugar without charge to the Legionnaires.

OGBURN HOLDS HOPES FOR NEW DEAL'S SUCCESS

Must Avoid Pitfalls, Says Sociologist.

An opinion that the Roosevelt administration's new deal will achieve success if the experts in Washington can leap over several hurdles and avoid certain pitfalls was advanced yesterday by Prof. William F. Ogburn, sociologist of the University of Chicago, in a talk before the Woman's City club. Although he declared himself optimistic, Prof. Ogburn took occasion to point out where the program was missing fire.

Washington today is in the same fever as during the world war, Prof. Ogburn said, but it is to be hoped that the idealism of the Roosevelt Democrats will accomplish more than the wartime idealism over the "fourteen points," "war to end war," and "the war to make the world safe for democracy." Prof. Ogburn was connected with the new deal until his resignation on Aug. 14 from the Consumers' Advisory league. He was dissatisfied with the situation of the consuming public under the new deal.

Loopholes in Program.

"There are several discrepancies in the program now," asserted Prof. Ogburn, "that can be ironed out if the new dealers have the brains to do it.

"For one thing the NRA and the monetary policies are not working together. Prices have gone up, but the credit has not been expanded enough to meet them. The agricultural adjustment act was supposed to raise prices, but the fast moving Gen. Hugh Johnson comes along and the prices of manufactured goods are raised faster than farm products.

"They talk about balancing the budget, but there are two budgets. One is the normal budget which has been theoretically balanced and the other is the billions poured out in the public works program that will be balanced in the future. There has been a delay in the public works program—through no fault of Secretary of the Interior Ickes, because it wasn't turned over to him soon enough—but this will have to speeded up."

The new deal has several eggs that will never be "unscrambled," Prof. Ogburn stated.

Trend Toward Monopoly.

"Industry will be much better organized," he said. "There is a push toward monopoly and away from free competition, whether you like it or not. Another egg that won't be unscrambled is a closer relationship between business and government. In this connection time only will tell whether the radicals or conservatives will win out."

Prof. Ogburn said that when he was in Washington he decided that it was easier to raise prices than to raise wages. If prices went too high too fast, he declared, the new deal would kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

"Since the middle of July things have been going down hill a little bit," he continued. "There has been a slight recession because there isn't enough money for the raise in prices and wages.

"Whether the recession will take us back to the day of the Republicans or up on the wings of the Blue Eagle remains to be seen. President Roosevelt has the power to expand credit. In regard to inflation he has experts on one hand to advise him. On the other are the southern and western states crying for inflation because it will raise the prices and the eastern or 'sound money' financial centers opposing it."

Six shotgun bandits held up twenty officials and employés of the Checker Taxi company at the main office, 1401 West Jackson boulevard, yesterday afternoon and escaped with two canvas bags containing $4,000 and $2,700 in checks. The robbery occurred ten minutes before a Brinks express armored car was to have picked up the money.

Douglas Richardson, 28 years old, 11329 South Park way, cashier for the company, was forced to reveal the whereabouts of the bags containing the money and checks. The bandits took him with them as a shield against possible gunfire and he was forced to lie upon the sidewalk at 327 South Loomis street as the men climbed into their waiting automobile with a seventh member of the band at the wheel and made their escape.

The robbers forced the employés, including four women, to lie upon the floor while they menaced Richardson with their guns until the pointed out the bags. The robbers referred to each other by numbers when they spoke.

NEW LOAN FUND IS SET UP BY U. S. TO BOOST PRICES

Cotton Growers First to Benefit.

posed to take an optimistic view of the situation. The slackening of business in August and September was attributed to the deflation of the speculative burst of industrial activity in June and July in anticipation of higher prices and inflation. The President evinced confidence that beneath all the speculative ups and downs of stock and commodity markets there is in progress a steady improvement of business.

Inflation Barely Mentioned.

The question of currency inflation was barely mentioned at the cabinet meeting, according to one member. The President, it was stated, made it abundantly clear that he is determined to prosecute his recovery program to a finish along present lines without resort to outright inflation of the currency.

The cabinet had before it a report from the labor department's bureau of statistics showing that the index number of wholesale commodity prices for the week ending Sept. 30 dropped by more than ½ of 1 per cent from the week previous. The index of the general level of wholesale prices stood at 71.1 as compared with 71.5 for the week ending Sept. 23. As compared with an index of 59.6, the low of the year reached during the week of March 4, the present index is higher by more than 19 per cent.

Radical declines in the wholesale prices of farm products and manufactured foods are responsible for most of the decrease during the past week. Farm products fell by more than 2 per cent and processed foods dropped 1¼ per cent. Weakening prices in grains, live cattle, cotton, fresh fruits and vegetables, and foods in general account for the slump in these groups.

Building Materials Advance.

Strengthening prices of lumber, cement and plumbing and heating supplies caused the group of building materials to advance by more than 1 per cent. House furnishing goods and metals and metal products also registered advances during the week. The chemicals and drugs and miscellaneous groups of commodities showed no change in average prices.

A downward tendency in average prices was recorded during the week for the groups of hides and leather products, textile products, and fuel and lighting materials.

Of the ten major groups of related commodities which comprise the 784 separate price series, weighted according to their relative importance and based on average prices for the year 1926 as 100, five groups showed a decrease, two no change, and three an increase.

DODD ACCLAIMS GERMAN AID TO CULTURE IN U. S.

BERLIN, Oct. 6—(AP)—American Ambassador William E. Dodd, speaking on the 250th anniversary of the founding of the first German settlement in America, paid tribute tonight to German contributions to American thought and culture. He mentioned participation of the German immigrant element in the revolutionary and civil wars in America and then, referring to the world war, said:

"It was a fearful test for millions of Germans in the United States, but they stood the test manfully, although like so many others, were nonplussed at the end, and have not yet fully realized the fact that the world is no longer composed of free and disentangled nations."

The new ambassador reviewed the pioneering activities of Francis Daniel Pastorius and his Lutheran followers.

"In our trying times the German element has been an integral part of our western democracy and its contributions to American thought and culture have been of inestimable value," he said.

CALIFORNIA AND NEW YORK AGAIN GET EASY MONEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—New York and California, the two states which have walked off with most of the 3 billion 300 million dollar federal easy money fund, were back in the money again today, taking 87 per cent of the $8,678,000 Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes doled out.

Illinois was given $104,000, about 1 per cent of the day's allotments. All the Chicagoland states together were allowed 8 per cent, $804,000, although they yield 13 per cent of all federal taxes.

New York, the home state of President Roosevelt, was handed more than half of all the money allocated today. It was given $5,448,000, or 55 per cent of the day's total, for three projects involving schools, sewers, and highways.

California Next in Line.

California, home of the President's political friend, Senator Hiram Johnson, radical, who supported Roosevelt, took 32 per cent of the allotments. A San Francisco limited dividend corporation was given $3,230,000 to start a low-cost housing project named the Roosevelt Terrace Housing Development.

Chicago got none of the day's pickings, but dangling in front of her nose was the possibility that the sanitary district may get a few millions for construction work tomorrow. Without committing themselves definitely, easy money officials said they "looked for something on the Chicago loan tomorrow."

The advance to the sanitary district is reported to be in the neighborhood of 8 million dollars, to be used to carry on construction abandoned because of lack of funds. It is known to have been passed by Col. H. M. Waite, deputy administrator of public works, at least in part, and to have gone to Ickes himself for final action.

Chicagoland Gleanings.

The allotments to Chicagoland today went to Macon and Lena, Ill., and to Hammond, Ind. They totaled $804,000, of which $700,000 goes to the Indiana city for construction of a new filtration plant in the water system.

Lena gets $70,000 of the remaining $104,000, to be used in building a new school building. Of the total allotment, $17,000 is an outright grant and the rest is a loan, secured by general obligation bonds of the city.

Macon will use its $34,000 to construct a water supply system and distribution lines. Twelve thousand dollars is an outright grant and the rest is a loan secured by revenue bonds.

Lamson Taken to Prison; Dies on Gallows Dec. 15

San José, Cal., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Under sentence to hang Dec. 15 for wife murder, David A. Lamson, former Stanford university publishing house executive, was taken today from the county jail here to San Quentin prison.

WORK FOR 3,000 HINGES ON U. S. $7,874,000 GRANT

Sanitary Board Makes Subapplication.

More than 3,000 men can be put to work immediately if the federal government grants a subapplication of the Chicago sanitary district for funds totaling $7,874,477. Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the district, said yesterday that the same number of men would be kept in employment next year on sewage construction if the federal funds are forthcoming.

The subapplication, requested by the government, is a part of the larger application for $120,000,000 to complete the sewage disposal program ordered by the United States Supreme court. Included in the $7,874,477 would be an outright federal grant of $2,024,855 toward the cost of certain sewer and sewage treatment projects. The remainder, $5,849,612, would be a loan to be repaid to the government.

Seek to Resume Projects.

The "easy money," if obtained, will be used on projects started by the sanitary district but halted in various stages of construction in February of 1932 through lack of funds. The projects, and the money needed to complete them, are as follows:

1. Calumet sewage treatment works at 126th street and Cottage Grove avenue; pumper blower house, $1,380,206, and aeration tanks and auxiliaries, $2,178,907.

West Side Sewer Unfinished.

3. West side intercepting sewer: completion of section 3, $1,327,613, and completion of section 4, $1,694,737.

Collateral for the loan would be sanitary district bonds, which would be amortized in 20 years. The interest rate will be decided upon before a contract between the sanitary district and the public works administration is signed.

MONTREAL SHIPPING CRIPPLED.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 6.—Water levels in Montreal harbor last month were the lowest of any September since 1860, official records show. The St. Lawrence river here during the month was 30 inches lower than last year at this time and 38 inches lower than the average level of September in the last 73 years. Shipments of goods on liners have to be lighter than usual because of the low water levels. On and after Oct. 20 passenger liners of the Cunard and Anchor-Donaldson lines will leave Montreal at daybreak instead of 10 a. m. so as to load additional cargo at Quebec which they could not put on board here because of the low water line.

Appeal Court Upholds Two Dry Law Prison Sentences

Two of the last severe prohibition law sentences imposed in this district were upheld yesterday when the United States Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction of John Speroni of Sterling, Ill., and Thomas Costello of Clinton, Ia. Speroni was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and fined $5,000 and Costello was sentenced to 18 months in prison and fined $2,500 by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward at Freeport about seven months ago. With several others, they were charged with conspiracy to violate the 18th amendment. Speroni and Costello were the only defendants to appeal.

BOND PURCHASES BY ILLINOIS LIFE TOLD IN COURT

Although the Illinois Life Insurance company had been buying first mortgage bonds of the Stevens hotel on the open market during 1931 at from 46 to 64 cents on the dollar, the company at the end of the year accepted $900,000 worth of third mortgage bonds at par from the hotel to retire a note for money previously loaned.

This was testified yesterday at the trial of Ernest J. Stevens, who managed the hotel and was a member of the finance committee of the insurance company controlled by his family, on charges of embezzlement before Judge Michael Feinberg. The witness was John C. Walker, who as an auditor for the state's attorney has been working on the hotel and insurance company books since January.

Stevens, originally indicted with his father, now hopelessly paralyzed, and a brother, who committed suicide, is charged with embezzlement of $1,500,000 from the insurance company, now in receivership. The money was loaned to the hotel and it is the contention of the prosecution that by making the loans when, it charges, he knew the hotel was insolvent, Stevens was guilty of embezzling the money.

Judge Feinberg adjourned the trial until Monday, but announced that he would hold court both on Monday, Chicago day, and Thursday, which is Columbus day. Walker is expected to be on the witness stand all day Monday.

ROBBERS POSE AS POLICEMEN.

Three bandits posing as policemen forced the automobile of William F. Brown, 1423 North LeClaire street, to the curb at Menard avenue and Rice street early yesterday and robbed Brown of $60.

Disarms a Holdup Man, Then Forgets About Him

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 6.—[Special.] Philip Berg, 28, local gas station attendant, when told to "stick 'em up" by a bandit last night, took the gun from the bandit's hands. The man had asked for $10, but reduced the sum to 15 cents when the gun was taken from him. Berg, who thought it was a joke more than anything else, walked outside to wait on a customer. It was not until later that Berg realized the situation and called the police.

NRA BOARD ASKS EMPLOYERS TO DONATE TO FUND

Money Needed to Finance Compliance Group.

Fifteen hundred business firms in the Chicago area were asked yesterday to make donations to a fund being raised to finance the operations of the local NRA compliance board. A subscription of $25 or less was asked from each of the concerns. All the business men solicited employ 50 or more workers.

Ever since its formation, the compliance board has been considering means of obtaining the funds necessary for its successful functioning. The general subscription plan was finally decided upon and the letters were sent out yesterday under the direction of Urban A. Lavery, secretary and counsel of the board.

No Government Funds.

It was pointed out to employers that since local citizen groups have financed other NRA bodies in Chicago, the government has accepted that policy and has provided no money for the expenses of the compliance board. The funds are needed for rent, secretarial help, and the employment of conciliators who will investigate the complaints of workers and requests for relief by employers.

The letters also advised employers that the compliance board is the official agency of the government for NRA educational purposes and for the consideration and settlement of difficulties arising under the President's reemployment agreement. Its work is deemed vital by recovery administrators, it was asserted. Mr. Lavery said he expected the requests for donations would meet with an immediate and satisfactory response.

Richberg Visits City.

Donald R. Richberg, NRA counsel, who stopped here yesterday on his way to Washington, declared there was no difference of opinion between him and Administrator Hugh S. Johnson over the steel companies' agreement to apply to their captive mines the prevailing wage and working conditions of surrounding coal mines. The confusion resulted, he said, from the misunderstanding on the part of steel officials concerning the system of having employers deduct union dues from pay checks.

The "check off" system is a part of the conditions prevailing in coal mines surrounding the captive collieries and will be applicable to them, he said. Mr. Richberg said he had telephoned Gen. Johnson yesterday and was assured no disagreement on the subject existed between them.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE UNPAID TAXES.

The 1931 real estate tax bills were sent out early last spring. Thus far a total of 102 million dollars has been collected, or 57.2 per cent of the total billed to property owners.

That is one way of telling the story. Another, and for all practical purposes a far more useful way of telling it, is to say that 77 million dollars is still unpaid and that the unpaid portion is 42.8 per cent of the total.

Forty-two per cent of the total of real estate taxes is unpaid, although the World's Fair has served as a stimulus to payments on many classes of property. Forty-two per cent is unpaid, although there has been some improvement in many lines of business as against last year.

Forty-two percent is unpaid, although the governments generally have appropriated and spent money on the theory that only 10 per cent of the taxes would not be collected. There is a gap between income and expenditure of approximately 30 per cent. The gap will be narrowed somewhat after the Supreme court decision on the right of the board of review to order a reduction in the assessment of small residences, but roughly speaking the revenues from taxation this year will be at least 25 per cent less than the expenditures. To this year's deficiency in collection must be added last year's deficiency of 71 million dollars and the deficiency of 45 million dollars from the year before, all on real estate account alone.

An examination of these figures can leave no doubt that the governments are spending more than they can collect no matter how efficiently the collection services are organized. So great a deficiency can result only from stark inability to pay on the part of many taxpayers. The only remedy for this situation is to economize further. The time is approaching when next year's budgets must be drawn. The budget makers must recognize the facts if the credit of all the local governments is not to be totally destroyed.

COMPROMISE VERDICTS.

The public will share Judge Epstein's discontent with the verdict in the Pisciatta murder trial. If the jury were convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants were guilty as charged the penalties imposed are grossly inadequate. If the jury, all the jury, were not convinced, it was their duty to bring in a verdict of not guilty or to declare disagreement. The trial judge and the prosecutor were satisfied with the proof of guilt, but if there was honest doubt as to guilt in the minds of any of the jurymen it should have resulted in disagreement and a new trial, not in a compromise which is without law or logic and which seems to announce that twelve good men and true think that the taking of human life in the circumstances of this crime deserves only a short term of imprisonment.

That the verdict was a compromise among the jurymen is the only plausible explanation, but it was an unjustifiable compromise, extremely unfortunate in the present effort to bring the fear of punishment home to reckless and violent youths who are the majority of killers. If there was agreement upon the question of guilt and compromise on the question of punishment, the fact remains that three proved murderers have been let off with light sentences. This means that certain of the jurymen lacked a proper sense of the offense committed and that those who favored adequate penalty made a very poor bargain on behalf of justice. The result is discreditable to both factions, and it suggests that veniremen need some explicit and emphatic instruction from the judges on the subject of compromise in criminal trials.

DIAMOND LIL.

There is more in the rapid growth of Miss Mae West's public than meets the first glance, and it is more than hips, hips, hurray. On the stage Miss West, before she went over into the larger field of the movies, re-created for theatergoing antiquarians, old boys and senescent citizenry, a world of the past in which ladies had been ladies. She did this by being not a lady. She portrayed a feminine world recognized as apart from the home and fireside. Diamond Lil could not be mistaken for a debutante, a mother of family, or a social leader.

There might be a heart of gold in the character Miss West presented. It was pleasing to the optimism of regenerative theory that this heart of gold should be found in so much alloy, and presumably the worst of men were touched to discover the innate good of the human race, but, nevertheless, no mistakes were made. Identification was never confused. The world of Diamond Lil was unmistakable. It had its own mores if not morals. The dichotomies were unfused. A lady could tell herself from Diamond Lil and so could the admirers on both sides. Diamond Lil granted the lady her place in life, and the lady granted Diamond Lil nothing willingly. So the two stood apart and society never had any confusion in the matter. One had one habitat and the other another. They never met except by the egregious folly of some indiscreet male who had got his whereabouts mixed up at the races.

Miss West's present vogue is great. Her streamlines have revived old ideas of pulchritude. Her wise cracks have become gags for a hundred uses. Some are passing into the language. Children imitate her in their charades. She has brought back the full-fleshed woman and the fully clothed. If this sets a style she will dispose of the wheat surplus and put the fabric makers right back in the middle of prosperity. But most of all she has put the ladies in their place again. She has redrawn the distinctions. Diamond Lil is Victorian on the other side of the fence and the fence is up, but the spirit of the ladies may also be up. They may refuse to stay on their side. In that case it is again good night to the dichotomies.

AFTER THE FAIR.

The Fair has some of its best days remaining. Although it will close its gates the last of October, much of the best sightseeing time of the year remains to encourage visitors, and people of the Chicago region are aware of this. As an accomplishment the Fair must have satisfied the desires of its producers just as it has more than met the expectations of the millions of people the world over who came to see it, a revolution in the art of exhibition, ingenious, colorful, a test of the mind, and an education and a joy to the eye. It has been of incalculable benefit to a city whose reputation was the choice sport of critics, and it has been a recognized force in the progress of Chicago and the adjoining regions through hard times. It has made Chicago a cheerful city and a portent of better years to the country at large.

There is now the question of what shall be preserved of this phenomenal attraction for the permanent good of the city. THE TRIBUNE suggested that the Fair be continued. That suggestion was intended merely to give a timely opening to the subject and to bring the question into early discussion. Many suggestions are now being thought over, and it is apparent that there is sufficient support to guarantee that when the Fair closes its gates it will not close them upon the enterprise. Something of it will remain as a permanent addition to Chicago's attractions.

A good deal that was distinguished of the Fair of '93 was preserved in Jackson park. The Fine Arts building is there now as a magnificent exhibit of architecture converted to a continuing useful purpose. The Fair of '33 has the added advantage of being in the front yard of the city. Whatever is done to make this development a permanent addition will be done in a spot easily accessible, particularly to visitors, whom it should be designed to attract. What it is practical to save is a question to be decided by architects, exhibitors, landscape designers, and the officials. A number of questions will enter into decisions, but it is certain that with the opportunities presented Chicago can develop a permanent attraction which will find favor in the eyes of a large part of the country, be a continuing reason for travel to this city, and be a delight to the people of it.

BASEBALL'S REDUCED GATE.

Although New York City gave the Giants a bit of a festival when they won the National league championship, the cash customers did not break any attendance records at the two games played on the home grounds. Even Mayor O'Brien failed to appear when he should have given his countenance to the festivities, something a popular leader feels himself required to do just to prove how thoroughly he is one of the boys. New York's indifference could be explained by perceiving that it must not yield to the enthusiasms of smaller places but must keep slightly above them.

When the games were moved to Washington it was thought that the populace would uprise in the old accustomed manner. Baseball is one of the few products of Washington which is not governmental and a winning team there has been regarded as one of the highest accomplishments of man outside of the products of the various alphabetical arrangements of government. But there were vacant bleacher seats in Washington and that leaves something to be explained. It may be that the transient population of Washington is too busy sitting on doorsteps waiting for jobs and the permanently employed population is too submerged in the new forms of government to take a half day off. Through most of the hard times the great popular sports held their own with surprising vigor. There is no evidence out here that a championship baseball team could play to anything but full houses. The east hasn't filled its bleachers, which may be explained by a loss of interest or a loss of money.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT'S WRONG WITH NEW YORK.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Nowhere, in the various proposals put forth to solve the grave financial crisis facing New York City, do we find that those who are trying to help have a view of the broader aspects of the problems of the metropolis. Most of the proposals are mere expedients and many of them are extremely dubious. All are basically political. This is unfortunate, since New York's troubles are economic.

What is the matter with New York City? What are the causes of the delinquencies in taxes? Aside from the waste and extravagance in the government, what important changes affecting the economic well-being of the metropolis have taken place in recent years? What social trends have altered real estate values? And how can the city counteract these adverse developments?

It is not enough to say that there has been a depression and let that stand as a complete explanation of all of the city's troubles. New York has gone through many depressions. Its growth has never been retarded by them. The one aspect of the present depression that has played havoc with New York has been the paralysis of foreign trade.

We seldom hear any city official refer to New York harbor, yet it is the harbor that makes the metropolis. Most of our business comes, directly or indirectly, from the port. Until the Roosevelt administration does something to revive foreign trade New York and all the other port cities in America will continue to suffer. Instead of silly "Buy American" movements the port cities should be sending delegations to Washington to urge action to revive shipping.

Nothing that can be done by the city or state government can fully restore prosperity in New York until the chief activity of the city—which is shipping—is revived. There is no sound reason why New York should increase in population or wealth unless we are to expand the business of the port. Our depression starts at the waterfront.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

I WISH NEWSPAPERS wouldn't be so indefinite in their big streamer captions on the front page. Now, the familiar headline, "Several Dead, Scores Wounded in Big Battle," might come from Cuba, China, Germany, Russia, or the coal fields of Pennsylvania or southern Illinois. In these days of universal peace life is just one damn battle after another.

THE LINE HEREWITH places a neat but substantial wreath of posies and forget-me-nots on the site of the statue of Leif Ericson. The site is going to be dedicated tomorrow, but the Line can't wait. Mr. Ericson is my favorite hero; he discovered America and after peering into the future for a few minutes decided it would be best to forget it. Ah, if Columbus had only been that smart! But he discovered and then blabbed it. What a pity! What a pity!

TO THE AGEING YEAR.

This, my good Year, is October:
Time to reflect, to grow sober;
Time to abandon the ways
Of Summer's dalliant days.

Time to repent and repine,
Slipper your feet and recline
Where the faint sunlight gleams,
With your pipe and your dreams.

Time to repent and abjure.
This is October, good Year,
The reddest leaves are all sere.

Listen, my fond Year, to reason:
There is a time and a season
For all things. Harvest is over.

Trust not the Indian Summer,
Hope not for anything from her;
She is old, you are old,
And her kisses are cold.

This is October—October,
The Nemesis, the Disrober.
Soon the trees will be bare
And Death ride through the air.

Ice-armored Death will ride forth
Out of his realm in the North;
Close to your couch he will creep,—
Fear him not; he brings sleep.

UP IN KENOSHA they're bragging over a marvel—a rooster that lays eggs, or a hen that crows, have it either way you like. The NRA will take care of that bird—if it is a rooster it will observe by reading its code more carefully it has no right to lay eggs and if it is a hen then it isn't permitted to make false representation by crowing like a rooster. Sic 'em, NRA!

MR. EFTAX, the w. k. Greek who is looming very prominently now in the Insull picture, says he spent 5,000 drachmas in cable tolls to America. Five thousand drachmas sounds very impressive, but further down in the story is the statement that 5,000 drachmas is $50 in United States money, or, as the American tourists say, "real money." Which suggests an idea. There seems to be so much trouble in having our money inflated, why not change the name? Instead of dollars let's call the darned things drachmas. It would be a lot more exciting to have five thousand drachmas than a paltry fifty dollars. Still, the thing has its drawbacks. When we paid for eighteen or twenty gallons of gas for the old family bus it would seem as though we were paying off the war debts of all Europe.

POLA NEGRI says she is too busy to get married and lots of people have said the same thing, the idea being not at all original with Pola. But it's a strange thing, while people generally are often too busy to get married I've never found any one yet who wanted a divorce who was too busy to get it. Humans are a queer lot!

THAT INESCAPABLE old law of compensation is always working. When we gain we lose. Superior Judge Ross C. Hall says "the traditional family woodshed is still the place to stop crime and that whipping would do more to cure bad boys than anything else." And it's true; but today we have coal furnaces and gas and oil burners down in the cellar, and consequently we none of us have a woodshed. But why wouldn't it be a good idea to forget about the traditional woodshed and give Junior a proper dressing down in the garage? Everybody's got a garage. It might not work, but it wouldn't hurt to give it a try.

AND NOW THE NAZIS have gone and done it. I'm through with them forever. Herr Hitler's minister of propaganda says the saxophone possesses vibrant and sympathetic tones and there's no reason why it shouldn't be sold, bought, and used. Good-by, Nazis! That's the last straw.

BETRAYAL.

Lost continents, men say, lie buried deep
Off rugged coasts that still may bravely stand,
Where pharos perhaps a constant vigil keep

Men speak of safety huddled on the shore,
But the soft kiss that waters give to land,
It is a Judas kiss and nothing more,
Presaging that betrayal is at hand.

For tides betray the shore and storms can tell
The destiny of the firm earth we proudly know.
These niter cliffs will stand a little spell,
All earth is transient and it soon must go.

THIRTY-TWO MEMBERS of the reforestation army have been fired because they wouldn't work in the rain. I had heard it was because the colonel wouldn't tell 'em bedtime stories and kiss 'em good-night.

APRAXIA.

SOME children have a natural inability to write—that is, they are outstandingly poor in penmanship. In some instances this peculiarity is a part of the child's makeup and it may have been a part of his inheritance. It is these cases that are under consideration. Just now we are not even thinking of the children who write poorly because they are awkward about everything, nor even those who have no natural manual dexterity—who never can do things well with their hands. The limitation now is to those who are very poor in penmanship and who cannot be taught by the use of copybooks or any other stereotyped school method. The word alexia is used to indicate those who have an inability of a peculiar kind to read. A companion word, apraxia, is used for the inability to achieve in penmanship.

Dr. S. T. Orton, who has done such valuable research in speech difficulties, attributes this type of lack of ability in penmanship, as well as difficulty in speaking words, to a rivalry between the two sides of the brain. All the thinking portions of the brain, at least, are built in duplicate. One set of the thinking machinery is on the right side of the head and goes by the name the right hemisphere, while the set on the opposite side is called the left hemisphere. Between the two there is a wide, deep cañon, but at the lower and rear areas there are bands by which the two are connected. Commonly, the machinery on one side dominates and that on the other is either held in reserve or plays second fiddle. Since fibers from the left hemisphere serve the right side of the body and since most persons are right minded, right footed, and right eyed, we know that customarily the left hemisphere dominates the right.

In the case of the left handed people—who, incidentally, are left footed and left eyed—it is the right hemisphere which dominates. As a rule, the dominance of one side or the other is clear cut and well defined, and the other appears to be content to take orders. Occasionally the two continue to be rivals and to more or less interfere with each other all through life. That is the condition Dr. Orton thinks exists in typical alexias and apraxias.

It may be the reason some persons are scatter brained and more or less muddled in their ideas. Such was the speculative theory of a French scientist of the long ago, but he never proved his point unless, as some claimed, his own thinking and his own brain were convincing evidence.

Dr. Orton says some children with apraxia as to penmanship do mirror writing very well. Others write upside down without difficulty. [The people in this group have one qualification for a good room clerk in a hotel.]

He advises all parents and teachers of children of the poor penmanship group to study their charges as to mirror writing and upside down writing. The way those children hold their pens and the slant they give the letters they make will often indicate that the trouble is due to incomplete dominance of one side of the brain.

Another way of expressing the basic failure is to say that they fail to establish the adult pattern of a cerebral dominance. When the difficulty with penmanship is found to be of this type the teaching should be directed to training the brain in dominance of one hemisphere and away from rivalry between hemispheres.

ATHLETES' BEER.

C. H. G. writes: Contrary to what you say, some coaches allow beer on the athletes' training table. They do so at the University of Wisconsin. Also in England, France, Germany. A British subject recently made a record mile. In all probability he used beer in training.

REPLY.

Maybe you are right. It's just too bad the University of Wisconsin has not been doing well in athletics lately.

Maybe that Briton did use beer. Who knows? Maybe if he had not he might have done better. Who knows? What's one athlete and what he did among thousands of men and hundreds of records?

Mrs. O. T. writes: After returning to my home, which had been rented furnished for several months, I found two bedbugs. The room is newly papered and the woodwork and floor are in good condition. It was apparently kept very clean. I can find no more bugs, but will you please let me know how to destroy any more there may be?

REPLY.

In a new house, with not many cracks in the walls, and not many bugs, use of the following is about all that is needed: One ounce of corrosive sublimate, 1 pint alcohol, ¼ pint turpentine. Make up enough for immediate use, label "poison," and keep out of reach of children.

RELAXATION HELPS.

H. A. writes: Our 15 year old boy has grown very little in the last eighteen months. He is apparently well, but moves constantly even when reading. He works, talks, eats too rapidly. Would definite short periods of relaxation help?

REPLY.

Yes, very much. So far as growth is concerned that should continue until age 17.

DIVORCE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In a divorce case the husband sued his wife. 1. The divorce was granted to her. 2. Is it necessary that she sign the deeds to an eighty acre farm and a house and lot in the city? By not signing has she any claim on this property? H. A. W.

1. We assume that the decree is silent as to property rights.

2. On the facts stated she would still have a dower interest so that her signature would be necessary in order to convey a clear title, if that is what you mean to ask.

STORAGE.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have a car in storage. The receipt was signed in my husband's name only. Can I, the wife, take that car out, as my husband has given me permission? My husband is in Europe and will not be here for some time.

P. C.

If you have written authority from him we see no reason why you should not be permitted to take the car as far as the bare facts stated are concerned.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If you owe a bill to a firm and that firm goes into bankruptcy, can a collecting lawyer sue for it if there is no such company any more?

Ordinarily such accounts receivable are sold with other assets in the bankruptcy proceedings and the purchaser at such sale would be entitled to collect from the debtor

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

The I. O. Co. asks: Can you advise us the latest data on how many acres of land are in cultivation in Illinois and approximate amount of acres devoted to each principal farm crop?

Answer—The state and federal crop reporting service lists Illinois as having 18,206,500 acres devoted to principal crops in 1932, of which 72.4 per cent is in feed grains: Corn, 47.6 per cent; oats, 22.8 per cent; barley, 2 per cent, and cash grains, largely wheat, 8.5 per cent. Hay, forage, and hay seed crops take 13.9 per cent, annual legumes 4.4 per cent, and truck crops .7 per cent of the total acreage.

F. H. J. asks: What is the best way to estimate the amount of hay in a stack? Doesn't age of the stack make some difference?

Answer—To determine number of tons of hay in a stack multiply the overthrow [distance from ground on one side to ground on other side] by the length of the width [all in feet] of the stack, then multiply by 3, divide by ten and then divide by 500 to 600, depending upon age of the stack. Yes, age makes difference. Hay less than 30 days old has 589.6 cubic feet per ton, between 30 and 60 days has 581 cubic feet per ton, and from 74 to 155 days has 514 cubic feet per ton.

H. J. K. asks: Is there some way of determining the average depreciation in farm land from 1930 to 1933?

Answer—Studies made at the Illinois college of agriculture at Urbana show a decline of 15 per cent a year in the acre value of Illinois farm real estate between March 1, 1930, and March 1, 1933, a rate of change said to have no equal since 1920, when valuations began to fall.

NRA Question Box

Following are some typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers as given by Paul Kunning, secretary of the Chicago Recovery council which is aiding President Roosevelt's economic rehabilitation movement here. Other questions and their answers will be given in this column daily.

QUESTION—In cases where store operations are conducted by members of one family, do these come under the code with regard to hours and wages?

ANSWER—In cases of small stores operated by husband and wife, for example, the wife is considered a joint owner and is not subject to the hourly limitations of the President's reemployment agreement, under which retail stores will operate until a retail code is in effect. Other members of the family, however, who are working in the store, come under the hours and wages established by the NRA.

ANSWER—All employés of doctors are subject to the President's agreement providing the doctor in question elects to sign the agreement. Employés who are, in fact, professionals, such as internes, nurses, and the like, are not subject to the maximum hour provisions, but are subject to the minimum wage.

PROSPERITY BY BALLYHOO.

Irwin, Pa., Sept. 20.—Government outlay is simply being diverted from one channel to another, and the waste in useless activities is becoming intolerable. What sort of economy is it which requires two expense books instead of one, a cabinet and a super-cabinet, new boards and super-boards, organized authorities for this and for that, councils, committees, and subcommittees that are multiplying like mosquitoes, and an army of five hundred dollar a month administrators, deputy administrators, coordinators, mediators, supervisors, exhorters, publicity agents, official meddlers and snoopers, with titles and duties the like of which was never heard of, and which are spreading over the land like a pestilence?

We all want business to continue forward, but the political nostrums now being rammed down our throats in the name of recovery are defeating their own purpose, for to even begin to administer them is requiring extravagant and ferocious methods of government such as no free people can or will continue to tolerate.

Senator Wagner recently asserted that capitalism was to be given one more trial. Just when is this trial to begin? What we are now getting is certainly not capitalism. Judging from reports, our business and financial men are being cowed and bullied into silence, their advice is being disregarded, and the management of their affairs taken out of their hands by people who are simply intoxicated by the power that has been delegated to them. Is it any wonder that both small and big business is beginning to feel depressed and nervous and that recovery is being checked?

President Roosevelt told us last May that we could not ballyhoo ourselves into prosperity. Why, then, not dispense with the ballyhoo? Business would rather hear some cogent statement on money policy, if there is to be one. But above all else, government should cease its stupid, bungling attempts to dictate every detail of the nation's economic life. Any one not bedeviled by fanatical theories must realize that if it persists in present tactics we may lose our shirts; after which the brain trust would doubtless declare the failure of "capitalism."

R. E. NEWELL.

NO, WE EXPECT AN INVITATION TO MOSCOW.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Today whilst sipping a snit of beer in one of these new cute little boudoir taverns a gentleman who had had two snits informed me he had heard that when the United States recognizes Russia THE TRIBUNE will move to Riga. There's no truth in this, is there? M. A. M. DONNELL.

FROM A FORMER BANK DIRECTOR.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 29.—Your editorial of Sept. 27, "The Harbinger of Disaster," is timely. The national bank examiners are solely responsible for most of our bank troubles. As a former bank director, I recall the time when bank examiners insisted upon banks establishing a "secondary reserve." Up to that time it was customary to invest surplus funds in self-liquidating high grade commercial paper. Losses in this type of investment were negligible.

For a secondary reserve bank examiners recommended the purchase of market bonds. When bankers began buying bonds they immediately became speculators. The temptation for profit led to continued trading. High pressure bond salesmen induced bankers to buy and trade in questionable bonds with high yields. Then banks joined syndicates in bond distribution for profit. Finally, when business conditions changed, along comes an arrogant bank examiner, demanding extreme liquidity.

Bonds were thrown on the market and tremendous losses ensued. These enormous losses undermined the assets of all the banks. This is what reduced their assets to an alarming degree.

The bank examiners as a class gave no consideration to local conditions. In their supercilious manner any paper not collateraled with marketable securities had no value. Notes endorsed by reputable citizens worthy of highest credit were thrown out of the banks' portfolios. Solvency counted for naught. Liquidity was their sole standard.

It is no wonder banks had to fail under these conditions, inaugurated and fostered by the banking department.

MARGUERITE'S FINGERNAILS.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 30.—The San Carlo Opera company deserves much credit for producing the principal operas in our city of Chicago at the time of the World's Fair. I am wondering, however, whether it would not be advisable for the impersonator of Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust" to appear without her fingernails being tinted with that ugliest red liquid nail polish. I am certain that in the sixteenth century [at the time of the play] no maiden of the charming simplicity of Marguerite, i. e., of the German Gretchen type, would have ever thought of spoiling the looks of her fingernails in the manner some of our modern women do. TORIES APPROVE BRITISH REFORM POLICY IN INDIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—By a majority of 2 to 1, the Conservative party passed a quasi-favorable opinion on the British government's Indian policy at Birmingham today in a vote placed before the convention by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, as a question of confidence.

The die-hard revolt against constitutional reforms was only temporarily dealt with, however, for the motion merely suspends judgment until the reform bill is presented to parliament some time next year.

Churchill Is Opposition Leader.

Winston Churchill, Lord Lloyd, and other imperialists of the old school with the backing of the press of Lords Beaverbrook and Rothmere, had been whooping up opposition to the government's policy preparatory to today's vote. A hubbub continually marked the debate, but the government's supporters won by a vote of 737 to 344.

The opposition motion was proposed by Viscount Wolmer. It expressed confidence in the national government, but apprehension over the proposed reforms under which a certain measure of self-government would be granted the brown millions of India.

To this motion Sir Thomas White proposed an amendment approving the caution with which the government is proceeding in its Indian plans, but withholding final decision until the constitutional committee, now sitting, has finished its work. A suspended decision was just what the Conservative leaders wanted, having issued the order to organizers that they must wait and see before free expression will be permitted.

Cry "Rot" During Speech.

One of the stormiest speeches was delivered by P. J. Hannon in support of the government's policy. He appealed to the delegates to keep the Tory party together, to trust in Secretary for India Sir Samuel Hoare, and support the constitutional committee. His speech was punctuated by cries of "Rot."

"Do not let us raise in any mind anything that will make us in the eyes of the whole of Europe and in the eyes of America——"

"It is very important that we should keep cool heads," Chamberlain declared. "While the first resolution expressed confidence in the national government, it really amounted to a vote of lack of confidence in the government's Indian policy."

Labor Opposes Indian Policy.

HASTINGS, England, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The Labor party conference wound up a week of oratory today by adopting resolutions protesting Great Britain's Indian policy and urging the formulation of a trade treaty with the soviet union. The Indian resolution also called for the release of all political prisoners.

The trade resolution urged the granting of credit facilities to implement the treaty. J. Hodgkinson of Dudley declared labor had to fight a constant stream of anti-soviet propaganda and that "you cannot tar and feather soviet Russia without tarring and feathering the British Labor party."

MRS. W. M. BLAIR TO ASK DIVORCE ON CRUELTY PLEA

Mrs. William Mitchell Blair will file suit for divorce within a week, her attorney, Norman H. Pritchard, announced last night. The charge probably will be cruelty, the attorney said. Pritchard said it would surprise him if the suit were contested.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Blair, which took place on Dec. 31, 1921, in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, was a social event. She is the former Martha McCullough Granger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Granger of Lake Forest, and a granddaughter of Marvin Hughitt. On her marriage license in 1921 her age was given as 21, her husband's as 28.

Mr. Blair, formerly president of the Dealers' Equipment company, is the son of Mrs. Chauncey Blair, who makes her home at Chambesy, Switzerland. His father was Chauncey Justus Blair. A student at Cornell university, William Mitchell Blair left the school before graduation in 1917 to enter the navy, serving as ensign and lieutenant in naval aviation from May, 1917, to December, 1918. He was decorated with the Navy Cross.

The Blairs after their marriage lived in Lake Forest. They moved to 1311 Astor street two years ago.

After the divorce hearing Mrs. Blair will depart for Georgetown, a suburb of Washington, D. C., to join her parents in their home there. Her children, Bobby, 10 years old, and Billy, 8, are there now.

'RAILROAD JACK,' 79, HUMAN HISTORY BOOK, IS DEAD IN MICHIGAN

Coldwater, Mich., Oct. 6.—(AP)—"Railroad Jack," the wandering human history book, is dead. His real name was Harry Cooper, but few knew that. He plied his trade mostly in college towns and he could tell when Mirabeau was born, how old Croesus was when he died, the age of Mary, Queen of Scots; the length of Peter the Great's whiskers—all without so much as consulting a notebook.

He made his headquarters at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor and today his body was found in an abandoned outbuilding here. Physicians said he apparently died of heart failure. He was 79.

"There are 100,000 characters in history," said "Railroad Jack," "and I can tell something about 5,000 of them. The average person can't name more than 100."

Not long ago he said he had willed his body, after death, to the University of Michigan medical school.

LIVED NEAR WILMETTE.

Steve O'Conner 'Loans' Issue, He Avers.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—An elderly former employé of the Black Diamond line, operators of government vessels, told senate investigators of ocean mail contracts today he was discharged by the line after he had been told he "needn't lean backward to be honest" and because he refused to "coöperate" with the company.

The witness was Benjamin A. Harnett, employed by the Black Diamond for two years as operating manager. He was summoned unexpectedly to the committee witness stand by the chairman, Senator Black [Dem., Ala.] to elaborate on a chance remark regarding his dismissal made by a previous witness.

The incident that directly brought about his dismissal, Harnett told Black, was his refusal to approve an item for labor by Steve O'Connor, whom he identified as a son of T. V. O'Connor, then chairman of the shipping board.

Tells of "Borrowing."

Charles Hamilton, at that time chief stevedore for the company, Harnett said, came to him to tell "about the circumstances." Hamilton told him, Harnett said, that Steve O'Connor had gotten into the habit of coming to him to borrow money and the only way he could get it back was to get an extra labor permit to cover the amount of the loan.

"I questioned him and he told me the labor had not been performed."

"I believe Mr. Hamilton complained to Mr. Dockendorff about me," Harnett said, referring to J. E. Dockendorff, president of the Black Diamond.

Calls It "Petty Larceny."

"Yes," replied Harnett, "that was all discussed. We had quite a heated discussion. I said it was petty larceny and I didn't propose to be a party to it."

Harnett added that Dockendorff told him "I needn't lean backward to be honest and that I had refused to cooperate." He said Dockendorff asked for his resignation, which was given.

Black opened his questioning by asking Harnett if he "found the federal government was being overcharged."

"Yes," Harnett said, and then in response to a second question said:

"Due to the padding of stevedoring bills, by introduction of extra labor and overtime charges."

Harnett said he was employed by the shipping board after leaving the Black Diamond, but he had been out of work since August of last year.

JUDGE TO ORDER OUSTER OF GRANT PARK RAILROAD

After a two months legal fight by Attorney General Kerner to stop operation of the narrow gauge railroad in Grant park from Monroe street to the World's Fair, Judge John P. McGoorty will issue an injunction Monday in the Superior court restraining the company which owns the railway from operating it and ordering removal of the tracks within 30 days.

Maclay Hoyne, attorney for the railroad, agreed to the injunction yesterday at a conference attended by Assistant Attorney General James G. Skinner and attorneys for the south park board and creditors of the railroad. Judge McGoorty will appoint a receiver to conserve the assets of the railroad.

Biography of Flush Written by Virginia Woolf.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Flush," by Virginia Woolf. [Harcourt-Brace.] Published on Thursday.

"THE most gifted pen in England" is not an unusual phrase in critical description of the work of Virginia Woolf. If at times that pen draws from some readers a sharp cry of pain, always it pricks their innermost minds into action, stimulates them as no pen of the present day can stimulate.

Always it is "fine" in the French sense of refinement to its essence.

Always the words, woven into a pattern by it, are supremely beautiful. Even when, as in "The Waves," the meaning of the pattern is a bit obscure to most readers, the beauty is lucent.

Mrs. Woolf's latest book is a short biography of Flush, Elizabeth Barrett Browning's cocker spaniel, a dog that played a major rôle in her life and inspired still living poetry. It is at the same time a subtle presentation of dog psychology, a vivid picture of a pale and sickly woman galvanized into life by love, a new picture of the happy married life of two of England's greatest poets, and a piece of writing delicious in its subtleties and energizing in its beauty.

It is strange and wondrous how vivifying beautiful prose can be to any one who has a feeling for words. . . . Poetry is merely another pattern—often a more circumscribed one than prose . . . it is the song that is in words that counts.

The beginning of "Flush" was read aloud to me by a thoughtful friend who disapproved of the too-quick dimming of my eyes by night as well as day time reading. There are few books which bear the test of being read aloud. Nothing breaks up the solid impressiveness of a page of print into either jewels or mere cobbles like being read aloud. It is a rare sequence of pages that can stand that test. As the sentences grew into paragraphs and the paragraphs into pages in the voice of the reader, "Flush" became more and more a lovely pattern of words, more and more an æsthetic delight to listen to.

There are those who claim that Virginia Woolf is only for the few. However that verdict may have applied to some of her books in the past (though nothing could be more pellucid than "A Room of One's Own," for instance), no living reader could find anything esoteric in "Flush," anything difficult to understand. It has that quality which the French call "cristal pur"—the clarity, the purity of crystal. One has only once to have looked upon true crystal (in the Monte Alban treasure, for instance) to realize with what exactness that phrase describes.

"Flush," as writing, is sheer pleasure, an almost sensory one. To those who feel for dogs a special tie (and to my mind the nicest people in the world do) the understanding with which the author has described the relationship between Flush and Elizabeth Barrett Browning (which was one of the real emotions of her life), the subtlety with which she sets down the intense devotion between them giving place to a more intimate love in "Miss Barrett's" life, and the richness with which Mrs. Woolf has brought to words the sensory life of a dog is utter delight. And always she writes with a humor so quiet that it glows without ever glaring.

"It was common knowledge that Mrs. Carlyle's dog Nero had leapt from a top story window with the intention of committing suicide. He had found the strain of life in Cheyne row intolerable, it was said," declares the author. "Indeed, Flush could well believe it now that he was back in Welbeck street (in taboo-bound England after months in unfettered Italy). The confinement, the crowd of little objects, the black beetles by night, the bluebottles by day, the lingering odors of mutton, the perpetual presence on the sideboard of bananas—all this, together with the proximity of several men and women, heavily dressed and not often or indeed completely washed, wrought on his temper and strained his nerves."

There, in a paragraph, is not only the essence of a period but of a sensitive psychology. . . . How many of us feel the same way about life . . . confinement . . . the crowd of little objects . . . the perpetual presence of bananas . . . the proximity of too many people with their minds not often or indeed completely washed. . . .

It is in what Mrs. Woolf doesn't say (but implies), as much as in what she says, that her genius lies.

"Flush" is an October selection of the Book of the Month club.

Flush has another literary celebration in "Flush of Wimpole Street and Broadway," by Flora Merrill (McBride), an amusing tale of the actual dog that shared co-starring honors with Katharine Cornell in her moving presentation of the fragile Elizabeth Barrett, whom love rescued in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Woven into this Flush's story are excerpts from the letters of the Brownings and Mrs. Browning's diary about the original Flush. Delightful illustrations by "Edwina" enhance the book's charm.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—At first blush American readers may not think that an autobiography written by Christopher Stone means a work of importance, but in England the potential public for this book runs to millions. I do not say that the book will sell in millions. Mr. Stone is the son of an Eton master and is the brother-in-law of Compton Mackenzie.

A good many years ago he wrote some interesting novels, the titles of which are not now remembered. But some seven years ago, when Mr. Mackenzie first discovered the gramophone and started a monthly journal to deal with its works, he called upon Mr. Stone to lend him a hand. Mr. Stone did this.

And when the British Broadcasting corporation was established it wanted somebody to give recitals of gramophone records. Mr. Stone was appointed. He had nothing to do, you will say, except to put the records on the turntable and wind the gramophone. But he has the ideal radio personality, and is known to nearly all radio users in England for his pleasant voice and dry humor.

He is one of the three most popular radio stars in this country, if not the most popular of all. He is also an excellent writer and raconteur; he saw service in the European war and rose to the rank of a major, and has a wide and rich knowledge of men and women much in the public eye. His book should, therefore, be a good book, when it is finished, and the public awaiting it, in this country at least, is enormous. He has lately made several appearances upon the vaudeville stage, always with success, and is an extraordinary instance of a man who in middle life has unexpectedly found something new to do which he can do better than anybody else.

The reading public is being well catered to in the early days of the new season. Miss Arnot Robertson's new novel, "Ordinary People," has been given a rapturous reception. This will please Miss Robertson's many American admirers, who may be assured that the new book is the best she has written so far.

There is a new book by H. M. Tomlinson just out [Tomlinson and his son have been traveling about England together this summer in collecting material for a book which they are writing in collaboration], there is the new novel by L. A. G. Strong, the new prophetic work of H. G. Wells, "The Shape of Things to Come," the first volume of Mr. Lloyd George's work on the war, the first volume of Winston Churchill's biography of Marlborough, and a host of other attractive publications.

Another work, not yet ready, but highly promising, is a new "life" of the prince of Wales, by Ian Lang, called "Royal Highness." Mr. Lang is an experienced journalist of quality, and his book will not be rubbish, such as royal personages usually inspire. It may be very good, indeed.

Authors Tell Vivid Story of Head Reducing Rites

Carl Liddle and David Thibault in "Tunchi" [Century] give a vivid and harrowing account of the head reducing rites in a savage Indian tribe in Ecuador. The high prices curio hunters have paid for the heads has increased the number of decapitations, since the motive of profit has been added to that of revenge. So it is now forbidden by the government for traders to have the heads in their possession or for people to export them.

Burns Mantle Picks Ten Best Plays of 1909-'19 in New Book

What Burns Mantle does so usefully and interestingly for the best plays of each year he has done for "The Best Plays of 1909-1919" [Dodd-Mead] with the assistance of Garrison P. Sherwood. Mr. Mantle started his annual survey in 1919 and this volume includes the best of the plays appearing in the decade before that. It is a guide, philosopher, and friend for theatergoers. You've no notion how hard it is to find the things which are so ably assembled in this priceless volume, countless statistics about when, by whom, and with what casts the plays were produced.

The ten plays which Mr. Mantle chooses as the best of the decade and gives his readers in his popular pemmicanized form are: "The Easiest Way," by Eugene Walter; "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," by Harry James Smith; "Disraeli," by Louis Napoleon Parker; "Romance," by Edward Sheldon; "Seven Keys to Baldpate," by George M. Cohan [from the novel by Earl Derr Biggers]; "On Trial," by Elmer Rice; "The Unchastened Woman," by Louis Kaufman Anspacher; "Good Gracious, Annabelle," by Clare Kummer; "Why Marry?" by Jesse Lynch Williams, and "John Ferguson," by St. John Ervine.

What thrilling memories those titles recall . . . those were the days! Which reminds us of a reply a bright boy once made to the wail of a theater lover that "the theater isn't what it used to be." "And it never was," he sagely observed.

Biography of Cermak Is Given High Praise by State's Attorney

"Anton, the Martyr," by H. K. Barnard [Marion Publishing company], the biography of Anton J. Cermak, is paid a high tribute by State's Attorney Courtney in the introduction to this short biography. He also writes that Mayor Cermak's life was "proof of the soundness of democracy, of the theory in America that not wealth and fine family but ability and character are the means by which men obtain power and position." This biography is a brief recital of the career of the dead mayor from the days when he was a Bohemian mule driver in coal mines to his death on last March 6.

THE FIRST WORLD WAR
A PHOTOGRAPHIC HISTORY
FREE - for your library

No book in years has received such unreserved praise from men and women of eminence. The comments below could be multiplied, from letters and editorials, a hundred times over.

CHARLES A. BEARD
"A smashing book of exposition, interpretation, and damnation I hope that it gives all the Captains and Kings the nightmare they deserve, to the end of the world. You may quote me as saying this."

ARTHUR BRISBANE
"Nobody will ever write a book that will tell as much about the war as those pictures can tell There is the war before you."

WALTER LIPPMANN

HEYWOOD BROUN
"... the best of the war books 'Tactical Blunder,' standing in black type under the picture of dead men in a trench, says just as much as anybody has achieved in a hundred thousand words"

HERVEY ALLEN
"All that can be done with the visual sense to give the reader of this book a personal experience of warfare has been accomplished. The photograph editing is superb, and Mr Stallings' captions little less than miraculous."

HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE "Ray Moley was in my office when it arrived, and it took brute force to drag him away from the pictures after he had started to look at them"

IDA M. TARBELL "I think I have never been so stirred by captions. They are so grim and understanding. Never have I seen a book which better proved the self-deception, the insanity and unspeakable horror of war"

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER "Truly this is a most remarkable production, and I trust will be found in thousands upon thousands of our public libraries and schools where the youth of today may obtain through the eye the most vivid of impressions of the horrors, the cruelties and barbarities of war"

REICHSTAG FIRE PRISONER CLAIMS HE WAS 'FRAMED'

Bulgarian Red Is Ejected from Courtroom.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Fiery Georgi Dimitroff, shouting "I wish I had a gun—I would use it," was expelled from the court room today after he had taunted the Supreme court justices hearing the Reichstag fire trial and accused a policeman of being a liar.

The court room was thrown into a tumult and many of the spectators laughed as the defendant, former leader of the Bulgarian communists, by his tactics handicapped the prosecution's efforts to substantiate charges of high treason against him and Blagoi Popoff, another Bulgarian.

The defiant Dimitroff was led from the court room by police and clapped into his cell for the remainder of the day after the presiding judge, Wilhelm Buenger, exclaimed, "my cup is full," and ordered him removed for "insulting the court."

Claims Records Were Falsified.

This followed a continued tirade by the defendant during which he charged the court records had been falsified and assailed the police as "incompetent."

His parting remark as he was taken out the door was: "I want to save my head—this is an outrage—my sentence already is fixed."

The spectators laughed at the biting comment of Dimitroff while the court was questioning him about books and pamphlets confiscated in his library. Holding up one of the volumes, the prosecution asked Dimitroff to identify it.

Calls Police Chief Liar.

A short time later he called Police Commissioner Heisig a liar after telling the court a document frequently being referred to was falsified.

"What you are reading," he said, "isn't the same as that which was read to me."

Dimitroff charged detectives had made marks on a map of Berlin found in his library which showed the Reichstag building, the Dutch legation, and the palace marked with crosses.

"In view of my great experience gained in preliminary hearings I charge that the crosses were made by detectives," he declared. "I assume full responsibility for this charge."

Another storm broke when the voluble witness made uncomplimentary remarks about the police in connection with the deciphering of his telephone code. "Naturally I kept the numbers secret," he said.

The judge interrupted him with the charge that the numbers were those of several prominent communists.

Questions Second Bulgarian.

The court started the cross-examination of Popoff after Dimitroff had been led away. Buenger asked Popoff: "How about the slip found in your possession containing several military phrases, both German and Bulgarian?"

The witness explained he was trying to learn German and "those happened to be unfamiliar words in connection with the Geneva disarmament conference reports."

The judge produced a receipt for a camera. Popoff asserted he had bought it for personal pleasure, denying it was for possible military use. Receipts for money payments, he said, covered materials and expenses for the Bulgarian communists.

SUES FOR DIVORCE

WIFE IS SEEKING A DIVORCE FROM SHIPOWNER COX

Names Chicago Women in Her Suit.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Thelma Agnes Goertz Cox, wife of George M. Cox, New Orleans millionaire shipbuilder and former manufacturer's agent for malt, Friday filed suit asking for a divorce from her husband on grounds of infidelity, and asks that she be granted $5,000 per month alimony and an injunction served on her husband prohibiting him from visiting her or her son.

A week ago Cox issued a sensational story of the kidnaping of his wife and child and his wife's parents when he returned home to find her absent.

Names Chicago Woman.

Mrs. Cox in her suit names two women, both of Chicago. She charged Cox with too friendly relations with a woman known as Mildred Mason of Chicago, on June 4, 1933, at a hotel in Chicago, on June 6 at the Medinah Athletic club in Chicago, and on June 9 on the Isle Royale, one of Cox's great lake steamers.

A second woman, Mayo Spaulding, also of Chicago, was named by Mrs. Cox as having remained in Cox's room at the Medinah club in Chicago until 3 a. m. on the morning of June 28 on the pretext of applying for a job.

Mrs. Cox further charges that on another occasion she unexpectedly arrived on the Isle Royale while Cox was in the company of Miss Mason and that Cox caused Miss Mason to be entered on the crew's list.

Fears for Her Safety.

Mrs. Cox asks for a complete divorce because of her husband's "shameful conduct" which, she claims, to have brought disgrace on herself and child. Because of "protracted drinking of intoxicating liquors" Mrs. Cox says that she fears physical harm from her husband, and asked the court to issue an injunction preventing him from visiting either her or her baby.

She says Cox has an income of $150,000 a year.

Smoke Overcomes Fireman Fighting North Side Blaze

Charles T. Callender, 31 years old, 7032 Emerald avenue, a city fireman attached to engine company 11, was recovering yesterday at the Henrotin hospital after having been overcome by smoke while fighting an early morning fire at 601 North Wells street. The other firemen returned to the two story frame building and dragged him to safety. Damage to the building was estimated at $1,000 by Michael Cody, chief of the Second battalion.

CALL IN CHICAGO MILKMEN WHO IGNORED ORDERS

Face Public Hearing at Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Between forty and fifty Chicago milk distributors will be haled to Washington within the next few weeks, it was learned today, to stand trial before the farm adjustment administration on charges of violating the federal milk marketing agreement for the Chicago area.

Many of the 111 dairies against which the government took initial action for alleged violation of the milk pact have filed satisfactory answers to the charges, it was indicated, but a large number is reported to have expressed a defiant attitude. These, in accordance with the procedure set up in the farm act, will be summoned to Washington for a public hearing before punitive action is taken. The hearings are to begin probably on Oct. 16, it was said.

Meanwhile, on the recommendation of the A. A. A. licensing and enforcement section, Secretary Wallace prepared to cancel the hearing, scheduled for Oct. 10, on the charges brought by the government against the Meadowmoor Dairy company of Chicago. Time will be given before the cancellation, however, to ascertain that the new owners of the Meadowmoor company live up to promises of compliance with the milk pact which they have already given A. A. A. officials. A representative of Secretary Wallace said:

"The new owners of Meadowmoor Dairies have agreed to sign the Chicago agreement with the other contracting parties, and they have also instructed their drivers, store clerks and other employes to obey the license rules and price schedules of the agreement in every particular."

DE VALERA'S FOES STONED BY MOB; TROOPS CALLED

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 6.—Violent scenes occurred today at Tralee, County Kerry, where the United Ireland party is holding a convention. Gen. Owen O'Duffy, leader of the Blue Shirts, and E. J. Cronin, general secretary of the party, arrived from Dublin by automobile. Walking to the convention hall they were stoned by a mob of Republicans.

Police drew a cordon about the visitors, but the crowd broke through and scuffled with the officers. Gen. O'Duffy emerged with blood streaming from a head wound. They reached the hall where the mob smashed windows, attacked the delegates' automobiles, burning one of them. Shop windows also were broken.

The rioters surrounded the hall and the police summoned soldiers from Cork. The delegates were besieged for several hours. The soldiers had to fix bayonets and hurl tear gas bombs before the attackers withdrew. The delegates then left and were escorted from the town. The United Ireland party is opposed to the administration of President De Valera.

REVEAL 1 INCH BOARD ONLY BARRIER AGAINST 2,500 INDIANA FELONS

Michigan City, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The fact that an inch thick pine partition is all that has stood between the 2,500 convicts in the state prison here and liberty was revealed today by prison authorities. The partition is between the prison library and the board room.

Any prisoner may gain admission to the library by getting a slip from a guard. After pushing their way through the partition, it was pointed out, the prisoners would have had access to a prison gate which is always open except when the convicts are locked in their cells.

It would have been an easy matter, officials said, for prisoners gathered in the library to rush the guard at the gate and make their escape. The presence of the weak partition was revealed to prison authorities by a trusty after 10 prisoners wounded a guard and made their escape on Sept. 26. Members of the new prison board said that they did not know of the existence of the partition, which has been in the prison for three years.

Evanston Seeks to Take Health Title for 2d Year

Evanston, which last year won the national health title, is making a strong bid to repeat the achievement this year, Dr. John W. H. Pollard, health commissioner, said yesterday. For health record purposes the year ended on Thursday. For the second year, Dr. Pollard said, the suburb has had no death from diphtheria. In the eight years before 1931 the average was six deaths a year. Dr. Pollard credited the improvement to the campaign to persuade parents to have their children inoculated against the disease.

SEEK BENEFITS IF ANY, TO PUBLIC UNDER MILK CODE

Price Boost and Monopoly Control Provided.

An investigation into the benefits, if any, Chicago milk consumers may expect under the new government code for milk producers and dealers, which provides for an increase of one cent a quart and a monopolistic control of the industry, is being made by the Chicago Consumers' council, it was disclosed yesterday.

A survey of the milk situation will be made from the consumers' point of view and a report submitted at a meeting of the council next Monday. Charles R. Simmons, acting chairman of the council, which was organized to protect the consumer against unreasonable price increases, declared he will discuss at the meeting the price, quality, and monopolistic features of the new code.

"It appears that the recently amended trade agreement for the industry will result in a series of monopolies with all their attending evils," said Mr. Simmons, who is also chairman of the City club committee on national recovery.

Protection for Consumer.

It was pointed out that if they receive nothing else for the price increase, Chicagoans should at least be given the protection the codes of the NRA and the AAA are meant to provide. Under the amended trade agreement for milk producers and dealers, the only protection given consumers as to price is that the secretary of agriculture reserves the right to determine what is a fair price. No assurance is given that further price increases will not be made.

The only protection it affords as to the quality of milk or cream, or its butter fat content, is that every dealer signing the code must meet the provisions of the Chicago milk ordinance and the Chicago board of health. Chicago's milk ordinance provides for a butter fat content of 3 per cent.

Butter Fat Content Lower.

According to the last report of the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture, the butter fat content of milk in Chicago is the lowest among 18 of the country's principal cities. In two-thirds of these cities, many of whose butter fat content is four per cent or over, milk is sold for less than in Chicago.

Officials of the organized dairy companies in the Chicago metropolitan area yesterday showed no haste to sign the milk code. They met with officers of the Pure Milk association [the producers] at the La Salle hotel. The distributors asserted that they don't intend to sign until they see the actual enforcement by the government of existing license provisions against independent concerns.

Truck Operators Fined for Using Hard Tires

Seven truck operators were fined by Judge Eugene Holland in the Traffic court yesterday for violating the Illinois statute requiring pneumatic tires on vehicles driven faster than ten miles an hour on public streets or highways. Twenty-seven others were granted continuances after they said they were getting new tire equipment. Thirteen cases were dismissed on a showing by defendants that they had purchased pneumatic tires since their arrest. Twenty-one drivers failed to respond to court summonses issued by the police and the judge ordered capiases for their arrest.

HURRICANE NEARS BERMUDA; 60 MILE GALE HITS ISLAND

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The wind reached a velocity of more than 60 miles an hour this afternoon as a hurricane neared the island. The center of the disturbance was moving at the extraordinary speed of 27 miles an hour.

The meteorological station said it was unable to determine the intensity of the storm, which was due to pass the island to the westward about midnight.

Honduras Hit by Storm.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 6.—(AP)—A tropical storm swept Honduras today, causing destructive floods and widespread damage. Roads and bridges were washed out and towns flooded by swollen rivers. A message from Saluco said the river there had inundated a large portion of the town. Official dispatches from Comayagua stated the Humuya river had reached its highest level in history, endangering the city and inundating surrounding territory.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Kean Hughes, Lucy Harrison Will Make Debuts at Dance

William M. Burtons of New York City Will Give Function at Casino on October 27.

BY JUDITH CASS.

INVITATIONS will be in the mail before long for a debutante dinner dance on the 27th of this month at the Casino for two of the season's buds, Kean Hughes and Lucy Harrison. Miss Hughes' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Burton, are giving it, although they will be an absent host and hostess for they are living in New York this winter at 300 Park avenue. Miss Hughes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Hughes of Barrington, will receive with their daughter and Miss Harrison in the Burtons' stead.

Mrs. Burton has been in the city this week seeing her son and his family, her daughter, Mrs. James N. Rawleigh, old friends and the Fair, but she is leaving tomorrow to join Mr. Burton in Cleveland, where he has been visiting his sister, and together they will go on to New York for the early winter at least. Their present plans call for a trip to California after Christmas. They used to live here, but during the last few years they have spent most of their time traveling abroad and in the orient.

Miss Harrison is the eldest daughter of the junior Carter H. Harrisons of Lake Forest and Barrington. She is not to be here for the whole of her first winter "out" for she is leaving around the first of November to spend the winter abroad with Mrs. George R. Carr. She spent last winter at home, but for several years before that she was at school in Switzerland, so she feels almost as much at home in foreign places as she does in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Rawleigh [Marguerite Hughes] have moved back to Chicago from New York where they moved several years ago and have taken an apartment at 42 East Elm street for the winter. Their lovely Italian house in Winnetka is rented and their two sons are in school in the east so they decided to have a winter in town, something they haven't enjoyed in Chicago for some years, for they lived on the north shore for many years before going east.

Lampert Twins to Bow Dec. 28.

Another debutante dinner dance for which the date is set but for which invitations won't be sent out for over two months, for it doesn't take place until Dec. 28, is the one Mr. and Mrs. Wilson W. Lampert of Lake Shore drive will give to introduce formally to society their daughters, Lillian and Myrtle. The Blackstone hotel will be the setting for the party at which these attractive twins, who look so much alike it is hard to tell them apart, will make their formal bows. Last year they were at the Erskine school in Boston and before that they attended Ogontz.

Two Engagements Announced Today.

This morning we are publishing the engagement announcements of two Junior leaguers, one a Chicago girl and the other an Evanston one, and both are to marry young attorneys.

The Chicago girl is Miss Carolyn Erminger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howell B. Erminger Jr. of 199 Lake Shore drive, and her parents are announcing her engagement to be married to John de Laittre of Minneapolis. Miss Erminger attended the Chicago Latin School for Girls and was graduated from Smith college in June, 1932. She is an active member of the Chicago Junior league. She did not make a formal debut but she attended many of the festivities for the debutantes last year and the Chauncey McCormicks entertained for her and Miss Marjorie Goodman, who became Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr., on Thursday, at a dinner dance at the Casino on the 5th of December last winter.

Mr. de Laittre is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl de Laittre of Minneapolis and the grandson of Mrs. David M. Little of Boston. He attended Milton academy and was graduated from Harvard in 1929, and the Harvard Law school in 1933. The wedding is planned for the early spring.

Fenner-Sampsell Engagement Told.

The Evanston girl whose engagement we are announcing this morning is Miss Harriet Fenner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Fenner, and her fiancé is David S. Sampsell, son of Marshall E. Sampsell of Chicago. Miss Fenner was graduated from Sarah Lawrence college and then studied at the Goodman theater. She is a member of the Evanston Junior league and of the Service club of Chicago. Mr. Sampsell is a graduate of the Hill school, Yale university, and the Northwestern University School of Law.

An interesting engagement announced recently is that of Miss Evelyn Jean Way, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Joseph Way of River Forest, to William Felvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Sarsfield Felvey of 201 East Delaware place. Miss Way is a graduate of the Chicago Latin School for Girls and is now attending Rosary college where she will be graduated next June. Mr. Felvey was graduated from Northwestern Military academy and Northwestern university. No date for the wedding has been set.

Reception Today for Gen. Parkers.

Officers of the National Guard, the regular army, and the organized reserves of this district and their wives and families are giving a farewell reception for Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker and Miss Anne Parker this afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock in the Army and Navy club which is located in the Lake Shore Athletic club. The Parkers are leaving on the 23d of this month to sail from New York on Nov. 3 for his new command in the Philippine islands. Their other daughter, Katherine, is studying dramatic art in New York, so will not accompany the rest of the family to the Philippines.

The Fort Sheridan band will play and it will be a very gay affair with all the color and dash that army uniforms add to a social function. Following the reception the officers of the 6th corps area headquarters will entertain informally at dinner for the Parkers.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt have as their guest Marie Dressler, who arrived there this afternoon to remain overnight. They had a small company to meet her at dinner.

Little "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, children of the President's daughter, Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, have joined their little cousin, Sara Delano Roosevelt, to make a short visit with their grandparents in the White House.

The secretary of commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper started this afternoon by motor for Pennsylvania to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Vance McCormick in their country home near Harrisburg.

Mrs. Swanson, wife of the secretary of the navy, returned to her home this week after spending several weeks in Atlantic City.

Dinner Parties Will Precede Pooch Ball.

There will be dinner parties galore tonight before the Pooch ball, for that isn't scheduled to start until 10 o'clock, and it probably won't be "going strong" before midnight, so most of those who are planning to attend it are giving or going to dinner parties first.

The ball is to be given at the Bal Tabarin in the Hotel Sherman for the benefit of Orphans of the Storm, and starting about midnight there will be a floor show, the feature of which will be an exhibition ballroom dance by the former Irene Castle, Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, who has arranged the party. This is her first appearance as a dancer since she married Maj. McLaughlin, and she says it is to be her last. Her partner tonight will be Vernon Biddle, a young Virginian, who switched from the study of law to dancing and now is a professional dancer.

Some of the 500 who will be there tonight will be the Philip D. Armours, who are taking their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Eugene Sawyer Jr. of Dedham, Mass. the Edmund S. Twinings, and the Kenneth O'Briens of New York, to the Fair first and then to the ball; I. Newton Perry, the John Andrews Kings, the Vincent Healys, the Stanley Keiths, the George Woodruffs, and the Howard Linns.

Play by Mrs. Laflin to Be Given Today.

Members of the Lake Forest Garden club are to have an interesting time this afternoon, for a play that Mrs. Louis E. Laflin wrote is to be produced for them at Mrs. Laflin's home. Just the club members will be present and the whole affair is to be very informal.

The summer colonists at Lake Geneva are having their last party of the season at the Country club there tonight, a harvest home dinner dance, and in almost every house around the lake there will be house guests for the week-end. The Ogden Kettings and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Farwell will be the Henry H. Porters' guests, but the host and hostess won't be going to the dance, because they are in mourning.

The young Henry Bartholomays, junior Henry Faurots and the Thomas Underwoods will visit the senior Bartholomays and the Earle Zimmermans and the Henry P. Ishams are others who will have guests.

Hoyt-MacMillan Nuptials Next Saturday.

An important wedding will take place in Winnetka a week from today, Miss Elizabeth Landon Hoyt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoyt II., is to become the bride of Douglas A. MacMillan of Winnetka at 8:30 o'clock in Christ church, which was built as a memorial to several members of the Hoyt family who were lost in the Iroquois theater fire and which has been the scene of the marriages of several Hoyts and the place of worship for many others ever since it was built. The rector, the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, will officiate.

Miss Helen English will be the maid of honor and little Peggy Hoyt, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Landon Hoyt Jr., will be the flower girl. George Howerton of Cleveland will be Mr. MacMillan's best man and the ushers will be Charles C. Bunker, Gordon F. Smith, Dr. James P. Turner, Robert English, and William Barlow Cunnyngham, an uncle of the bride.

No reception will follow the ceremony but the best man will entertain the bridal party at a supper in town that night. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan will live in Winnetka.

No announcement has been made of the engagement, although Miss Hoyt and Mr. MacMillan have been planning to marry for three years. She attended the Misses Stone's school in

THE family of Mrs. James D. White holds the record so far among the "Anthony Adverse" readers. She writes that in one week her mother and her sister, as well as she herself finished it, all reading the same copy. "And mother teaches school, sister has two small children and a seven room apartment to take care of," she concluded. "Furthermore, mother told the whole story to a friend during an all day motor trip."

HOW unsophisticated some of our patrons of the arts are as to night club life was illustrated the other evening when Cyrus Hall McCormick and Harold F. McCormick were at the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino at the Fair, after a dinner party in the Trustees' lounge. Among the celebrities introduced were King Levinsky and Olson and Johnson. The Messrs. McCormick had never heard of either of them. The evening was a farewell to Ben Bernie, whose orchestra was playing there that evening for the last time. They didn't know who Ben Bernie was either. . . . Which we find rather charming.

IN connection with the celebration of Chicago day Monday, it might be well to call attention to one of Chicago's real relics of the fire of 1871—the little cottage located at 2121 Hudson avenue. We quote from "The Great Conflagration, Chicago," by James W. Sheahan and George P. Upton:

"One building that remains, an oasis in a bleak and black Sahara, is a small white wooden cottage on Lincoln place. A policeman named Bellinger lived there. He hauled up the sidewalk, raked up the leaves and burned them, hewed down his fence and carried it into his house in pieces, and then notified the neighbors that, live or die, he would stick to his house. The fire advanced and he gave battle. It flung torches onto his porch, it hurled them through the window. It began and kept up a hot bombardment of flaming shot upon the roof. He met it at every point with hands and boots, with water and wet blankets, and finally, as the last wave of fire enveloped the building in a sirocco and whirled through the crackling tree tops, and gyrated over the adjacent walls and whirled over the smoking roof, Bellinger cast a pail into his cistern and it was dry. The blankets were on fire. Then the Bellinger genius rose triumphant. He assaulted his cider barrels and little by little emptied the contents on the roof. It was the 'coup de guerre.' It gave him victory."

WHAT more southerly races, with their propensity toward large families of children, think of Americans as family folk is illustrated in a little story told by Mrs. William R. Odell Jr. who had just returned from a stay at an old hacienda in the northern part of that country. A Spanish girl who had just been married was being extended good wishes by a friend.

"And I hope you have a little one soon," he added.

"O, but I won't," answered the bride. "I'm married to an American."

Cloud, provincial of the Chicago province of the Society of Jesus, will preside and the Rev. James Mertz of Loyola university will give the farewell address.

TOMORROW'S SUNDAY TRIBUNE!

Radio Troupes Give Program at World's Fair

Other Artists Will Appear Next Monday.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

If your favorite radio singer, comedian, singing group, or orchestra was not on the stage in the court of the Hall of States last night it was because two hours did not afford time enough for the inclusion thereof. Anyway, there will be another show of the same sort in the same place, but with other artists, next Monday afternoon, and by that time most of the radio attractions in the Chicago area ought to be rounded up.

A large platform near the east end of the court was faced by an audience estimated to be some twenty-five thousand, and amplifiers placed at strategic points here and there gave every one a full hearing if not always a complete sight of all the proceedings. As a matter of fact, those within the effective radius of the horns were better off for hearing than those in the reserved section up near the stage.

The program was varied to a high degree. There was Gearen's Chicago band of a hundred pieces, directed first by its own leader and later by James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians. Paul Ash brought over his own orchestra, as did Ace Brigode. The Barn Dance organization appeared in full strength, and Don Carlos was there with his marimba group. The program ended with Buddy Rogers and his crowd. Also taking an unobtrusive but important part in the proceedings was A Century of Progress orchestra.

The Norsemen, a male quartet, took much applause with "The Last Roundup," as did the Commodores, another male quartet, with "Ol' Man River." There were solos by Harriet Kruse, Edna Odell, Ruth Lyons, James Hamilton, Jack Rose, and Alice Mock, comedy by Tony Cabooch, Florence and Arthur Lake, and Marion and Jim, to say nothing of the part of the program coming too late to be reported, and furnished by Tony Amedio, Clarence Castell, and Paul Sutton, the Morin Sisters, the Maple City Four, and the Three Flats. Pat Barnes was a fluent and quick thinking master of ceremonies, weaving a series of acts into a well related show.

To those who take their radio entertainment directly from the set it was interesting to see how the artists went about their work. Some were as correct in manner as though they had done nothing but face visible audiences all their lives. Others had the informal demeanor of making music in private.

And it was particularly interesting to see how the best radio singers use their voices. The best are those with lightness and smoothness of tone, with no vocal explosions such as one hears only too often in opera or concert, but which are fatal on the radio. The best singers, too, have their words up in front of the tone so that they reach the hearer as plainly as the tone, with no distortion of vowels or straining of consonants.

In fact, after listening to a number of artists in a radio review who have proved their right to be in radio, I came to the conclusion that there are many singers in the world who would be greatly improved if they put themselves under the care and instruction of a teacher of the art of radio singing.

Good Morning!

But players alone do not make a picture.

"Night Flight" was adapted from the 1913 Prix Femina novel of the same name by Antoine de Saint Exupery. It is an ambitious program photoplay that, somehow, fails to click sharply. The characters are not deeply enough etched. The dialogue doesn't ring true. And why they thought it necessary to afflict Lionel Barrymore with eczema and compel him to go about scratching himself is beyond my mortal ken. The rôle of Robineau [an inspector] is the poorest one that has ever fallen to the lot of this great actor, and one is compelled to admit that any hack could have played it as well as he does.

Despite the defects that give a somewhat blurred ineffectuality to the whole, "Night Flight" is a movie that should prove thrilling to aviation enthusiasts.

The scenes are laid in South America and the action all occurs within twenty-four hours. The picture opens with views of Rio de Janeiro—in the clutches of an infantile paralysis epidemic. There is no serum left in the town, and in one home the life of a baby boy is despaired of.

The doctor on the case recollects that a night air mail service is being started from Santiago that day. By noon the next day the serum can be in his hands. He telephones the Santiago hospital, is assured the serum will be promptly dispatched—and from then on you are swirled into the affairs of the night flying air mail men.

Their superintendent, Riviere, is a man of iron, whose life is bound up in the efficiency of the service. Come weal, come woe, the mail must go. [Poem.]. His determination to send out ships regardless of weather conditions results in tragedies the picture shall show you. [And I didn't care much for John Barrymore's portrayal of the superintendent, either. He just doesn't belong to the rôle.]

Helen Hayes as the wife of Fabian, a flyer who runs into a cyclone in the mountains, flies blind and is lost in the sea, has several effective scenes, and Robert Montgomery, safely back from a bitter flight, does an impressive bit. You don't see much of Clark Gable as the gallant Fabian, but he scores every time you do get a glimpse of him.

Women Dressed in Finery Tossed Into Water.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The party that Director W. S. Van Dyke gave at his Brentwood estate to celebrate completion of his picture with Max Baer titled "Prizefighter and the Lady" was quite the duckiest party in Hollywood's long, lively, party history.

The party overran Van Dyke's house in Brentwood, and strayed over the grounds as far as the swimming pool, and that is where the ducky feature came in. Mary Doran, who played the hard boiled part in Harold Lloyd's last comedy, was kidding around and suddenly found herself thrown in Van's swimming pool. Miss Virginia Peel was next to make an unpremeditated splash. Mrs. Otis Wiles, wife of a studio writer, was thrown in. Another girl, in silver fox fur and diamond wrist watch, whose name your correspondent was unable to get because she left in such immediate dripping dudgeon, was also thrown in.

Max Baer was tossed in three times, each time just as soon as he got dressed in dry clothes. Van Dyke himself went in once. Baer was responsible for that. Ralph Wheelwright, a studio publicity man, jumped in.

The party started at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Near midnight nearly all who were left—men and women—were wearing odd trousers and sweaters belonging to the host, while their own clothes dried at various fireplaces.

Clark Gable showed he possessed more than a fair resemblance to Jack Dempsey when Baer tried to duck Clark. Clark fought off the challenger for the world's heavyweight pugilistic championship, but, being a discreet fellow, he left soon afterward. Baer then tried to maneuver Jack Haley into proximity to the pool, but Haley never let himself be cornered and stayed dry.

Edgar Allan Woolf and Polly Moran got a little nervous and left the party earlier than their want. Woolf said he had a $500 check in his pocket and was afraid the water in the pool would ruin it. Polly decided she couldn't make the party any rougher, and went home in semi-discouragement.

Mae Clarke came to the party with Sidney Blackmer, who is her constant escort of late; and others noticed with them on the dry and refined fringe of this waterlogged party were Gene Morgan, Poupee Andriot [she was one of the three French girls in "All Quiet"]; Muriel Evans [ex-Mrs. Michael Cudahy Jr.], and Dorothy Appleby.

Miss Appleby tried to suggest how Van Dyke write an inscription in one of his books for another feminine guest, but Van wrote his own inscription. After he had completed it, he proferred this book to none other than Antoinette Donnelly, who it may be noted, was one of the interested minority who ended this lively party in dry clothes and with composure.

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, an American, working on a Paris newspaper, is her friend and counselor. Bun receives a phone call from Mrs. Craymer, a stranger, who mentions a mutual friend. Bun agrees to have luncheon at her apartment. She is admitted by an ominous appearing butler. She takes an immediate dislike to Mrs. Craymer, but is favorably impressed by her uncle, James B. Finlay, a wealthy American. Finlay wants Bun to help find his young wife, Helène. He wants no publicity. He had met Helène after the war in Bucharest. She returned annually to visit her family, the Boblanofs, installed by Finlay in a villa on the Riviera. Her brother, Ferenz, he had brought to America. The last time Helène returned she disappeared and no trace can be found of her or her parents. Bun agrees and accepts 200,000 francs in advance. A recent newspaper picture, showing Helène standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clew Bun has to go on. That evening Bun has dinner with Fred Crawford.

A STUDY IN ADMIRATION.

Once in the Bois, Bun swung the car off into a narrow road and soon stopped before a restaurant. At that moment Crawford's words seemed to have been realized. There was no doubt about there being something fairy-like in the surroundings. Lights were glimmering through the dusk, strings of them were carried off into the surrounding trees; music—without the sight of perspiring musicians—was coming from some hidden spot; tables of spotless linen and flowers and sparkling silver were set about invitingly. There was a sylvan quiet, even dewiness, in the whole atmosphere.

They chose a table at the far end of a terrace.

"As this is my dinner—at which only one invited guest was allowed to be present—I'm going to choose the menu," Bun announced.

"And while you're doing it I'm going to telephone the office my whereabouts. Took on a friend's job today," he explained when he was back again. "Going to be reporter while he's vacationing. One of my orders is to be on tap whenever needed. I told them I'd be here for hours." His eyes dwelt on Bun with flaring lights in them. "I hope I'm not mistaken."

She rested her chin in her clasped hands. "On the whole I'm rather glad you called the others off. Now that my first anger has cooled," she added with her slow smile, "I want to tell you about my new job."

Crawford's expression became alert. "The one that carried you away from Paris! I hear some one saw you in Vienna three nights ago."

"Guilty. But that has nothing to do with the new job. That one's

"Would that keep you from going to Biarritz with me tomorrow?"
"If you take Liberte along as chaperone I might manage it."

been checked off. The new one's going to carry me away from Paris again. I need help—preferably yours, Fred. Have you much to do these days?"

Crawford scowled. "Not so you'd notice it. I've told you about this new job."

"Would that keep you from going to Biarritz with me tomorrow?"

"If you take Liberté along as chaperone I might manage it."

"I'll be the judge of that. Now—what's the great idea?"

"Wife."

"Abducted?"

"Between you and me, I think it's one of those cases of just getting fed up with a job and jumping the fence." She told him of her luncheon with Mrs. Craymer and Mr. Finlay. "So far as I can see there's nothing abnormal in the affair."

"Entirely too much. There is always the psychic explanation." She looked at Crawford with a troubled expression in her eyes which she did not know was showing in them. "Why is it, Fred, that women are so rarely happy with men who do everything under the sun to make them so?"

"That's easy. Darned perverseness on their part."

"Cheap, Fred—and not original. Of course, I can understand perfectly that Mr. Finlay might make any one reckless—just from an overdose of kindness."

Crawford groaned. "I suppose you told him that with your usual brutal frankness."

"On the contrary, I pocketed the two hundred thousand francs he advanced and made no comments."

Crawford whistled. "That's eight thousand dollars!"

"How remarkable you are! I made exactly the same calculation. I suppose you know what I'm going to do with it."

"If it's that lean-to in Normandy."

"It is."

"I've known lots of people who've had those notions about living in an old château where there are no lights, no baths, no communications with the outside world. Once they sink their money in them, all they can do is to sit down and write: 'You see, I'm at last writing to you from my own old château.' And then they spend the rest of their time wondering how they can get away from the blasted white elephant."

"No disparaging remarks, please. It's an ideé fixe—and I've got to get it out of my system."

"Did you send the money off to the agent this afternoon?"

"Only business kept me from doing it."

Crawford's eyes opened wide. "You don't mean to say you're carrying round a sum like that with you!"

"For the present it is reposing safely under Liberté's pillow. I can't imagine a safer place, can you? But don't get me off the main theme. I began operations this afternoon. Went first to the Daily Mail. I beg your pardon for having relations with the rival sheet. I had to run down a photograph they'd published. Found it had been sent in from Biarritz by a local representative. No one in the office knew who the people in the picture were. There's a chance you might."

She drew the clipping from her silk bag and handed it to Crawford. He looked at it closely and shook his head.

"It means nothing to me. But, as you know, I don't mingle with the nuts. It might be a portrait of the queen of Sheba and I wouldn't recognize her. How are you going to find out?"

"That's the Biarritz idea: I'm going there to find out who took the picture—how and why. Are we progressing?"

"We shall be tomorrow. In the meantime—let's run over the ledger. Who's who and why? The old fellow sounds blah. Is he—or is it a smoke screen?"

"I once met a thug whose voice and manner suggested butter wouldn't melt in his mouth. Mr. Finlay is equally gentle."

"And the other—this Thelma person? A woman with a name like that——"

"She was all over the place with Uncle Jim—cooey and a little hooey, too, I'm afraid. How she ever recognized the wife—that's she beside the tall woman—is beyond me. Does that strike you as at all phoney?"

"Mrs. Craymer and hubby seemed perfectly sure that it was she. Here's a real photograph of her—not from the inside of hubby's watch, but the next best place, his pocket book." She handed a small unmounted photograph to Crawford. "It will be interesting to see your reactions to it."

"If I were not sitting at a table with the most beautiful woman in the world, I'd say she was. No interruptions in order. You may not actually be the most beautiful woman in the world, Bun. I won't argue that point. The important matter is that you are to me."

Bun reached across the table and laid her hand on his. "You're a comfort to the family, Fred. What do you think of her—sex appeal aside?"

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

ANXIOUS: THE PEELING OF your hands may be due to wearing rubber gloves all day. The fact that four of you girls report the same condition seems to confirm the cause. Frequent use of a good hand lotion or sweet almond oil will prevent peeling.

M. M.: YOU PUT HEAVY STRESS on the local treatment of your skin, but I note you make no mention of the kind of food you're eating, or attention to internal cleanliness. These things, too, must be taken into consideration in clearing an acne skin.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Don't give children candy." That was the slogan mothers were being taught not so many years ago. For, you see, at that time doctors were just coming to realize that excess sweets were not the best kind of energy food for young growing-ups.

But today we've changed that slogan to "Give children candy, but treat as a food, not as an afternoon pastime." And with that slogan everybody is much happier.

Which means just what? Simply that sweets are suppliers of energy and heat to our engines; that they should arrive at meal time with other foods, and that they should be served last in order not to cloy young appetites before other important foods are taken care of.

All of which little lecture was brought upon you by Mrs. J. K., who wrote in for the recipe for a Caramel Taffy Apple. For it strikes me that if more often we would thus combine healthful fruits with our meal time sweets or with the candies we send to school in lunch boxes, just that much more disease resistant and husky would everybody be.

So here are the taffy apples. For lollypop ones which sport a simple, thin, brittle glaze do not cook the sirup so long. And if you like the amber and not the more Christmasy red color just leave out the coloring and cinnamon, add vanilla, and proceed as directed:

TAFFY APPLES.

2 cups sugar
1 cup water
½ cup corn sirup
½ teaspoon cinnamon flavoring
1 teaspoon red coloring
1 dozen small firm apples
1 dozen wooden skewers

Boil the water, sirup, and sugar together until a brown caramel color is reached (about 300 degrees F.). Remove from the heat and add the cinnamon and red coloring. Cool slightly. Meanwhile force a skewer firmly into the core of each apple. Dip them one at a time into the heavy red sirup, drain well, and then place on a buttered baking sheet to cool.

Then, more pickle questions, this one from Mrs. T. L. M. She writes: "Why do my sweet dill pickles shrivel up? I seem to have no difficulty with the sour ones." The cause for shriveling in pickles, Mrs. M., is too strong a sugar, vinegar, or salt solution poured on the pickles all at once. I suggest that you try first covering the pickles with a plain 45 to 50 grain vinegar. Then, after one week, discard this and proceed as your recipe indicates.

Open Hutchins Art Exhibit on Friday.

Friday, the 13th, holds no superstitious terrors for Maud Hutchins [Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins], for on that day an exhibition of some of her art work is to be opened with a tea in the Chester Johnson galleries in the Fine Arts building. The exhibit will include new drawings in color, silver points, line drawings from "Diagrammatics," and portraits and profiles in bronze.

The Princess Cantacuzene [Julia Dent Grant], who has been here this week to speak to the American Legion and to see the Fair, is leaving the Drake hotel today and going out to Millburn to spend a day or two with her son, Prince Michael, and his family before going to Louisville to fill a speaking engagement. From there she will go to Cincinnati, then to Washington and then to New York, and then to her home in Sarasota, where her husband awaits her.

Bosworths Sail for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth and their daughter, Mrs. Trevor Stamp, sailed yesterday for England. Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth will be away until after Christmas. They will probably spend most of their time in England with their two daughters and sons-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Stamp and the Gordon L. Padleys.

The Swedish army jumping team is arriving in Chicago this morning. Count Gustav Frederik von Rosen, captain of the Royal Horse guards in Sweden and former military attaché at the Swedish embassy in Washington, is head of the team of four men.

They are here to compete in the international jumping events which will be held daily at the World's Fair horse show, which is being held from Oct. 21 to 29 at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

Interesting Items About Travelers.

Personal notes: Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson has gone to California for a visit and the date for her return is indefinite. The Rawsons' son, Kennett, is aboard the Jacob Ruppert, one of Admiral Byrd's two boats on the south polar expedition. . . . Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift returned recently from a trip abroad. Miss Geraldine also is at home, but Marie, Jane, and Gustavus Jr. are all in eastern colleges or schools and will not be at home until the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Ewward A. Leight is at home from a trip abroad. . . . Mrs. Harry B. Clow Jr. and her two children have left to spend the next few months in Bermuda. Her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, returned recently from Santa Barbara, where they spent the summer. Visiting them for the last few days have been Mrs. Dunham's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jerd Sullivan of San Francisco, who are leaving tomorrow. Mrs. Dunham Jr. returned home last week from having spent the summer in Bar Harbor.

The John McKinlays sailed the other day for several weeks in England. . . . Miss Helen Gurley and her mother, Mrs. William W. Gurley, are returned European travelers. . . . Mrs. Moisant Griffiths and her daughter, Miss Gloria Griffiths, who also summered abroad, are back and are busy looking for a little farm in the country near here where they can spend week-ends. Miss Griffiths loves riding and hunting and is anxious to have place where she can do both.

Events on the Stage

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"Dinner at Eight," the play that has upheld the reputation of the American dramatic stage through the period of A Century of Progress, will end its engagement at the Grand Opera house Oct. 21. Its Chicago run will then stand at 19 weeks. Incidentally, the play will also be exactly one year old on that date, and most of the players who figured in its Broadway première are still members of the cast.

The company will not go on tour, as was the original intention of its producer [Sam H. Harris], but will be disbanded. The exhibition over the country of the photoplay version of "Dinner at Eight," with a cast of cinema favorites, is the cause of this decision. The "Dinner at Eight" talkie will reach Chicago soon after the play departs.

"Bittersweet," an operetta by Noël Coward, will probably follow "Dinner at Eight" at the Grand, opening late in October or early in November. This company, which contains Allan Jones, Leonard Ceeley, Berna Deane and other first class operetta singers, is now in Dallas, Tex., entertaining the visitors to the state fair.

A play called "It Pays to Sin," said to be of German origin, is a prospect for Chicago within the next two weeks. If staged, it will be offered at the Selwyn theater. Louis Macloon, Pacific coast producer, now associated with the Hollywood concession at the Fair, will be active in this venture. Jane Starr will have the leading rôle.

"Alice in Wonderland," as dramatized by Alice Gerstenberg, will be staged at the Punch and Judy theater for a two weeks' engagement beginning Oct. 16. The cast will be selected from the Chicago colony of professional and little theater actors. Tony Gilman, a child actress of the radio programs, will be cast as Alice; Judith Lowry will be the Duchess, and Sara Hinde the White Queen. Luther Greene, who has been active in little theater productions around Chicago during the last year, will be the stage director.

Charles Freeman, director of little theater activities at the Jewish People's institute, hopes to make a professional production of Dostoievsky's "Redemption," also called "The Living Corpse," in Chicago this season, with Jacob Ben-Ami as star.

Triangular Links Represent Quilt of Early Design

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Double Link," a quilt design almost modernistic in pattern, in reality is one of the earliest known. The original was pieced in prints of blue and white. Any other combination of colors can be used, but present day quilters will probably prefer it in plain colors or, perhaps, a combination of prints and plain pieces. In any case it presents opportunities to create an unusual quilt.

For a quilt pattern of this design send five cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Hats Continue as Sensation of Style World

More Models Will Reach Nape of Neck.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You continue either to gasp or to gloat over the new hat arrivals. You can discover clever knitted affairs that snuggle smartly around the top of your head, with a nice nubby band that looks like a hand knit effect and a flat top fashioned in a swirl, and together they fit as smooth as your skull; copied from a swanky original creation sponsored by Schiaparelli.

Or you can go quite mad with an off the face model that clears the forehead by a good four inches. They really begin at the top of the dome and mold themselves slick and smooth down to the nape of your neck. Around the edge is a twisted rope of velvet or the material of the tiny skull covering, that will make you look like a Russian princess or czarina, if you are tall and regal.

If you remember the beavers of your childhood you'll recognize the new slick shiny hats made of velour that is very closely related to beaver. Some daring designer has used this stuff for a supple brim that is much wider than any brims you have seen since last summer. Then the designer managed a bit of black lace for the very tight and smooth crown.

Pushed right up in front and anchored with two swash buckling amber pins—a dashing version of a pirate hat that again stresses the new idea of off the face hats.

Black velvet smoothies, trimmed with ermine tails—black velvet berets stitched and stiffened—cocky Tyrolean models with vivid flippant feathers planted in the most unusual spots—rather absurd caps dolled up with feminine bows and tufts of feathers, when you look at them off the head, but gay cheerful things when you pull them correctly over your eyes.

And lastly, the resplendent affairs, wide of brim, voluptuous of curve and vastly flattering with revived ostrich plumes, complete the newest collections of hats that are hats, not pluggy utilitarian concoctions of dull untrimmed hunks of felt.

Courting Phrases Stress "Perfection" Idea.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

George concludes his letter with: "The pity is that married folk can't take a word of advice or criticism from each other. We take it from friends without starting a row."

George, angry because his wife wouldn't take his criticism without starting a battle. He claims to have had better educational advantages than she. His criticisms were made with the intentions of "improving her."

Well, if he told her it was to improve her that he was being her best friend and critic, no wonder she hit the ceiling.

The question is how to go about rendering constructive criticism to a mate? Or, can it be done at all? And how? readers, if you'll be good enough to tell.

This is where the small cherub with the bow 'n' arrow is the criminal. When cupid's getting in his best work, the man is telling the girl she is perfect. He wouldn't have her different for the world. And she, in turn, has made the fellow believe he is so absolutely perfect he couldn't be improved upon. Then, in the cold light of matrimony they begin to discover perfection was just part of the general mirage. They would like certain changes in the other's makeup or manner. Each, unfortunately, clings to the idea that the other believes him above reproach, so criticism becomes a devasting bomb, with love in danger of collapse any minute.

It is unfortunate that husbands and wives are like that. No one is in better position to give a bit of valuable correction. No one has quite the same pride at bottom of the criticism. The mate wants to be proud of his or her better half, wants him or her to appear perfect before others. The criticisms are more often born of this desire than of a wish to hurt. Because of the natures of the wedded parties, however, they are prevented from giving each other the help needed.

It's childish to resent suggestions with a "you're always picking on me" sort of attitude, but in this form of childishness we're all pretty much kin. We will just have to bring a little more reason to these domestic scenes, and try not to blow off the handle because the hint is slipped that we shouldn't say "Was you?" or "Please to meet you," or do things at table that are annoying, or continue habits or mannerisms that are not agreeable. It is really "for our own good" the mate takes the trouble, for he or she cannot enjoy the scene. It's not one of the high moments in domestic life, now is it?

Bed at First Sign of Cold Checks Illness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"At the first sign of a cold," said a doctor I know who has three children, "I pop them right into bed."

It's a good plan. Grownups would be the better for it, but not many busy people can afford the luxury of bed at the first cold-warning.

If mothers with school children would keep them home when the first cold symptoms appeared they would accomplish a twofold good. First, they would be benefiting their own children; and, second, they would reduce the number of colds among other children.

Rest and an even temperature and a light diet give nature a chance to fight the germ. Keeping an active child actually undressed and in bed is the only way you can be sure of the first two of these prescriptions being followed. Sometimes a cold can be quickly "knocked out" in this way, or if the germ is a vicious one its effect will usually be lessened or serious consequences prevented.

Here is another point. After the cold is over, if it has been at all bad, don't send your child back to school too soon. Colds "take it out" of you. Grown people notice this fact, but children don't, because they don't know how to interpret their feelings.

All this is about cure. Prevention is, of course, better than cure. Every one knows in a general way that keeping children "in condition" is the best prevention. To do this be sure they have plenty of sleep; plenty of exercise and fresh air; good food, not too heavy, well chosen and not rich and clogging; good elimination, and warm, light clothing, being sure not to overdress them. In addition there are sunshine substitutes that many pediatricians approve of. Ask your own doctor what he suggests as an aid to cold prevention for the children during the winter months, in addition to the usual intelligent care.

Old Fur Wraps Make Exciting New Waistcoats

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris is haywire over waistcoats this fall, and makes them out of all kinds of materials for every hour around the clock. You have been informed about the brocade waistcoats for evening, and now comes the flat fur waistcoat to wear under cloth coats or jackets and over silk or woolen frocks. This is about the most practical version of the waistcoat, because it can be used to make over old, worn coats of flat fur, and because it adds just the extra warmth you need to make your cloth coat last out the winter.

It is ultra smart to have a little cap or tam of the same fur as your waistcoat, as shown in our sketches.

At the top is a leopard waistcoat that fastens up the front on modest frog fastenings, composed of two black buttons and two loops of cord to a fastening. A black leather belt has the same fastening. The waistcoat has a small standing collar and a slanting shoulder yoke that juts out a bit over the tops of the shoulders. A motorman's cap of leopard fur with a black bow at the side goes with this waistcoat.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

CLASS DAY.

"Myself," said Prof. Fordney to his class, "and Miss Mary Wendell, a very charming girl, left the rest of the party in the library of the massive, squarely built country house of Andres Selkirk and sauntered out into the garden. After admiring the flowers for a bit we strolled around to the drawing room with its beautiful eastern exposure overlooking Lake Compre, not a hundred yards distant. Finding two deck chairs, we ensconced ourselves in them and talked of this and that—a soft green lawn lay at our feet and at our right a hedge ran down to the water. Had I been a bit younger . . . well!"

"No? But you're too young," Fordney smiled. "When you reach my age . . . But never mind that now."

"As I said," he continued, "we were sitting there charmed with the lovely view and tragedy was farthest from my thoughts. However, just as we saw the golden ball of sun sinking over the lake something whizzed past our heads and I heard a thud. Aroused from my reverie, I jumped to my feet and climbed into the open drawing room window. Our host lay on the soft oriental rug with a dangerous wound in his neck. From its appearance I judged that some one had hit him with a missile from a slingshot—and that it must have come from the hedge to the right of where we had been sitting, so——"

"You don't catch me on that story," again interrupted Bailey. "I know what's wrong with it!"

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You have the color of hair you want now. [Your own natural shade or a preferred touched-up one.]

You have the coiffure you think most fetching. [Or, you have an idea what it should be.]

There remains one great hair beauty that is now being promoted as the real beauty of hair, no matter what the shade, length or thickness, namely—gloss.

Of course, we've been talking gloss for years. Been telling you how to get it, too. But you know how it is about things like that. All of a sudden every one begins talking it, and it seems like a new discovery. So it is with glossy hair at the moment. People have either suddenly remembered the charm of it, or have just discovered its value to the beautifully coiffed head.

Anyway, it's glossy hair now, or you don't belong! A ripe, rich, luscious gloss! In fact, at the moment oily hair is preferred to the deadish strands so frequently seen. The permanent and the dryer must be held responsible, along with summer time exposure. But women must blame themselves in the last analysis, for every time a permanent is given they are told to use a softening oil, and if that oil remains on the dressing table unopened the permanent should not be blamed. In itself the permanent is too much a blessing to be so maligned. And so with the constant drying. We're told by hair experts to give ourselves a hot oil treatment, or to come in and take one until the hair is reconditioned. If we don't follow instructions that's our fault.

There are such nice, fragrant preparations on the market, salves to be rubbed into the scalp to give the hair a softened feel and a rich texture, so the job does not seem a duty. One of these salves rubbed in, followed by a good hair brushing, has a fine glossening effect. Olive oil or sweet almond oil may be used.

Hair that has been tinted, no matter what shade, is definitely in need of this gloss promoting treatment. The gloss gives a natural look to the foreign color. Dyed heads badly done invariably suffer the dead, brittle look. The oil treatments recommended will have no ill effects on the touched-up hair in case the question arises. On the contrary, both hair and scalp need the oiling. Just look into this phase of hair beauty as it applies to yourself. See if you are or are not bringing all the beauty to it that gloss will supply. If not, do get in line with the oiling treatments and raise that gloss!

WEDDINGS

Birney of Grand Island, Neb., will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Thorndike Hilton chapel of the University of Chicago. The Rev. Alfred L. Wilson of the Kenwood church will read the service.

Miss Elinor Hair will be the bride's only attendant and Gordon Evans will be best man. A reception at the Quadrangle club will follow the ceremony.

A wedding that will take place on the north shore this afternoon is that of Miss Mary Katherine Gleason, daughter of the Hollis G. Gleasons of Wilmette, to John Taylor Snite, son of the Albert P. Snites of Highland Park. The Rev. Bernard Brady will read the ceremony at 3:30 o'clock in the St. Francis Xavier church in Wilmette and a small reception will follow at the Shawnee Country club.

Miss Mary Jane Rich will be Miss Gleason's maid of honor. The bridesmaids are Miss Nancy Gleason, a cousin of the bride; Miss Patsy Boylston, Miss Betty Ketcham, and Mrs. Albert O. Snite, the bride's sister-in-law.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Ted Lyons, the White Sox veteran, was slapped for twenty-one defeats in the recent American league race, but he wiped all that off the record yesterday. The twenty-one trimmings faded to a dim memory, at least for Ted, when he shut out the Cubs and piloted the White Sox to their third straight victory in the city series. Lyons was supported by a robust attack against three National league pitchers, a fact which accounts for the lop-sided score of 9 to 0.

The Sox simply showed they still have that uncanny knack for whipping their civic rivals. They tore into the usually troublesome Charley Root for four runs in the second inning. They routed him entirely and finished on Bud Tinning to complete another four run jamboree in the fifth. And to make it unanimous they jostled Lynn Nelson in a two inning stretch, but the latter was actually damaged only by a home run with which Red Kress climaxed the afternoon's slugging.

Ted Just Plugs Along.

Lyons, ably supported in his task of placing the Sox within one game of their thirteenth municipal title, kept the Cub attack almost to the level maintained by the 45 year old Red Faber the day previous. Ted yielded seven hits against five off Faber, but he permitted only a minimum of parading on the base lines. There were only two innings in which the Cubs had more than a lone runner on base. Only one National leaguer reached third. After the third inning the Cubs didn't see second base.

If the Cubs care to single out any one man for the torment inflicted the last three afternoons they don't have to look far. Jimmy Dykes is the fellow. He came up with two hits in the first two innings yesterday, one of them driving in three mates. The day previous he produced three. In the opener he confined himself to a pair. That's seven hits in thirteen times at bat. Dykes apparently thinks the 1929 world series is still on.

Lyons Survives Threat.

Lyons encountered a little difficulty in the first inning because of a miscue by Hayes at second. Two Cubs were out of the way when Cuyler hit what should have ended the half inning, but was safe when Hayes fumbled. Then Babe Herman enjoyed his first satisfactory thrill of the series. He whacked a single to center after two days of disappointments. Nothing came of this because Simmons was in the right spot to take care of a fly ball off Stephenson's bat. Root fanned the first two in the Sox half, but Dykes singled and Simmons walked. English then smothered a hard grounder by Appling.

The big parade of white hosiery in the second inning started with Kress singling back of second. Jurges made a brilliant pickup and tag of Kress on Hayes' bounder for a force out. Berry spanked a single into center.

Michigan to Face Michigan State Today

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The Michigan and Michigan State teams held their final workouts this afternoon in preparation for their annual intra-state football game here tomorrow. The Spartans worked out in the stadium, while Micigan drilled on South Ferry field.

Neither Coach Harry Kipke of Michigan nor Coach Charlie Bachman of State was satisfied with the condition of their teams. Michigan, working on defense, allowed the freshmen to complete one pass after another.

Bachman said he would start Muth, a sophomore, at quarter back, in place of the injured Kircher. Capt. McNutt will start at full, but probably will not be able to play long.

Indications are that the crowd will number 45,000 if the weather continues fair.

BRADLEY AT IOWA

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—A rejuvenated University of Iowa football team is expected to attract more than 10,000 fans to the first home game against Bradley Tech here tomorrow.

Probably no one except Coach Ossie Solem is expecting the Hawkeyes to be hard pressed by the Peoria, Ill., team, although the visitors will have only one sophomore in the starting lineup.

The Hawkeye coach has professed fear of Bradley's passing attack. The Hawkeye pass defense has been weak in recent years and did not receive a thorough test in the Northwestern game. Red Sepich, Bradley end, who scored a touchdown on a pass last year, will be the most closely watched.

PURDUE FACES OHIO

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Purdue's football squad, undefeated last fall, opens its season tomorrow against Ohio university minus the services of two veterans, Fred Hecker, full back, and Ed Unger, tackle, out with injuries.

Purdue's starting lineup, announced tonight, had Doxie Moore at full back and Paul Emmons at right tackle. The Boilermakers will start the game with nine seniors and two juniors. Jim Carter and Duane Purvis, half backs, are the juniors.

Shaughnessy Coached Squad Makes Debut.

With new names and a new spirit dominant on old Stagg field, the University of Chicago today introduces the first product of its revised athletic régime. Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Ia., furnishes the opposition for this 42d Maroon football team at 2:30 p. m. on Stagg field.

Chiefly the game's drama is the introduction of Coach Clark Shaughnessy, his team, and his tactics. Coming to the Midway with a playing record in the Big Ten and a successful coaching record at Tulane and Loyola of New Orleans, Shaughnessy apparently has captured the fancy of Maroon followers. His tactics, heralded as original and technically interesting, have been guarded with such secrecy during practice that an air of mystery surrounds the Midway.

Shaughnessy will test as many of his reserves as he safely can. He also will restrict his offensive display to a minimum. The Cornell team, fast, hard charging, and reputedly clever at the open game, may not permit much experimentation, however.

About 25,000 people are expected at the game, of whom 17,000 will be Boy Scouts and other guest groups. The lineup:

ILLINI GO TO ST. LOUIS

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Braced for a hard struggle against a team which has been pointed for the Illini ever since last spring, the Illinois football team will travel to St. Louis tomorrow to meet Washington. It will be the first appearance of the Illini in thirty years and the advance sale has been the largest in the history of football there. The Illinois band will head the Illinois rooters, who will travel by special train.

PURPLE MEETS FROSH

Northwestern's progress along the comeback trail will be tested today when the varsity meets the freshman in a regulation game at Dyche stadium. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock. An admission of 25 cents will be charged to raise funds to send the band to the Ohio State game.

IT MAY NOT BE RIGHT, BUT IT'S OFFICIAL

A pictorial record of incipient rowdyism, snapped in the sixth inning of yesterday's world series game at Washington when Charles Moran, National league umpire, ejected Heinie Manush, Senator outfielder, for protesting a decision at first base. It started as a close play on Manush's grounder to Critz and ended in a spirited contest of free style expostulation. Facing Moran, left to right, the Senators' debating team is Catcher Luke Sewell, Manager Joe Cronin, Manush (with fist cocked), and Johnny Kerr (with hand on umpire). [Acme Photo.]

Kansas Gives Notre Dame Test Today

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 6.—A band of fighting Jayhawks from Kansas university, who have hitched their ambitions to a victory over Notre Dame, will open the football season here tomorrow before a crowd estimated at 25,000. It will be the largest opening throng since the national championship 1929 Notre Dame eleven resumed play in 1930 against Southern Methodist.

The Kansans, big, rugged, and expert at forward passing, according to reports of the Irish scouts, and with two preliminary victories, are ready to make gridiron history by trouncing the most highly publicized Notre Dame squad since the days of Schwartz, Carideo, Savoldi, and Mullins. They will arrive in the morning.

It's a Test for Irish.

Coach Heartly Anderson, depending on the observations of Scout Ike Voedisch, admits the strength of the Jayhawkers. Even if his personal opinion differed, Anderson would not predict a Notre Dame victory, except by a narrow margin, in the interests of preventing overconfidence in his men. But Kansas needs no ballyhoo. Coach Ad Lindsey's team, tied for second in the Big Six race last year and with such ball carriers as Ray Dumm and Ormand Beach charging behind a veteran line, should furnish the answer to the question, "What will Notre Dame do this year?"

Except for the quarter back posi-

MUTINY FLAVORS A ROUSING GAME IN WORLD SERIES

Senators Show They Know Some Fine Cuss Words.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Well, now here, my many loving friends, was a world series ball game of the kind that we like to think of as typical of the world series, but actually such a ball game as we seldom see the like of in these pleasant autumn get togethers.

I did not see any of the elements of flaming drama or stark, stalking tragedy which are sometimes observed in great athletic events, but this living, moving, human document will undertake to tell you that the boys performed a very rousing extra inning game of ball and trimmed their show with a case of open public mutiny, an outbreak of loud and profane swearing, and a return performance of the momentarily famous Washington ball yard pigeon which is known in these parts as Clark Griffith's Blue Eagle.

Fumbles Into Extra Work.

The Giants won the contest, 2 to 1, in the eleventh, after Carl Hubbell, the Giants' long, narrow left-handed pitcher, had fumbled away a one run lead to which Will Terry had staked him when he fetched his stick around with a nice easy swing in the fourth to hoist a home run into a little triangular section of the steerage seats in center field, just to the right of the flagstaff.

With this thin advantage Hubbell mishandled a bunt from Joe Kuhel in the seventh and the Washington first baseman, who had yet to get a hit in 13 attempts, not only reached first, but presently scored. Oswald [Bluejay] Bluege, the Senators' third baseman, shoved Harmless Joe along to second with a sacrifice bunt, and Luke Sewell brought him in from there with a single to center. Considerable excitement ensued among the 27,000 patrons on hand.

Allows Only Eight Hits.

Hubbell had only himself to blame for the extra work and risk to which he was subjected, but he toiled along out there to cook his kettle of fish into a very tasty mess of chowder, after all. He allowed only eight hits himself, against eleven which the Giants accumulated by dribs and drabs in a long p. m. of peering and swinging at the work of Monte Weaver and Jack Russell.

So now the Giants lead, three games to one, and the Senators will have to win three in a row if they are to take the set, match, and championship and the large share of the money. You would be almost justified in wagering against their doing this, remembering, of course, that it takes two to make a wager and that you might nave to canvass a lot of asylums to find yourself a party of the second part.

Rowdyism Breaks Out.

Fun broke out in the last half of the sixth inning and carried over into the Giants' half of the seventh, when the grim old specter of rowdyism bared his evil fangs and gnashed them menacingly at the solemn dignity and honor of the national game.

Charlie Moran, the umpire, who may be remembered as the football coach of the picturesque Praying Colonels at Center college, was confronted with a close decision on Heinie Manush, the Senators' outfielder, at first base. Calling the situation as he saw it with the eyes of a National league man standing in judgment over an American league player, Moran brought up his thumb in a jerk and caroled in a clear, decisive voice, "The runner is out."

Manush disagreed and whirled on Moran with an outburst of comment of a very disrespectful kind. He reflected not only on Mr. Moran's personal character and ability, but on the high office which it was his honor to enjoy. For that Moran added, "And you are out of the ball game, too."

Stirs Up Indignation.

Well, land sakes alive and carry two, the indignation that did stir. Joe Cronin, the Washington manager, who has been advertised as a pious and right living young man who al-

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6—Pitcher Carl Hubbell, the mild man from Meeker, Okla., and Shortstop Blondy Ryan this afternoon were the main men in the business of making a magnificent thriller out of the fourth game of the world series. The Giants won, 2 to 1, in eleven innings for their third of the series over the Washington Senators.

Heinie Manush, Washington outfielder, also helped to make the program a dramatic masterpiece by taking a slap at Umpire Charles Moran, but that's something else, on which we'll dwell a bit later.

Error Leads to Tying Run.

Hubbell had to pitch hard to be returned a hero for the second time in the series, for the Giants, while they could start things against Monte Weaver, Washington's first pitcher of the day, had a hard time carrying on, as attested by the fact that in the first ten innings they had 12 runners left on bases and their only run was a homer by Manager Bill Terry in the fourth inning.

Hubbell now has pitched 20 innings in the series without allowing an earned run.

Terry's run was matched in the seventh when Joe Kuhel, Washington first baseman, was safe on an error by Hubbell and subsequently scored on Catcher Luke Sewell's single to center. That sent the teams into extra innings and made it the first overtime world series game since the concluding contest between the same teams in 1924.

The tenth was not especially eventful, but in the eleventh Ryan came through with the hit that won the ball game.

Travis Jackson, New York third basemen, led off with a bunt which Ossie Bluege had no chance to handle at third, and went to second on Catcher Gus Mancuso's sacrifice. Ryan was next at bat. Weaver and the rest of the Senators had made light of him all afternoon. In the fourth Weaver had fanned him with the bases full in a most nonchalant manner. In the sixth, with Mel Ott on second, Weaver gave Mancuso an intentional pass to get at Ryan, and Blondy took two wild swings before tapping to Weaver for the third out. In the ninth Ryan led off with a futile single, but this didn't seem to impress Weaver.

So Ryan came up in the eleventh with Jackson perched on second. Weaver pitched the same kind of a swift one that had fooled Blondy before. This first pitch proved to be the ball game. Ryan lined it to left and in came Jackson with the winning run. Hubbell followed with a single that drove Weaver from the contest. Jack Russell came in to strike out Joe Moore and make Hughey Critz fly out.

Thrills Far from Over.

Freddy Schulte opened the Senator eleventh with a whistling single to left. Kuhel bunted, and it went for a single, Schulte stopping at second. The runners moved forward on a sacrifice, and Sewell promptly was given an intentional pass.

The bases were full with only one out. A long fly ball or an infield out any place but home would tie the score. A long single would win the ball game.

Much has been written about Manager Joe Cronin and his lucky hunches. This afternoon he had a hunch that Cliff Bolton was the man to bat for Russell in this vital emergency, despite the fact he is a freshman and a left hand hitter.

Perfect Double Play Ball.

Hubbell threw a ball, a strike, and a ball. Then Bolton hit a perfect double play ball to Ryan. Blondy gobbled it up gracefully and tossed to Critz at second. And little Hughey relayed it to Terry to double Bolton and end the game.

And now to get back to Manush's contribution to the merriment of the afternoon. Heinie, doped by many as a probable offensive hero of the series, entered the game with a batting mark of .091 for the first three games, not a very happy fellow at best.

The Giants were leading, 1 to 0, and Buddy Myer of the Senators was on second as the result of a hit and Goose Goslin's sacrifice. Manush shot a grounder toward right which got

Makes Best 2 Year Old Performance of Season.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Mr. James, the youthful flyer from C. C. Van Meter's barn in Kentucky, dashed six furlongs in 1:11 3-5 and won the North Shore purse at Washington Park yesterday by two lengths from Swiftsport, another Kentucky colt.

It was the fastest three-quarters of a mile run by a two year old in Chicago this year, and Mr. James, a son of St. James—Wonderful One, was in the lead from start to finish.

Jockey Wright was applying the whip near the end, and as a result Mr. James was going faster than any of them when it ended. He was in front by from two to four lengths all the way, and his victory brought quite an upset. Dan Sabath, which had worked sensationally for the race, was made the 9 to 10 choice at post time.

Dan Sabath Acts Up.

Dan Sabath was on his most incorrigible behavior at the post and delayed the start for several minutes. He was away with the leaders on the inside post position, but his rivals soon began to outrun him and as they charged to the front Dan Sabath was pinched back.

Jockey Renick took him back and tried to circle the leaders. It was too much of a handicap to ask of any horse. He ran gamely the rest of the way home, but was out of the money. Jen's Son finished third and Dan Sabath was fourth. Ding Bin and Naval Cadet made up the rear guard.

Jimmy Hunter, the kid rider from the western part of Canada, was in the spotlight during the afternoon while his more illustrious rival, Jackie Westrope, was finding it nearly impossible to make horses run fast for him.

Hunter opened the program by winning the first race with Slapstick, which was at more than 22 to 1 in the betting. He came on the outside down the stretch and trimmed Westrope on the heavily backed Bedight in the last strides.

Boots in Long Shot.

In the second race Hunter was in the saddle on Princess Val. He staged another rousing ride down the stretch and beat out the favorite, which was Merry Chatter, by a length. Princess Val and Hunter went almost unnoticed in the race, and when the mutuel figures were hung out, Princess Val paid $122.76 to win, $24.54 to place, and $11.74 to show.

Westrope had ridden Voltwood in this race and had him up fairly close most of the way, but the best he could do was to finish third. Westrope was on Caius in the third race. He worked Caius into a contending position halfway down the stretch, but faltered in the last sixteenth, and old Barney Sexton, the favorite, came along to take his measure. On Luna Bright in the fourth race Westrope was out of the money. This number was won by Bittybit, which was able to beat out Cash Surrender and Flaghorn in a stirring finish.

Princess Camelia Wins.

Westrope didn't go into action in the fifth race, which was the Morrison hotel purse at six furlongs, engaging some of the fleetest sprinters here. Princess Camelia, the grey daughter of Royal Canopy, racing for Mrs. John Marsch of Chicago, won it after she had galloped the three-quarters of a mile in 1:11 1-5. This was within a fifth of a second of the track record.

Princess Camelia held on gamely in the final drive and beat the odds-on choice, Rubio, by three-quarters of a length. Jessie Dear, showing good speed all the way, finished third. Princess Camelia was slightly more than 5 to 1 in the betting.

Westrope finally broke the ice and rolled up a victory on Sarsita in the last race. He brought him from last place into the lead in the stretch and won by a length. He was the favorite.

New York Needs Only One More Victory.

past Terry, but Critz made a great stop back in the grass. Hubbell was hustling to first to take the throw and it appeared certain that the galloping Senator would beat him to the bag. To thousands it appeared that Manush did beat the throw to Hubbell, but Umpire Moran of the National league called Manush out and Heinie ran over the bag straight at him.

Moran sidestepped, but as he did so Manush flicked him on the shoulder with his left hand. Maybe Heinie voiced a saucy saying also. At any rate Moran indicated Manush couldn't play any more. After an en masse argument over the play the inning was resumed and after the third out Manush went to his place in left field.

Moran motioned to Umpire in Chief Ormsby and asked him to tell Mahush he was through. Ormsby hollered and semaphored, but Manush refused to leave his post in left. With the crowd in an uproar, cheering Heinie, of course, Umpire Pfirman went out to left field and had a long chat with Manush. Finally Manush agreed to come in, but made it clear he intended to take a real poke at Moran on the way in.

Double Play Saves Weaver.

Weaver started the game by walking Moore on five pitches, but the embarrassment thus caused was short lived, for Critz forthwith lined to Myer and Moore was doubled off first. Terry scratched a single off Myer's glove, but Ott popped to Bluege. Myer flied to Moore, Goslin flied to Ott and Manush tapped to Critz.

Both sides went out in order in the second inning. For New York: Davis out, Myer to Kuhel; Jackson fanned, Mancuso flied to Goslin. For Washington: Cronin popped to Terry, Schulte flied to Ott, Kuhel flied to Davis.

Weaver threw three wide ones to Ryan in getting the third inning under way. Then he tightened and made Blondy fly to Manush. Hubbell grounded out to Bluege and Cronin threw out Moore. The Senators went out in order in their half of the third.

With one down in the fourth, Terry stepped up and socked a homer into the tiny triangular stand in the center field corner. Ott walked on four pitches and stopped at second, while Davis beat out a roller toward third, his fifth hit of the series. Jackson fouled to Bluege. Mancuso walked on four pitches, filling the bases. Ryan fanned on four pitches.

Ott Gets His Fifth Hit.

Moore singled with one out in the fifth, but Critz and Terry couldn't move him up. In the Washington fifth Kuhel fanned and Bluege flied to Moore, but Sewell singled to right for the second hit off Hubbell. Weaver fanned.

Ott led off the sixth with a single to right. He moved to second on Davis' sacrifice. Jackson popped to Myer, then Mancuso was given an intentional pass. Ryan tapped to Weaver for the third out.

The Senators' sixth, as you've been told, failed to produce a run, but it afforded a baseball scene which those who saw it long will remember. The bouncing of Manush was unusual, but the spectacle of having literally to pull a player out of the game was unprecedented in world series play.

Senators Tie Score.

In their seventh the Giants developed a chance for a second run when Moore doubled with one down. He went to third while Cronin was throwing out Critz, and died there when Terry was thrown out by Weaver.

Here's the detail of the way in which the Senators tied the score in the seventh. After Schulte had popped to Terry, Kuhel bunted about six feet in front of and to the left of Hubbell. Carl juggled the ball just long enough for Kuhel to reach first. Bluege promptly sacrificed. A conference was held and it was decided to pitch to Sewell instead of walking him to get at Weaver. Sewell cracked the first pitch on the line for a single to center, driving Kuhel home with the tying run. Weaver flied to Critz.

Myer walked to start the eighth, but was forced at second on Goslin's attempt to sacrifice. Harris forced Goslin, Ryan to Critz. Cronin dropped a high fly out of Ott's reach near the right field line for a single, which put Harris on third. Schulte then popped Hubbell's first pitch to Critz to end the threat.

Ryan singled to right on Weaver's first pitch in the ninth, and went to second on Hubbell's sacrifice, Sewell to Myer. Blondy went to third while Weaver was throwing out Moore. Critz flied to Harris.

Russell Replaces Weaver.

After Weaver had struck out on three pitches to start the Washington tenth Myer singled to left and went to second on Goslin's grounder to Critz. Harris walked. Cronin forced Harris, Ryan to Critz.

Jackson beat out a bunt to Bluege to start the eleventh and went to second on Mancuso's sacrifice, Weaver to Myer. Ryan again singled, this time to left, scoring Jackson. Hubbell lined a single to center, Ryan stopping at second. Weaver was taken out and Russell took his place. Russell's first official act was to fan Moore. Then Critz flied to Schulte.

Schulte opened the Senators' eleventh with the seventh hit off Hubbell, a line single to left. Kuhel bunted along the right field line. Terry thought the ball would roll foul, but it hit a pebble and stayed fair for a single, Schulte stopping at second. It was Kuhel's first hit of the series. The runners moved up on Bluege's sacrifice, then Sewell was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Bolton, a left handed hitter, batted for Russell and hit into a double play, Ryan to Critz to Terry, ending the game.

Mutiny Spices Rousing Game in World Series

ways says "ma'am" to ladies and "please" and "thank you," came a-whooping out from the post of command hollering swear words which you never will know the text of from your reading of any family newspaper. And a-whooping and a-hollering along behind him to back up the play and remember any cuss words which he might forget came Luke Sewell, the catcher, and a coach by the name of Kerr and several other Washington wage earners, who considered themselves fair hands at straightaway, journeyman swearing.

Sewell waited around quite a spell before he could break through Cronin's service and was just beginning to swing out into space when Cronin caught his breath and with a cry of "Yes, and furthermore—" resumed his oration.

Manush Gets in Few Words.

"Why didn't you boys hush a minute and let a man swear that can swear?" said Mr. Kerr, the coach, rather plaintively. "I know some you boys never heard of."

"Did you ever hear this one?" inquired Mr. Manush, himself, who had been bouncing up and down outside the huddle trying to get in a word. "This is one I learned from a man who used to drive a wagon in our town."

Mr. Sewell backed off and began to circle the group, waving his arms and apparently fixing to wind up his Sunday punch and heave it at Charlie Moran. Seeing this, George Moriarty, the American league umpire, who bought the entire White Sox ball club a year ago and was disciplined for permitting them to hold him to a draw, walked briskly in from second base.

Sewell Cools Off.

"If there is going to be any punching around here, you boys won't count old George out of it, will you?" he suggested politely. "I don't want to intrude on another man's fight, but if you can spare any, please deal me in and I will do the same for you some day."

At the approach of Mr. Moriarty, Mr. Sewell for some reason ceased cranking his Sunday punch and put it quietly away, although he did continue running around in circles kicking up little puffs of dust and uttering remarks.

In fact, the arrival of Mr. Moriarty with his large physique and his impressive reputation as a useful man in a riot, seemed to cool off all the boys, and they went back to sulk until the inning was over.

Why the Effrontery?

When the seventh inning began Manush went out to his place in left field, refusing to believe that an umpire would have the effrontery to put him out of a world series ball game or, even if the umpire should wish to, that he would have sufficient authority. Mr. Moran raised his hand and beckoned Red Ormsby, the umpire behind the plate, as superior in jurisdiction, to enforce his decree of banishment. Ormsby waved Manush out, but Manush waved back defiantly and Mr. Pfirman, the umpire on third base, walked out to reason with him.

Well, it looked as though they might have to send the Marines out there to remove Manush or detail Moriarty to knock him limp for easy removal, but finally he decided to give himself up and walked in. But, passing second base he changed his course and started for Moran with that in his stride and the swing of his arms and shoulders which seemed to promise a little clean, manly carnage. So Moriarty, all eager again, fell in beside him and walked along until they were pretty close to first, where, suddenly, he put his arm around Manush's shoulder and induced him to go away.

Pigeon Late Reporting.

The pigeon, Mr. Griffith's Blue Eagle, was late reporting, but showed up in the Senators' half of the second and went to work annoying Hubbell on behalf of the Homers. This talented fowl circled the infield many times, casting its moving shadow on the turf to confuse the fielders, and once settled near first base and refused to leave until Hubbell walked over and threatened it with his spikes.

Once at Yale a squirrel entertained 80,000 football customers with an exhibition of broken field running pursued by a nut in a raccoon coat, but none of these critters ever evinced the same intelligent, partisan purpose as Mr. Griffith's Eagle, which flew to the roof and rested there when the Washington club was fielding.

A buzzard appeared above the ball yard in the later innings and soared and soared. There may have been something of an omen in this. The Washington club is almost a dead cock in the pit now and life is fading fast away.

Manush Will Be Back in Lineup Today, Says Griffith

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, said tonight Heinie Manush would be back in left field for the Senators in tomorrow's world series game. Griffith said Commissioner K. M. Landis had assured him Manush, who was ejected by Umpire Charley Moran today, would be permitted to play.

It will be Hal Schumacher for the Giants tomorrow. Manager Cronin of the Senators is pretty sick on the hunch thing, and he'll have to guess right tomorrow. His likely choice rests between Walter Stewart and Al Crowder, both of whom have been knocked out in the series.

For a time it seemed that a pebble might be a factor in deciding today's game just as one decided the last extra inning world series here in 1924. Today's pebble kept Kuhel's bunt fair for a hit which led to the filling of the bases in the eleventh. It looked like a tough break at the time, but the Giants didn't mind in view of the eventual outcome.

The world's most widely advertised pigeon was absent during batting and fielding practice, but showed up back of the shortstop position a minute before the game started.

President Roosevelt, who attended yesterday's game and had expressed his intention to be present today, notified the management at 12:30 o'clock that he couldn't make it. He may attend tomorrow, he said.

Terry's home run ball was well hit, but it wouldn't have been a homer if the Senators' owner hadn't built a dinky temporary stand to the right of the flagpole. This goes as the bleacher, inasmuch as the regular bleachers are being used as $3.30 "pavilion seats."

Hubbell held the Senators to five hits in the first game of the series and he held them to five scattered singles in the first nine innings of today's affair.

The Giants are not so busy with their own affairs that they can't take time to give the needles to the Cubs for the drubbings they have been taking from the White Sox. Several of the players today were commenting on the fact that Adolpho Camilli was not voted a share or part share of the city series dough.

The official attendance figures revealed that 27,762 fans paid $113,590 in receipts, a distinct improvement over yesterdays' figures. Yet, it didn't seem in advance of the game that yesterday's mark would be reached.

Lyons hung around like he was a real hitter and coaxed a walk from Root, filling the bases. Root continued to be wild and plunked Swanson in the back, Hayes scoring. Haas was handled on a foul to Hartnett. Then Dykes cleaned up the full house with a line double over third base. The inning closed with Billy Herman throwing out Simmons.

There was nothing wrong with Root in the third or fourth, but a walk and two hits meant taps for him in the turbulent fifth. The pass went to Haas, who led off. Dykes sent a fly to Stephenson and Simmons hit a line drive past Root into center. Haas went to third on the smash. Appling popped out, but Kress singled to center and Haas scored. Root departed to make room for Tinning, who was welcomed with Hayes' two bagger to left center, Simmons and Kress scoring. Berry whistled a double past third to send Hayes home with the fourth run.

Nelson's first act in the seventh was to dispose of Appling on a liner to Cuyler. Kress promptly boomed his homer into the lower left field deck. Nelson struck out Hayes. Berry was safe on Jurges' fumble of a grounder and Lyons sent him to third on a single to center. Nelson stopped this threat fuss by fanning Swanson.

Cubs Are Docile.

The only peep from the Cub attack in the second inning was a double by Jurges after two were out. Lyons fanned Root. In the third the National leaguers reached third for the only time during the game. Billy Herman singled with one out and stopped at second on Cuyler's looping single behind first base. Herman, the infielder, went to third, while Cuyler was being forced at second on Outfielder Herman's roller to Hayes. Stephenson's tap to Lyons provided the third out.

NO GAME TODAY

The Sox and Cubs will pause in their city series competition today out of respect for William Veeck, late president of the Cubs. The series will be resumed tomorrow at Comiskey park with Guy Bush pitching for the National leaguers and either Sam Jones or Milt Gaston for the Sox.

The game originally scheduled for today will be played Monday at Comiskey park, if necessary. Tickets reading Oct. 7 will be honored on Monday.

Wheaton Opens Little 19 Season with Lake Forest

Wheaton college plays its first Little 19 conference football game of the season today when Lake Forest invades Wheaton. Last year Wheaton lost to the Foresters, 7 to 6, in the final minute of play. The Crusaders and the Foresters will have practically the same starting line as they had last year.

Baseball Leaders Honor Club President.

Funeral services for William Veeck, who died early Thursday morning at St. Luke's hospital, will be held at the Veeck home, 640 South Park avenue, Hinsdale, at 11 o'clock this morning. Friends of the late president of the Chicago National league baseball club will be permitted to pass the bier from 9:30 to 11 o'clock.

Among the hundreds who will gather at the home will be the members of the Cubs' team, who postponed the fourth game of the city series with the White Sox, scheduled for today, in order to attend the services. Representatives of both the National and American leagues also will attend.

Burial at Hinsdale.

The services will be conducted by Dr. Richard J. Lee of the Hinsdale Grace Episcopal church. Interment will be at the Hinsdale cemetery.

Hundreds of telegrams of condolence were received at the home and the executive offices of the Cubs in the Wrigley building yesterday. Among the senders were K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball; John Heydler, president of the National league; William Harridge, president of the American league, and many sports writers throughout the country.

Veeck, who was 56 years old, was president of the Cubs for 14 years. Previously he had worked on several newspapers as a sports reporter. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital last Friday suffering from leucemia, a blood disease.

Heydler to Attend.

President John A. Heydler of the National league and three presidents of clubs will attend the funeral. They are Sidney Weil of Cincinnati, Sam Breadon of St. Louis and Judge Emil Fuchs of Boston. Jerry Nugent and Sam Watters, presidents of the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh clubs, respectively, have intimated they will come if their affairs permit.

ROOSEVELT ASKS CONTINUED FIGHT ON ACCIDENTS

His Message Read Before Safety Council.

BY HAL FOUST.

A message from President Roosevelt was read yesterday at the final session of the twenty-second annual convention of the National Safety council, which has been meeting in the Stevens hotel this week.

"The conservation of human life and the prevention of accidental injury," said the telegram from Washington, D. C., "is of vital importance to our welfare and happiness. While much progress has been made in accident prevention in the last two decades, particularly in the field of industry, there is still much that should be done.

9,000,000 Injured in Year.

"We sacrificed 88,000 lives through accidents last year. Approximately 9,000,000 people were injured. The economic costs run close to two billion dollars. The social cost is immeasurable. Briefly stated, that is our national accident problem, and it certainly offers a most serious challenge to the American people.

"I extend my cordial greetings and best wishes, with the hope that you will find abundant inspiration for intensified efforts in all fields of human activities throughout the coming year."

In the closing session of the five day conference, which devoted much of its time to proposals to regulate automobile traffic and motor car drivers, Maxwell Halsey, engineer for the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, proposed an educational campaign for and a law enforcement campaign against careless pedestrians.

Heavy Toll of Pedestrians.

The speaker pointed out that 46.8 per cent of the 1932 traffic toll was pedestrians and that the walkers were guilty of negligence in a large portion of the cases. For example, 30.8 per cent of the pedestrians killed by motor cars were hit on pavements between street intersections.

Mr. Halsey, reading a report of a safety council study, recommended that ordinances should prohibit jaywalking and statutes should require pedestrians to keep to the left, so as to face vehicular traffic on rural highways. The study also recommended that "consideration should be given" laws punishing pedestrians for violations of these regulations, either by fines or by relinquishing certain rights in civil actions resulting from accidents.

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Hammerschmidt, 100 years old, of Naperville, who died Wednesday, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home, 122 South Brainard street, Naperville. The Rev. G. B. Kimmel, president of North Central seminary, will officiate. Burial will be in Naperville cemetery.

IL DUCE DENIES HE IS A FRIEND OF SPY SUSPECT

ROME, Oct. 6.—(AP)—It was officially denied today that Premier Mussolini was the friend and former schoolmate of Commendatore Donato Battelli, who was arrested last month on charges of participating in a spy plot. The announcement said Il Duce had not gone to school with Battelli, had seen him only once in the last ten years, and was not acquainted with him. The denial also said it was not through the premier's influence that Battelli obtained letters of introduction to Italian military attachés abroad, a course allegedly pursued by the prisoner in connection with the plot.

PORTER H. DALE, U. S. SENATOR OF VERMONT, DIES

Island Pond, Vt., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Porter Hinman Dale, 66, senior United States senator from this state, died at his summer home in the mountain town of Newark, near here, late tonight. He was a Republican.

Senator Dale was stricken ill about a month ago, but apparently had recovered. Three days ago he suffered a heart attack and was ordered to bed.

Dale was elected to serve an unexpired term on Nov. 6, 1923, and was twice reëlected. Previously he had served five terms in the house of representatives.

Dale was born in Island Pond on March 1, 1867; attended Vermont schools, later studied at Philadelphia and Boston, and for two years was associated with the Shakespearean scholar and actor, James E. Murdoch. Subsequently he studied law under his father, the late George N. Dale, and was admitted to practice in Vermont courts in 1896.

The senator is survived by his widow, two sons, George, a Washington lawyer, and Timothy, an Island Pond banker, and a daughter.

Weighs Plea to Strike Out Claim Against Swift Estate

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday took under advisement the motion made on behalf of Mrs. Hortense N. Swift to strike out a claim of $37,308,646 made against the estate of her husband, the late Edward F. Swift, by the Corporation Securities company, one of the Insull investment trusts. Attorney Samuel Ettelson, representing the widow, argued that the Probate court had no jurisdiction in the case. Attorneys for the Corporation Securities company alleged that Swift, as a director of the company, was responsible for losses incurred by stockholders when the company collapsed.

FATALLY INJURED AS MOTORCYCLE RUNS INTO CURB

Rowland Schram, 21 years old, 2211 North Tripp avenue, was fatally injured yesterday when he lost control of his motorcycle at 27th street and South Park way and the machine crashed into the curb. Schram was taken to Michael Reese hospital, where he died.

These two deaths increased the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 787.

An unidentified man about 50 years old weighing about 220 pounds was killed late last night when he was struck at Stockton drive and Center street in Lincoln park by an automobile driven by Dr. Horace C. Lyman, 1324 Greenleaf avenue.

Edgar Gerald, 27 years old, of Mishawaka, Ind., was killed and Max Lovelace, 35 years old, of South Bend, was severely injured yesterday when the car in which they were riding went into a ditch and overturned in Hammond. The men were believed to have swerved the car to avoid striking a pedestrian.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of William J. Louderback Jr., 32 years old, 18 East Elm street, socially prominent bond salesman. Louderback was killed when a taxicab driven by Sol Levin, 3526 West 13th street, overturned at Walton place and Rush street.

W. R. FARRINGTON, EX-GOVERNOR OF HAWAII, IS DEAD

HONOLULU, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Heart disease today ended the career of Wallace Rider Farrington, governor of Hawaii from 1921 to 1929. He was 62 years old. Mr. Farrington had been absent from his office at the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, of which he was president and publisher, most of this year.

When Warren Harding became President, he chose Mr. Farrington as governor of Hawaii. For two terms of four years each Mr. Farrington occupied Iolani palace. After President Hoover took office the governor asked for retirement. He said he wanted to go back to his newspaper.

He was born in Orono, Me., May 3, 1871. He attended public schools and North Bridgeton academy in Maine and was graduated from the University of Maine in 1891. He worked as reporter on the Bangor News. Later he served on the Lewiston Sun, the Rockland Daily Star, and the New York Commercial.

Mr. Farrington came to the islands in 1894 to become managing editor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser. Four years later he became manager of the Evening Bulletin which later was merged under his direction with the Star.

THEATERGOERS IN NEW YORK AT MERCY OF RACKET

NRA Gives Bootleggers Control of Tickets.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Bootleggers have all but monopolized New York City's amusement ticket supply since the NRA scheme of things began to function hereabouts four or five weeks ago. As a result theatergoers, concert lovers and sports fans find themselves compelled to pay anywhere from a third more to double their regular charges for choice seats to their favorite entertainments.

Managers of the town's leading clubs complain that it is almost impossible to obtain accommodations for some attractions for their members or guests without resorting to bootleg extortioners which most of them refuse to do.

Big hotels make the same complaint on behalf of their out-of-town guests, many of whom come to New York around this season mainly to attend the new Broadway hits and for that reason are content with nothing less than the best seats in the house.

It's Bootleg Game.

The manager of one well known club told a representative of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE today that he had been unable to obtain a ticket to one of the outstanding theatrical successes since its opening because he wouldn't be a party "to the bootleg game."

"We can't get tickets of the legitimate brokers and we won't deal with the bootlegger," he said. "So we simply tell our members and guests that if they are bound to see this particular show they will have to scout about for themselves."

The theatrical producers, licensed ticket brokers and the National Legitimate Theater committee set up as the administrative agency for the enforcement of the theaters' master code insist they are doing their level best to curb the evil but admit that their efforts leave much to be desired.

Plan to Fight Racket.

Brock Pemberton, chairman of the subcommittee of the National Legitimate committee formed to deal especially with the ticket situation, announced today that he had asked the managers of all the better class clubs of the city to confer with his committee next Monday on ways and means for dealing with the "racket." Later on, Mr. Pemberton said he would convene the hotel men in a similar conference.

"If the clubs and hotel men will cooperate with us fully, they can do much toward stamping out this evil," Mr. Pemberton said. "At present, some of them are among our worst offenders. Not that they are engaged in the business themselves. They merely coöperate with the bootlegger as a means of obtaining choice seats for their members or guests."

Mr. Pemberton intimated a well defined suspicion that the "bootleggers" in a big proportion of these cases are licensed ticket brokers, 32 of whom have been licensed so far. The practice in such cases seems to be for the club manager or hotel clerk having a call for select tickets, to contact the broker who delivers the pasteboards in blank envelopes to be paid for at exorbitant prices.

How Racket Works.

Thus the identity of the broker is kept under cover, the manager osten sibly does not know whence the cherished tickets came, and the customer, usually glad to pay for a little extra accommodation, is content to go his way without making a fuss over the excess charge. In some instances the custom has been for the hotel or club management to pretend ignorance of the whole transaction, leaving it to a bellboy or some other subordinate of the establishment to play the bootlegger's game.

Under the new NRA regulations producers are permitted to allot 75 per cent of all their seats to legitimate brokers, retaining the remaining 25 per cent for sale at box office windows. The brokers under the rules may charge a premium of only 75 cents apiece on orchestra tickets and 50 cents additional for balcony seats. Producers found guilty of violating the regulations are liable to a fine of $500, while the penalty for offending brokers is revocation of licenses.

Arrangements are being made by the Pemberton committee to employ a staff of inspectors to investigate complaints of violations.

PRICES OF GRAIN BREAK ON WAVE OF LIQUIDATION

Longs Discouraged by Government.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Drastic liquidation developed in the grain markets yesterday and only the limits imposed by exchange regulations checked the decline. Corn closed at a loss of 4 cents, oats 3 cents, and rye and barley 5 cents as compared with Thursday.

Wheat broke 4⅞ cents at the extreme limit, but showed more rallying power than the other grains and lost only 3⅞@4 cents for the day. It touched 84¼ cents at the low and finished at 85@85½ cents. December corn was offered at 41¼ cents, oats 33½ cents, rye 62⅛ cents and barley at 50½ cents at the close.

There was nothing in the general run of the news to account for the broad selling movement. Pressure on the markets came largely from scattered longs who had become discouraged over what the trade regarded as the failure of the administration to announce its monetary policy, and also to give the American markets protection when prices nearly reached a world parity plus the import duty.

Stop Loss Orders Uncovered.

Disclosure that large amounts of rye had been imported over the tariff barrier of 15 cents a bushel added to the uncertainty on the part of the trade. Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered in all grains on the way down, and rallies were short lived.

For some days corn has been showing independent weakness as compared with wheat, and this was more pronounced early yesterday. Liquidation was under way except for a brief period at the start. The continued pressure to sell only corn on the part of the country has tended to increase the discouragement of the bulls. Purchases of 102,000 bushels to arrive were reported yesterday.

No attention was paid to the shipping sales of 325,000 bushels of corn or to charters for around 500,000 bushels for eastern lake ports. Lake room to take out around 2,500,000 bushels have been taken during the last week.

Potential Demand Erased.

Traders who have analyzed the corn situation contend that the government's pig slaughtering campaign has had a great effect in decreasing buyers' confidence, as the destruction of the 6,000,000 or more pigs and sows eliminated a potential demand for around 65,000,000 bushels of grain. At the low point yesterday December corn at 41¼ cents was only 1⅛ cents above the inside level of the season, and 35 cents below the high point in July. Corn prices have declined about 20 cents a bushel since the pig killing program started. This equals a reduction of $400,000,000 in the theoretical value of the 1933 crop to the producer.

Based on the closing price for cash corn in the local market yesterday Illinois producers were not receiving over 25 cents a bushel at country loading stations and bids at Iowa points were still lower. Despite the precarious position of corn no move has been reported regarding checking imports of black strap molasses and other foreign agricultural products which compete with by-products of corn in this country. It is estimated that were imports of these commodities embargoed a demand for 75,000,000 bushels of corn could be provided.

Price Range Narrow.

A sharp narrowing of the difference between Chicago and Winnipeg December wheat occurred yesterday as the Canadian market was 26¾ cents under the former at the close compared with 30¾ cents on Wednesday. However, prices at Winnipeg dropped to near the lowest levels of the season, despite export sales estimated as high as 1,000,000 bushels.

Heavy buying of December corn against sales of May at 6¾@7 cents difference was under way during the day, cash interests changing over hedges. A few days ago the spread was 6 cents. Traders who had rye bought and wheat sold have taken considerable losses as the spread between the December deliveries, recently 17 cents, was around 23 cents at the close yesterday.

October rye in Winnipeg at the close yesterday was quoted equal to 41⅞ cents a bushel in American funds compared with 62⅛ cents for the December delivery at Minneapolis, a difference of 20¾ cents, while the import duty is 15 cents a bushel.

Persistent rumors that the administration is to establish a pegged price for cash grain to the farmer have been denied by officials at Washington, but they continue to circulate, grain traders report.

100% Nichols Tells Why His Bank Is Liquid

BY HOWARD WOOD.

J. M. (100 per cent) Nichols, president of the First National bank of Englewood, has made his bank 100⅛ per cent liquid, according to a quarterly statement of condition given out yesterday.

This bank's statement discloses that in spite of the administration's demand for more generous loans and an expansion of bank credit it has called practically all of its loans and has piled up cash, government bonds, and other liquid assets to an amount exceeding its deposit liabilities.

Three months ago the First National of Englewood had outstanding $21,050 of loans and discounts. Yesterday's statement showed that by Sept. 30 these loans had been reduced to $8,247. During this same period deposits have increased from $5,628,583 to $5,842,963.

This bank during the last three months has increased its holdings of United States government bonds nearly one million dollars. On Sept. 30 it held $2,702,000 of such bonds, compared with $1,714,146 at the end of June. Government bonds now equal more than 46 per cent of the bank's total deposits. Cash of $2,113,296 accounts for another 36 per cent of deposits.

To critics who declare that the First National bank of Englewood has ceased to function as a bank and has become merely a warehouse for money, Nichols says:

"Our prime consideration is the depositors' welfare. If I were to put any of our 17,000 depositors behind my desk to pass on the type of security borrowers offer these days they wouldn't make the loans. Then why should I? I haven't been making much money lately, but I've been playing a lot of golf."

Inflation continues to be the chief topic of conversation in the financial district. What it is no two experts can agree, but that doesn't keep them from talking about it.

J. S. Bache & Co. yesterday distributed to customers a leaflet arguing that inflation is already a fact and that the total inflation to date has amounted to approximately seven billion dolalrs.

1. The granting of a billion dollar soldiers' bonus in the spring of 1931.

2. The failure or inability to balance our national budget, the budget showing a deficit in the fiscal year of 1931 of $902,000,000, in 1932 of $2,885,000,000, and in the eight months of the fiscal year of 1933 of $1,360,000,000.

3. The passage of the Glass-Steagall bill a year ago permitting a maximum increase in the currency of $2,500,000,000, if necessary, through the substitution of government bonds as reserve for federal reserve notes.

4. The creation of the $3,900,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation.

5. The Glass amendment giving the national banks the right to issue further national bank notes to the extent of $995,000,000.

6. The entrance of the government into a number of extraordinary activities, such as the farm board, in an attempt to maintain commodity prices.

7. The purchase of large amounts of government obligations by the federal reserve system—the total held being $2,237,780,000 on Sept. 20, 1933, as compared with $759,000,000 on March 2, 1932.

Inflation, says this company, will be recognized by the public only when the crisis stage arrives. It predicts a gradual price advance, interrupted by "frequent periods of weakness."

* *

"We anticipate some very brilliant earnings statements for the September quarter," said this concern in its market letter yesterday. They should begin to appear about the middle of this month."

To back its argument it presents a recapitulation of recent news dispatches as follows: Chrysler export shipments in September were 328.4 per cent above those in September, 1932; W. T. Grant company's September sales were up 13.5 per cent in a year; U. S. Steel's operations in the week ended Oct. 2 were at the rate of 37 per cent of capacity, against 18 per cent in the corresponding 1932 week; Woolworth September sales were 11.2 per cent greater than those of September, 1932; United Fruit earnings in the first nine months were 75.9 per cent ahead of those in the corresponding 1932 period.

When a nation is off the gold standard do commodity prices go up in direct proportion to the rise in the price of gold? Not necessarily, says one big New York investment house in its current confidential bulletin.

In a nation off the gold standard, it declares, gold becomes the most sought after of all commodities. This extraordinary demand for the metal pushes the price of gold up faster than the prices of wheat, cotton, rubber, and other commodities which do not enjoy so marked an increase in demand.

199 Millions May Be Freed by 376 Banks

An estimated 199 million dollars in frozen bank deposits will be released by the reopening of the 376 national banks whose reorganization plans have been approved by the treasury. This was the estimate made yesterday in Washington by treasury officials. This amount will be made available when the banks carry out the plans agreed upon and are licensed for business. The names of the 376 banks were published last Saturday.

The estimate is based on the assumption that all the banks will live up to the plans approved by the treasury. The total of frozen deposits involved is $398,735,000. Unrestricted deposits of the 376 banks total $31,151,000.

May Free Half of Deposits.

"The total represents the amount of deposits carried on the books of these institutions when conservators took charge of them after the bank holiday," the treasury said. "It is obvious that the banks would have reopened immediately had they been able to pay 100 per cent of their deposits.

"However, it is estimated that, in most instances, depositors will receive an average of slightly better than 50 per cent of their balances when and if these banks reopen, with additional percentages being made available as slow or doubtful assets are converted into cash. The $31,151,000 of unrestricted deposits represents funds deposited since conservators have been in charge of the institutions."

Must Carry Out Plans.

The treasury stressed the fact that the release of these deposits is contingent upon the carrying out of the approved reorganizations by the banks themselves.

Thirty-three Illinois banks with frozen deposits of $25,731,000 are included in the approved list. Depositors stand to get half of these balances when the banks go through with the reorganizations. The unrestricted deposits accepted by the conservators of the 33 banks since the moratorium amount to $2,752,000.

ILLINOIS SALES TAX REVENUE UP $771,040 DURING LAST MONTH

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 6.—(AP)—The sales tax law produced $771,040 more during September than for August, Director Joseph J. Rice of the finance department announced today. Total receipts were $2,982,173, compared with $2,211,133 for August. Collections are based on two per cent of the retail sales for the preceding month.

Rice said 101,194 returns were filed in September, an increase of 16,898.

"Generally speaking, August is a poor business month," he continued. "Therefore it is reasonable to assume that our collections for the better business months will exceed the total for September and will, in the course of a year, approximate our previous estimate of annual returns."

Rice said the statistics indicated that few retailers are deliberately evading the law and predicted "with certainty that the retailers' [sales] tax will provide substantial tax relief for general property owners in 1934."

DOLLAR AGAIN RISES IN GOLD AS POUND DROPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—The gold value of the American dollar rose to 65.29 cents today as measured in French gold francs. This was an advance of approximately two-thirds of a cent from yesterday's price. The final quotation on the franc was 6 cents, against 6.06 cents yesterday. The pound sterling again lost ground, closing at a cable rate of $4.73, a decline of 2½ cents.

Although the dollar closed higher the United States treasury raised the price for newly mined gold to $31.72 cents an ounce, up 17 cents from yesterday. This was accounted for by the fact that the treasury price was fixed early in the day, when the dollar was receding against foreign currencies.

The comparative stability of world currencies for the last several days has stimulated the discussion of early stabilization. Official news indicating that such a move is imminent was entirely lacking, however.

PLAN TO RELEASE BANK FUNDS IS EXPECTED SOON

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—An early announcement of administration plans for loosening funds in closed banks and increasing the capital of those now operating is expected from President Roosevelt.

The President was represented today as having been prepared to make these plans known in some detail in his speech at the American Federation of Labor memorial exercises in honor of the late Samuel Gompers tomorrow, but decided to postpone the announcement until later.

A White House statement today said Henry Bruere, New York banker, would be a liaison officer to watch the activities of all federal credit agencies and those having functions affecting all kinds of banks.

NORTH. PACIFIC ASKS BIDS ON 12 LARGE ENGINES

The Northern Pacific railway has requested bids for the immediate construction of twelve large passenger locomotives. The engines will be the largest used in the transcontinental service in the northwest and their use will require a number of improvements in the right of way.

It is stated that the engines and the improvements will represent an investment of around $1,750,000. The Northern Pacific purchase will end the two year stagnation in the locomotive construction industry.

$20,000 Sale of Horseshoes Lucky for NRA

A group of steel men from various parts of the country were sitting in a downtown hotel the other day chatting about their business. "I just bought $20,000 worth of horse shoes," a southerner remarked. "What in the world are you going to do with that many horse shoes?" a friend asked. "He will sell them to folks who have signed the code to hang over their doors," a wag suggested.

Investors who can't guess what's going to happen to the dollar are trying to find ways to hedge against inflation and at the same time protect their backlog of sound investments. One individual of considerable means has straddled the situation this way. He has put 85 per cent of his capital in high grade bonds. With the other 15 per cent he has bought wheat futures on the Board of Trade. If inflation should cause his bond holdings to depreciate he figures he'll make enough speculating in wheat to offset his investment loss.

Scenes recalling war days, when troops were being moved all over the land, are being enacted along the route of the Milwaukee road in connection with the transportation of more than 6,000 members of the civilian conservation corps. The movement embraces most divisions between Chicago and Seattle and includes men being mustered out of the service and new ones entering it. W. B. Dixon, general passenger agent of the road, says field kitchens, rations, and other supplies recalling the war period are being handled. On long journeys special trains are halted twice daily to let the men exercise. Field kitchens are set up along the right of way to furnish the "chow."

Some industrialists sitting in the code meetings which are taking up a large part of the time of company officials are complaining about the questions raised by some of the less mentally alert of their colleagues. "How some of these people are able to carry on their business is beyond me," said one man who has bein going from a code meeting in Chicago to another in New York and then back to start all over again. "We spend hours trying to explain the most rudimentary phases of business procedure only to have them ask some fool question at the end."

WARD REPORTS 14.4 PCT. UPTURN IN SEPTEMBER

Montgomery Ward & Co., yesterday reported September sales of $16,599,901, the best for any month this year and 14.4 per cent ahead of the corresponding month last year. August sales were $15,657,274, or 20.5 per cent above last year.

Total sales were $114,039,541 for the first eight months of 1933 against $110,638,987 in the corresponding months last year, an increase of 3.1 per cent.

WITHDRAW ONE MIDDLE WEST BANKRUPTCY SUIT

The committee representing the noteholders of the Middle West Utilities company yesterday withdrew its petition filed last March seeking bankruptcy for the company. Another motion for leave to intervene in opposition to the bankruptcy proceedings was filed by the committee. The motion was taken under advisement by the Judge Wilkerson.

Since the original petition was filed the note holders have reached an agreement with other creditors, including several New York and Chicago banks, on the disputed assets. Yesterday's action has no immediate significance but makes even more remote the possibility of bankruptcy for the utility firm.

Robert F. Golding of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming Green & Martin represented the committee. As attorneys for the committee the firm has withdrawn as associate counsel for the petitioning creditors who started the bankruptcy proceedings.

STOCKS DECLINE AT CLOSE; TRAIL GRAINS, COTTON

Other News Is Good; Trading Dull.

New York, Oct. 6.—Weakness in grain prices was the dominant influence in stock trading today. Leading issues broke rather sharply in the last hour, sinking final quotations from fractions to 2 points or more below yesterday's figures.

Trading was dull, except at infrequent intervals when a bear drive on some isolated issue tended to enliven the scene. Volume was 1,466,100 shares.

News of market importance was mixed. Steadiness in the dollar was a source of some encouragement to those looking to the long range perspective, car loadings figures proved fully up to expectations and the good showing of Montgomery Ward's sales figures lent themselves to constructive interpretation. Firmness in bonds was also a reassuring factor of some importance. However, the combined showing of these items was overbalanced by the break in grain prices and a dip of a dollar a bale in cotton.

Repeal Issues Are Active.

Stocks to show the most activity were the repeal issues, a motor or two, one or two textiles, an airplane, and a utility—Columbia Gas. In the early dealings all stocks with an alcoholic flavor were shoved ahead a bit. Park & Tilford, Schulte, and Dunhill International being especially prominent, but not all of them were able to hold their gains. National Distillers dipped slightly at first on the announcement of its split-up plan but rebounded later to close the day with a slight gain.

Gold shares had another of their off days. Homestake dropped 4 points from its new high of 373, registered yesterday, and McIntyre and Alaska Juneau fell back with it 2⅝ and 1 point respectively. Other metal issues were lower. Dome Mines and American Smelting were active and weak. Farm stocks drifted down with wheat as did the mail order descriptions.

Montgomery Ward Eases.

Montgomery Ward gave up about a point in spite of its good report. J. I. Case finished off 2 points.

The rails did not seem to find any help in the favorable revenue figures for the week. Union Pacific was off 3 points and New York Central 2.

Standard industrials held to a comparatively narrow zone most of the day but gave way without much of a struggle toward the last. United States Steel sold off to 45¼ around midafternoon but firmed up anew just before the final gong to close at 46⅝, less than half a point lower on the day.

In the utilities department Consolidated Gas, Standard Gas, International Telephone, American Water Works, and others worked lower. Taxes and the rate clipping movement were their big worries.

There were reports of some improved earnings to bolster the oils, but the group went along with the procession to lower ground. Some buying appeared in the tobaccos.

Eastman Raps Railroad Coal Buying System

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation, today condemned the "custom of reciprocal buying in return for supposed traffic advantages" which he asserted "permeates the railroad industry."

The coördinator expressed his views in a statement transmitted to the railroad regional coördinating committees recommending improvement in coal purchasing methods and standardization of cars, lumber, rails and rail accessories, as well as adoption of an amplified invoice form.

The time is now ripe for the consummation of these projects, with the possible exception of the standardization of rail joints and other accessories where serious patent difficulties are expected, according to the coördinator.

Cite High Prices Paid.

Improvement in coal purchasing methods, the coördinator said, was necessary because of revelations in evidence gathered by the interstate commerce commission in an investigation of railroad fuel practices.

The commission's records show that in many instances the carriers have been paying considerably more than the market price for coal "because of traffic considerations or for the purpose of helping 'on-line' mines, and that coal purchasing methods have been lax in other respects."

"There is no sound reason," said Mr. Eastman, "why railroads should subsidize mines by paying more than the market price for coal, and it is quite clear that this custom has not prevented demoralization of the coal industry."

Might Cut Freight Rates.

If the railroads wish to help the coal industry, remarked the coördinator, a much sounder and effective way would be to reduce the freight rates on coal, thus aiding the mines to meet the competition of other fuels.

The railroads, under the Roosevelt emergency transportation act, Mr. Eastman said, now had the opportunity through united, collective action to clean house in the field of reciprocal buying—designated by him "a pernicious custom."

Development and adoption of standard performance specifications for coal, based on chemical and physical properties affecting fuel value, and of standard inspection and test methods such as those used by the government and large industrial and utility companies are recommended.

Charge It Smacks of Rebates.

William P. Bartel, director of the bureau of service of the commission, in a report in the fuel investigation referred to by the coördinator, charged that reciprocal buying of coal by railroads was not far removed from rebating.

"The preferential treatment of commercial shippers has grown to a reprehensible extent," he asserted.

Reciprocal buying almost invariably caused an increase in operating expenses and unjustly favored one shipper over another, said Director Bartel in recommending that the practice should be entirely discontinued.

S. H. Kress September Sales Are 10% Above Year Ago

S. H. Kress & Co. yesterday reported sales of $5,405,554 for September, an increase of 10 per cent over the $4,914,392 volume in the same month last year. August sales had shown a gain of 11.4 per cent. Nine months' sales were $42,221,337, up 2.8 per cent over last year.

Construction Contracts Are $39,604,000 for Week

Heavy lettings of contracts for highways and other public projects raised the total of engineering construction contracts reported for the week ended Oct. 2 to $39,604,000, says Engineering News-Record.

The week's total represented a gain of 9,158 cars over the previous week and an increase of 40,169 cars above the corresponding week of last year, the association stated, but was still 115,885 below the same week in 1931.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of Sept. 30 totaled 235,539 cars, a decrease of 549 cars from the preceding week, but a gain of 14,901 cars for the corresponding week in 1932, according to the association.

Coke loading amounted to 7,432 cars, an increase of 856 cars above the preceding week, 2,832 cars above the same week last year, and 1,704 cars above the same week two years ago.

In the western districts alone, loading of live stock for the week ended Sept. 30 totaled 17,962 cars, a decrease of 3 cars compared with the same week last year.

All districts, except the central western and southwestern which showed small reductions, reported increases in the total loading of all commodities compared with the same week in 1932, but all districts except the Pocahontas, which showed an increase, reported decreases compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

Loading of revenue freight thus far in 1933 totals 21,423,722 cars as compared with 20,972,692 cars last year and 28,721,707 cars in 1931.

Weekly Reviews Cheerful, but Trade Pace Is Slower

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—Weekly trade surveys today retained a cheerful view of business prospects despite a slower pace in trade lately and threats to industry by labor troubles.

Dun & Bradstreet's review points out that under the calm surface of business are rising forces which are destined to bring further recovery, including the releasing of frozen bank deposits, spending of $3,000,000,000 for public works, and coöperation between banks and the administration to extend credit to industry.

Slackening of Activity Reported.

"Reports from nearly all parts of the country this week emphasize a slackening of activity in centers of production and distribution," the review says. "The lower rate of manufacturing operations has been aggravated by labor troubles.

"While consumers' reserves appear to be far from exhausted and retailers of merchandise are receiving the benefit of more than two billion dollars returned from hoarding since March, it is becoming apparent that wages are lagging behind advancing prices."

On the other hand, the review says, there has been a slight reversal in the sluggish decline of industrial activity from the July heights, with steel, electric output, textile and lumber production showing a better trend.

Retail Trade About Steady.

"In most parts of the country retail trade has held fairly steady at last week's level," the review adds, "but gains which should be accumulating at this period were almost entirely absent. While no feeling of apprehension can be discerned, the attitude of consumers generally is one of hesitation, awaiting the force of some strong impetus to release the funds which admittedly are nearly double those available a year ago for the acquisition of merchandise."

WALGREEN HAS BIG GAIN IN SALES FOR SEPTEMBER

Sales of the Walgreen company increased sharply in September, standing 16.9 per cent ahead of the return for September, 1932. Sales during the month totaled $4,262,059, compared with $3,646,919 a year ago, an increase of $615,140.

In the first nine months of the year sales totaled $34,063,078, compared with $34,597,448, a decline of $534,369, or 1.5 per cent.

The company had 470 stores in operation at the end of September compared with 471 at the end of September, 1932. Neither the sales total nor the number of stores includes the shops at A Century of Progress.

Chevrolet Output Treble That for September, 1932

Chevrolet's September production trebeled the same month last year with an output of 59,357 units, against 20,995 in the same period last year. Last month's output was the largest for any month since 1929 and one of the best Septembers in the history of the company.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—Minor irregularities characterized trading in most of the bond issues that were at all active on the stock exchange today. As usual, the price variations in infrequently traded issues were fairly wide. United States government bonds were strong until about midday and closed irregularly lower, off 2-32 to up 5-32 point.

On the average, domestic railroad and utility bonds were slightly higher, and industrials and foreign loans lower. As a rule the final prices for the day were at or near the lows. Trading in both the domestic and foreign groups was dull, amounting to $9,462,000, or only a little more than on the previous day.

Foreign Bonds Irregular.

In the foreigns, the "gold payment" issues were easier. French government loans were down 1¼ to 1⅝ points and the French municipal issues finished off 1½ to up a point. Swiss government 5½s moved up half a point, while Dutch East Indies loans were down 1 to 2¼ points on the day.

There appeared to be little unanimity of opinion regarding German bonds and the demand from abroad for these issues was less insistent than it has been during the previous day or two. Commonwealth of Australia loans extended their recoveries to levels just under their best prices for the year to date. Latin American issues closed steady.

Curb Issues Irregular.

Advances and declines in bonds on the Curb exchange were about evenly balanced today. Initial trading was done in American Rolling Mills 5s, due 1938, which are being offered in exchange for maturing bonds. The new issue touched a high of 96¼ with the low and last price at 95. Associated Gas and Electric issues, which are selling well below 20 cents on the dollar, gained fractionally. Foreign loans were exceedingly dull.

Brown Paper Mill.

Investors' Guide: I hold a bond with Brown Paper Mill company which matures in 1940 or 1941. What can you tell me about it?—J. N.

Although tonnage sales in 1932 were about 24 per cent more than in 1931, lower prices resulted in a slight decrease in dollar sales. During 1932 the price of kraft wrap paper dropped about 21 per cent and kraft linen paper about 12 per cent. Sales amounted to $2,873,000, against $2,951,000 in 1931 and $2,721,000 in 1930.

In February, 1932, as well as in parts of January and March, the company had to close its plant because of damages resulting from floods. This was when prices were at their peak for the year. Inventory losses also resulted from the flood. Reflecting these factors, loss before fixed charges was $304,000 and net loss after all charges $799,000. In 1931 loss before fixed charges was $228,000 and net loss $704,000. The company earned one-third of fixed charges in 1930.

Current position leaves much to be desired. At the close of 1932 current assets totaled $656,000, and current liabilities were $1,377,000. Cash was only $46,000 and notes payable totaled $1,067,000. Profit and loss deficit was $1,067,000.

Funded debt consisti of $1,803,000 first 6s, series A, due serially to 1941; $1,412,000 first 6s, series B, due 1944, and $2,800,000 convertible debenture 6s, due 1939.

There have been increases in the price of its product since the first quarter of this year, but it is generally felt that a still further advance is necessary before profitable operations can ensue.

The first 6s, series A and B, and the debenture 6s are quite speculative.

Bonds and Inflation.

Investors' Guide: Will you please let me know why bonds should go down in value when inflation is contemplated? I have noticed that they have been going down.—C. O. O.

Answer: With inflation come rising prices. Holders of bonds receive a fixed cash return. As prices rise, the amount that this cash buys decreases. In effect, inflation therefore cuts down principal and interest. This prompts many holders of high grade bonds to sell their holdings and at the same time discourages investors from purchasing. The net effect is a decrease in market price. Cheap speculative bonds tend to rise toward par in a period of inflation.

The investing interest during periods of inflation ordinarily shifts to common stocks, commodities and similar media that will reflect in either market value or in dividends the results of inflation.

SHADOW OF U. S. RULE IS CAST ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Committee Selected to Study Legislation.

New York, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The shadow of federal regulation again fell over the New York Stock exchange today with the formation of a committee, at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, to consider drawing up legislation for submission to congress.

In confirming the selection of the committee, A. A. Berle, who was active in drawing up emergency legislation passed by congress last spring, acknowledged that he would serve as a member of the group, but that the news of its formation had "leaked out" prematurely, and that he could not discuss its work at this time.

The committee was selected at the President's request by Secretary of Commerce Roper, and in addition to Prof. Berle includes Arthur H. Dean, member of the Wall street law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell; John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce; Dean Acheson, under secretary of the treasury, and Arthur J. Richardson, Washington lawyer. Mr. Dean acknowledged that he had been requested to serve, but said he had been bound to secrecy and could not discuss the work.

Study Complete Regulation.

It was understood in Wall street that the committee would study the problem of federal regulation of securities dealings from all standpoints, and would consider regulation of all stock exchanges in the country, as well as the New York exchange.

It was also understood that its work would in no way interfere with the investigation of financial practices now being conducted for the senate banking committee by Ferdinand Pecora, but would be supplementary to it.

It was recalled that when the securities legislation was enacted by congress last spring stock exchange regulation was considered and drafts of proposed legislation were made, but that the problem was found too intricate for hasty action.

Exchange Officials Silent.

Officials of the New York Stock exchange declined to comment on the news of the selection of the committee, although the exchange has traditionally opposed federal regulation, maintaining that its organization in the form of a private club permitted it to regulate its members more effectively than could be done by law.

Some members of the exchange who discussed the matter informally said they felt that the appointment of a committee of persons expert in financial affairs was undoubtedly constructive, in that it would tend to forestall any "irresponsible" action.

Some said that the securities act, regulating the issue of new securities, had been so severe as virtually to stop the new issue business, and felt that the experience with that legislation would prevent any action completely throttling the exchanges.

DENIED AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has directed no new government committee to study stock market practices, it was explained today at the White House in connection with reports that a fresh inquiry, independent of the senate investigation, is about to get under way.

The group, headed by Secretary Roper of the commerce department, which has been described as conducting a new, separate investigation, is watching the operation of the federal securities act under orders given by the President last spring when the act was being framed.

It was emphasized there had been no new orders given the commerce secretary in connection with this survey.

DIVIDE CHICAGO AREA TO ENFORCE NEW CODE ON OIL

The Chicago committee for the enforcement of the oil code at a meeting at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club yesterday divided the city and the Calumet district into thirteen key territories as the first step in carrying out the provisions of the code. J. G. Sinclair of the Shell Petroleum corporation is chairman of the committee.

Each territory in the Chicago district is to have a committee of its own. The members of these subcommittees are to be approved at a meeting of the central organization next Wednesday.

In addition, the central committee yesterday appointed T. B. Clifford, manager of the Chicago division of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, as vice chairman, and J. C. Skillings of the Texas corporation as permanent secretary. When the organization work has been completed the Chicago group will start to enforce the code.

HOGS RECOVER PREVIOUS LOSS; NEAR YEAR'S TOP

Thursday's losses in the hog market were recovered yesterday, with top sales again crowding the high marks of the year. Advances of 10 to 15 cents were registered in most classes.

The top at $5.40 was 15 cents above Thursday's high point and only 5 cents under the highest price paid for full carload lots since July, 1932, while the general average at $4.80 was equal to the highest point since June 3. Quotations showed advances of 65 to 70 cents compared with last Saturday, and are 15 to 25 cents higher than the best time of last week.

Supplies are running heavier than earlier in the week, but far below normal, and offering still are under requirements of the trade, which has been in need of fresh pork for several days.

Buyers Vie for Supply.

After 9,400 directs had been deducted from yesterday's receipts only about 9,000 hogs remained. Eastern buyers took a third of these, leaving a starvation supply for the smaller local packers and city butchers, who showed more eagerness to replenish their pork supply yesterday than they have for some time. Meager receipts have been a feature of the trade all week. Farmers continue to hold back supplies at all leading distributing centers.

This week's receipts are smaller than any corresponding period since 1917. The eleven leading markets during the first five days handled only 282,000, against 393,000 commercial hogs a week ago, 351,000 a year ago, and 433,000 two years ago.

Cattle Prices Lower.

The lowest wholesale prices for beef carcasses since June, coupled with the inferior stuffing taken by tanners in the hide markets in the last few weeks, made for a bad week in the cattle alleys. Heavy steer hides are 3 cents lower than a month ago.

Practically all classes of cattle finished at the low point of the week and unevenly steady to 40 cents lower than a week ago. Best grades showed the least weakness. Plain kinds were off the most, with some of the inferior ill bred steers selling at the lowest prices in recent history.

A shipment of 1,174 pounds steers brought the top price of $6.20, but the trade still carries a nominal quotation of $6.90 for prime cornfeds. The only cattle to escape the drubbing this week were best yearling heifers. These held firm most of the week, despite the 25 to 40 cent break in beef cows.

Lamb prices held firm yesterday and are closing mostly steady with a week ago. Natives sold to packers at $7 to $7.25, and most of the tops from the range lambs cashed within a range of $7.10 to $7.35. Prices in the lamb market have fluctuated very little in the last two weeks at a level only about 25 cents above the lowest point since May and $1.50 to $1.75 under the high point of the year, reached in August.

STRANGELY YOUR BENEFIT!

It is a peculiar circumstance that employers of Beauty Operators ask the Government in their Code to be allowed to pay higher salaries than any other like profession.

This perhaps is to eliminate cut rates—in any event you profit by it. All that is good in a course in Beauty Culture is embodied in Moler's new short concise private lesson training. A far superior method. A plan that will qualify you with knowledge and skill for the guaranteed salaries and shorter hours of the NRA. Costs no more than any other method. The half-rate offer is still available but you must start at once to make your reservation without delay!
